Rate hikes could flood water bills

BY MATT JACHMAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

While the latest Detroit Water and Sewerage Department proposal calls for increases in the wholesale cost of water to Plymouth and Plymouth Township, officials in those communities say it's not clear exactly how water customers' bills will be affected.

The DWSD, in a proposed rate schedule released Thursday, asked for an 11.8-percent wholesale rate hike for Plymouth (from $12.17 to $13.60 per 1,000 cubic feet) and a 9.3-percent hike in Plymouth Township (from $16.10 to $17.60 per 1,000 cubic feet). The proposal would take effect in July if approved by the Board of Water Commissioners and the Detroit City Council.

"This is preliminary. I don't get too excited about this," Plymouth City Manager Paul Sincock said. He said the Plymouth City Commission won't act until the rates are final. Township Treasurer Ron Edwards, however, indicated the township will pass on at least some of the increase to water users. "There's no way of not passing any of this on," he said.

The township has in the past held off passing on hefty wholesale increases to residents and businesses, but that has cut into the water department's fund balance, the money it has on hand for ongoing expenses.

Township Supervisor Richard Reaume said it'll be an issue for the entire Board of Trustees.

"The board's going to have to look at how much of this to pass on," he

Another component of the water bills is the wholesale cost of sewage treatment, which is charged by Wayne County, which has yet to issue a proposal.

Warming trend

Weather dampens sculptures, not spirits, at ice fest launch

BY MATT JACHMAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The fish was dripping, Lady Justice and her scales were cloudy and the scuba diver had lost his feet.

But despite weather that put some sculptures at the Plymouth Ice Festival in the danger zone, the festival opened Friday to a cheerful crowd that swelled as afternoon turned into evening.

The festival, with sculptures displayed in Kellogg Park and nearby locales in downtown Plymouth, continues through 5 p.m. Sunday.

Costic was giving carving demonstrations in Kellogg Park, where many of his works were displayed, including a stag sculpture, a Detroit Red Wings logo and a fireplace with burning logs. On Saturday, he was to participate in the Dueling Chainsaws speed-carving contest.

As visitors looked on, it took Costic about an hour to carve a tori, or Japanese friendship arch, out of two 300-pound blocks of ice. Altogether, the festival will require some 200 such blocks, according to Signature's Sam Walton.

Maria Wellman of Canton Township and Morgan Byrd of Plymouth — who said he's gone to the festival every year for practically his entire life — were looking at Lady Justice and talking about the palm tree and sunflower sculptures they had seen on Forest Avenue. Ironic, said Wellman, that the palm tree was melting.

"I actually love SpongeBob," she said of a nearby sculpture of the cartoon figure. "He's a staple thing."

Census liaison works to get the word out

BY MATT JACHMAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

When it comes to the 2010 U.S. Census, John Buzuvis wants to make sure Plymouth goes by the numbers.

Buzuvis, the business operations director for the Downtown Development Authority and the special projects director for the city, is Plymouth's point man on this year's census. His job is to see that residents understand how vital it is to participate and be counted, and to answer their questions.

"It really reaches into people's lives in ways I don't think they realize," Buzuvis said of the census, noting that it affects the way some $300 billion annually in federal money is distributed and the way state and federal legislative districts are redrawn. Buzuvis, who has already spoken to two community groups, census and is willing to work with churches, nonprofits and other groups interested in getting the word is available to answer questions on the out.

"It's really important for every member of the community to get counted," he said.

He's also made U.S. Census Bureau information available at city offices, put notices in the latest Department of Parks and Recreation brochure, in the city newsletter and in tax bills, and is considering organizing a Be Counted Day, a time when residents can fill out their census forms at a single location.

Buzuvis said the census form that will be sent to households on record this year is shorter than it was 10 years ago, with only 10 questions, in order to make it more convenient.

In addition to partnering with liaisons such as himself, the Census Bureau has a Web site for this census (www.2010census. gov) and is on Facebook and Twitter, Buzuvis said.

"I think they're really making use of the technology and the way people get information now," he said.

After census day April 1, field workers will be following up in communities around the country to make sure no household has been missed.

The 2000 census recorded 9,022 people living in Plymouth.

John Buzuvis can be reached by phone at the DDA offices at (734) 455-1453, or by e-mail at jbuzuvis@ci.plymouth.

Many 'in awe' of awesome autos at NAIAS

BY STACY JENKINS OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Mike Palko of Plymouth was one of thousands of car enthusiasts Thursday, strolling the North American International Auto Show, camera in hand.

He was most impressed by the massive Ford exhibit.

This year's Auto Show was a hands-on experience for a Canton father and son.

Dan Schwartz and his son, Michael, 8, were all about the interactive displays at the Auto

Michael was impressed by something he may not see on the street.

"I liked the car that parked itself," he said.

The technology was impressive to Don Jeter, of Livonia.

Jeter looks forward to strolling the sea of cool cars each year with his buddies.

Thursday's visit to Auto Show with his longtime friends Chuck Schroeder, of Novi and Terry Abraham, of Novi, is a tradition.

"When you're retired, this is what you do," said Jeter.

The technology is impressive, he said.

"They've got a lot of buttons I can't work," he laughed. "But, the cars are just beautiful."

Electricity was in the air, literally.

Vicki Soto's face lit up when she described taking a ride on Electric Avenue.

Soto, and her husband Mike Soto, of Westland, were among the many, driven by curiosity, to take a ride in an electric or hybrid car in the Electric Avenue elaborate exhibit at the Auto Show on Thursday.

"It was really quiet," she said of the eco-friendly Volkswagen

The Sotos strolled through Cobo Center keeping an eye out for the amazing — and for the practical.

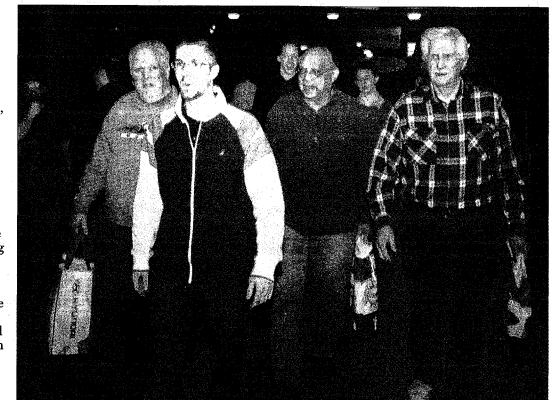

"We're thinking about getting a new car," said Vicki Soto, noting she likes the Chevy Equinox and the Chevy Cruze. "My dad worked for GM, so we always buy GM."

Jon DuBois, of Westland, can't get enough of cars - he works at the Ford Brownstown Parts Plant.

"I took the day off to come and look at the cars," he said, noting, of course, he was most impressed by the massive Ford

Plymouth Rotarians reach out to earthquake victims

BY MATT JACHMAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Local Rotarians have joined the effort to provide relief to people in Haiti since the Jan. 12 earthquake that left hundreds of thousands of people homeless.

Both the Rotary Club of Plymouth and the Plymouth AM Rotary are partners in the worldwide ShelterBox program, which assembles and distributes kits that include the basics for temporary housing: a 10-person tent, tools, blankets, groundsheets, cookware, plates, cups, utensils, a stove, water containers and water purification equipment.

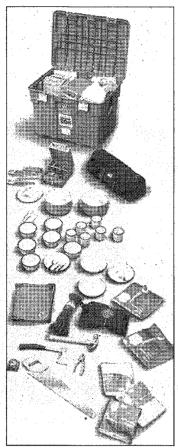

The Rotary Club of Plymouth has donated $1,000 for the purchase and shipment of one shelter box, while the AM Rotary has contributed $2,000 for two. Members of both clubs say their involvement will continue.

"I think a lot of work is going to be needed," said Elizabeth Routson, president-elect of the Rotary Club of Plymouth and a member of the club's world service and disaster relief committee. "This is just our initial response.'

"Our club has always been a ShelterBox supporter, but we're planning to ramp up our efforts considerably," said Patrick Olson, president-elect of the AM Rotary.

When ShelterBoxes are distributed in a disaster-stricken area, Olson said, the operation is highly organized by local Rotarians and tent cities are set up. Rotary International's goal is to provide 3,500 ShelterBoxes — temporary shelter for 35,000 people and about 1,000 are already in Haiti or on the way, he said.

Olson was part of a ShelterBox team that provided aid to the Southeast Asian nation of Myanmar, also known as Burma, after a devastating May 2008 cyclone.

The contents of the ShelterBox, which Plymouth Rotarians are providing as part of the relief effort to Haiti.

"We were able to distribute 1,100 boxes initially and follow-on teams distributed another 1,000 boxes and a large refugee center for many thousands of displaced citizens was constructed," Olson said.

Olson said it's possible that local Rotary members could visit Haiti to help with the ShelterBox distribution effort.

ShelterBox, which began in 2000, is based in Great Britain, where the boxes are packed. The project has strong ties to Rotary International, which has 1.2 million members in about 30,000 clubs around the world.

To donate to the effort, visit the Web site www.shelterboxusa.org.

Plymouth Salvation Army Capt. Dan Hull gladly accepted the offer from Lou LaRiche body shop assistant manager Sylvia Abdel and general manager Scott LaRiche to run a food drive aimed at stocking the Salvation Army's food pantry.

LaRiche, Salvation Army team to benefit Corps' food pantry

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Sylvia Abdel wanted to find a project designed to raise the morale of the employees at Lou LaRiche Chevrolet in Plymouth, something that could unite them for a common cause and give everyone a way to feel good.

In the process Abdel, the assistant manager of the dealership's body shop, hoped they could help people.

Abdel, a Redford resident who has worked for LaRiche more than six years, found a way to kill two birds with one stone, coming up with a food drive to benefit the food pantry at the Plymouth Salvation Army.

"I thought we needed something for morale," said Abdel. "It's always best to help people who need it. It makes you feel good to know you're helping."

The drive, for which LaRiche employees will collect non-perishable food and personal care items, starts Monday and runs through Feb. 19.

Items being accepted include (but of course aren't limited to) such things as macaroni-andcheese, pancake mix, boxed pasta, canned fruits and vegetables, crackers, hamburger helper, cereal, peanut butter and jelly, gelatin and pudding mix. Personal care items include baby products (diapers, wipes, formula, shampoo, etc.), paper products such as paper towels, toilet paper and tissues, soap, shampoo and toothpaste. With the need for assistance up some 120 percent, LaRiche employees felt the Salvation Army would make a good ben-

"We'd heard the Salvation Army's needs had increased," said Scott LaRiche, the dealership's general manager. "We thought it would be a good thing for the dealership to do."

LaRiche approached Salvation Army Corps Officer Capt. Dan Hull, who gratefully accepted the gesture.

"It was a wonderful feeling to see a business stepping up and helping the local community," Hall said. "It's another example of the community stepping up when there's a need. It shows the caring and compassion the community has for others. This community continues to amaze me."

Abdel said keeping the proceeds from the drive local was "I wanted to help someone local," she said. "That's who we're here to service."

Teens see reality of prison life

BY LEANNE ROGERS OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

People being incarcerated might seem to spell job security for a prison employee, but Michael O'Gorman has devoted himself to showing young people that being locked up is no way to spend their life.

"I literally want to put the fear of God in their soul. It's the worst place in the world to be - prison," said O'Gorman, who retired last month after spending his career working at the Federal Correctional Institution in Milan. "I'll do this 'til the day I die."

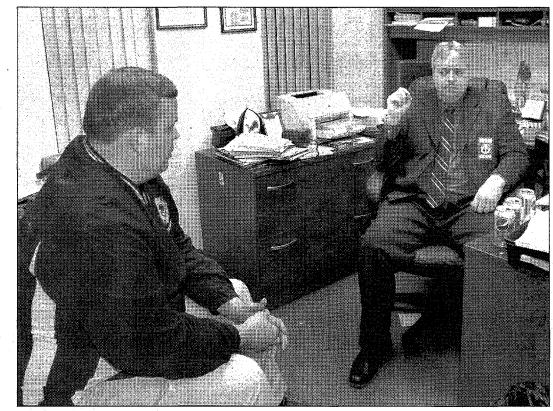

Having served eight years as an Air Force law enforcement specialist, O'Gorman began working at the prison in 1987 as a correctional officer. Five years later, he became a prison counselor and started a Juvenile Awareness Group in which teens visit the prison and talk to inmates. "I like to think of it as a sanitized Scared Straight — you've got to watch the antics the prisoners do in there," said O'Gorman, a Garden City native and Westland resident.

Since 1992, when the JAG program was initiated, O'Gorman said more than 20,000 teens have gone through the program, meeting with prisoners to hear their stories. The young people, 12-18 vears old, came to the program from all over metro Detroit, including the Youth Assistance Programs in Westland, Garden City and Livonia.

"We start off with a meeting with me - it sets the tone.I have to make it a negative experience. I'm good at depressing them," O'Gorman said. "I couldn't disagree more with (the perception that it is) Club Fed. It's ugly. You don't get to own TVs like they do in state prison. You watch TV in a small room with 200 other men. You're jammed into a small room."

Prisoners who met with the teens were carefully screened by O'Gorman, meeting three criteria. "They couldn't be a snitch, a child rapist or molester and they had to give me their word of honor that they would do this until they day they died," O'Gorman said. "They had to convince me of all three. I made it difficult to come on board."

One inmate who served on the panel was Patrick, who asked that his last name not be used. Released in 2004 after serving 12 years, nine months and three days, Patrick continues to talk with young people about his experiences through Youth Assistance and other programs serving Plymouth and Canton through 35th

District Court in Plymouth. While serving part of his sentence in Wisconsin, Patrick said he had participated in a JAG program and sought out O'Gorman when he arrived at Milan.

"I wanted to give back to the community -- to society. You hope to change some of them. If you talk to 80 young people, realistically you're not touching all of them," Patrick said. "Some of them need a prison door to wake them up. That's a small percent."

During his talks with young people, Patrick emphasizes the idea that actions and the people with whom you associate have consequences. "You hope to make a change in the direction of their lives. There are consequences that affect them and their families their parents and siblings," said Patrick, whose sentence for conspiracy to deliver narcotics was overturned after a lengthy appeal process. "It's easy to get into trouble and hard as hell to get out.'

Farrand students put projects to the test

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Farrand Elementary fifth-grader Hannah Smith had to find a project for the school's third annual Science Expo, so she decided to tackle a question that has plagued mankind forever:

"What chewing gum holds its flavor the longest?

It was one of many questions - "Why do we have two eyes?" "How do caves form?" and "Why do volcanoes erupt?" were among the others - answered among the more than 40 projects on display at Thursday's expo.

For the record, according to Hannah, the longest-lasting gum is Big Red Cinnamon, which Hannah discovered by chewing it for 39 minutes (the worst: Tri-Dent spearmint, which lasted, according to Hannah, 59 seconds).

"I thought it would be interesting to see which one held its flavor the longest," said the 10-year-old Hannah, who chewed 19 different brands of gum for her project.

It's that kind of interest in science Julie Tafelski was hoping to foster when she convinced school officials to start the science expo three years ago. Tafelski hoped the expo, projects for which run the gamut from life and earth science to hands-on, would "engage the children."

We wanted to get the children excited," said Tafelski, who teaches science at Churchill High School in Livonia and sits on the PTO at Farrand, where she has three children. "We want to build a passion for science.'

It might be working, if Minu Anne John is any sort of example. Minu went home and just started asking questions of her father, John Moolakkatto, who kicked around ideas for questions his daughter could research for her project (she settled for "Why do we have two eyes?").

"It generates a lot of questions," Moolakkatto said. "She had a lot of questions, and wanted to find one that let her to do, something I had never thought of before," Jessica said. "We added the ingredients and got to see the different things that happened. It was interesting."

Farrand principal Dana Jones called the expo "a wonderful activity," noting teachers, the PTO, National Honor Society students and parents get involved.

"It's a way students can apply things.... they're learning in the classroom," Jones said. "They work on it with their families and then bring it back to share with their classmates. It's a full-circle thing."

Hoben fifth-grader has 'Hope for Haiti'

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

As she and her mother discussed the devastating earthquake in Haiti, one thought kept running through Kendall Milo's mind:

"I want to help." And so she is, developing a fund-raising campaign she calls "Hope for Haiti" in an attempt to funnel relief to quake victims.

"My mom kept telling me how poor their country was and i really wanted to help them out," said Kendall, an 11-yearold Hoben Elementary School fifth-grader. "I decided I should make some donations to them, and I thought my school could help me out, because they're really generous."

So Kendall made posters, came up with slogans and spread collection bins around the school. And there she was earlier this week, on Hoben's morning TV news show, urging her classmates to give what they could to help the children of Haiti.

At the end of the day Friday, Kendall's project had raised some $240, including a batch of loose change one of the school's janitors had been collecting for four years.

And while Kendall credits her teacher - she said Jennifer Bec "has always been there for me and told me she'd be there the whole way" - and principal Liz Gibbs-Vartanian, the ones of whom Kendall is most proud are her friends.

"My friends have been really supportive," said Kendall, who is one notch below a black belt in Tae Kwon Do, a dancer and a Junior Girl Scout. "I really appreciate them for doing

Helping in Haiti is "so like Kendall," according to her mom, Julie Milo. Kendall, who lives in Canton with her mom, dad David and 8-year-old brother Tyler, is "a loving and giving child," her mom said.

"I already know Kendall is special," Julie Milo said. "(Hopefully) this will show that one child can make a difference and more people will be touched by her idea and help out."

That's Kendall's hope for the drive, which will last two weeks. The reasons are simple.

"I just thought if I was a child in Haiti I'd be going through some really tough times,' Kendall said. "I want to help them because they need it.'

What to do when a mutual fund changes managers

Q: Dear Rick: About a month or so ago, I learned that in one of my mutual funds the portfolio manager left the company. A notice from the company said the manager has been replaced and the fund will continue to run as it has in the past. On the whole,

I don't know if Money Matters

I should stay with it because it now has a new manager. Do you have any hard and Rick Bloom fast rules about what should to do when a mutual fund manager A: I do not have any hard and fast rules. So much depends upon the individual mutual fund. Most mutual funds are most likely not run by an individual manager, per se, but rather by a team. On the other hand, some funds are run by an individual manager. In the case where a fund is run by an individual manager and he/ she leaves, generally I recommend selling the fund. When the manager leaves, I treat the mutual fund as new. Typically, I don't invest in mutual funds that are new. I prefer funds that have a track record. If the main manager leaves, as far as I am concerned, the track record goes with them. Most mutual funds, however, are managed by a team. In those situations, I generally do not sell the fund. However, I keep a closer tab on it. If the fund begins to underperform, I generally give it a shorter leash than I would a fund that has stability of management.

When it comes to mutual funds, one thing to look for is a fund with management consistency. Some mutual funds are constantly changing management teams and those are funds I avoid. I prefer funds that have management teams in place for many years. In addition, I prefer funds managed by a team. I have found that funds managed by a team generally have a well-stocked bullpen of individuals who can take over and are familiar with the fund and its strategies.

The next issue goes hand hand with your question and that is what about the fund that the manager is going to? If that manager had a good track record, do you automatically follow them?

My answer is no. The track record doesn't necessarily follow the manager. The new fund may have different policies and strategies than the one he/she left.

The same is true if that fund manager starts a brand new fund. Once again, that new fund may have different policies, procedures and resources. My general rule is I do not follow the manager. It's sort of like in professional sports.

A player may do well with one team and then when he leaves that team and joins another, his fortunes don't follow him. There are all sorts of reasons why but suffice it to say, it hap-

One of the mistakes mutual fund investors and, in fact, all investors make, is they will buy a fund or an investment and then forget about it. It is important to monitor your investment and to make changes where appropriate. Remember, buy and hold does not mean buy and ignore. On the other hand, some investors are the exact opposite in that they are constantly buying and selling investments. That doesn't make sense either.

We live in a world and an economy that is going through incredible changes. As investors, we must embrace these changes, however, we cannot overreact.

Investing has become more difficult over the last decade and I do not believe it will get easier anytime soon. That being said, I do not believe that investors can put their head in the sand and ignore the changes occurring. It is important for every investor to have a strategy and a discipline and don't overreact to every bump in the road. Investing is not easy, however, putting your money in the bank and forgetting about it is not a viable alternative. Good luck!

NORTH AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL AUTO SHOW

Auto show created a buzz; dealerships ready to compete

BY PAT MURPHY
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Customers are ready — now it's up to individual dealerships and manufacturers.

That seems to be the message area auto dealers are taking from the North American International Auto Show that ends at 6 p.m. today (Sunday).

"We've already had customers come in after visiting the auto show," said Douglas North of North Brothers Ford in Westland. They say they're ready to buy, he said, and they're looking for the best deal.

Kit Tennyson of Tennyson Chevrolet in Livonia said: "We've got a lot of great cars, and they all look good. The auto show always generates customers."

Customers are a lot more "excited" about cars compared with last year, said Scott LaRiche of Lou LaRiche Chevrolet in Plymouth. The auto show was the best in recent history, he said, and it created a real buzz. People are far more receptive to buying a new vehicle now that the economy has improved, he said, and there's an attractive array of new models.

"But it's still a very competitive market," said Bob Griffin of Bill Brown Ford in Livonia. "The auto show created some excitement," he said, but it's the cars and dealerships that draw customers into the showroom, "with quality and somia"."

"with quality and service."
This year's show put a spotlight on technology, Griffin said. Some vehicles can parallel park themselves, he noted, "and the technology is getting better and better."

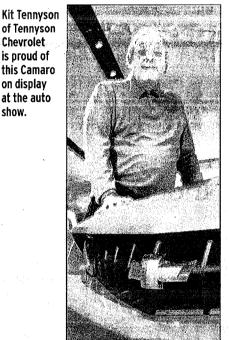

The show demonstrated that manufacturers are more

Many who visited the show last Thursday said Ford had the best display at this year's North American International Auto Show.

quality conscious than ever before, said Paul Zimmerman, of George Matick Chevrolet in Redford. "Our quality is second to none," he insisted, and that will make Chevrolets — particularly the new Volt — very competitive.

"This was the best show I've seen in 15 years," said Rick Hodges of Victory Toyota in Canton. "It's obvious that people are more excited. There's a good selection of vehicles and people are ready. I think people want to start feeling good again."

This year's show put great emphasis on alternative-fuel vehicles, said John Rogin of Livonia's Rogin Buick, "and that's probably the wave of the future."

But customers are still motivated by their needs, Rogin insisted. Somebody with six people in the family is still interested in a bigger vehicle, rather than a compact.

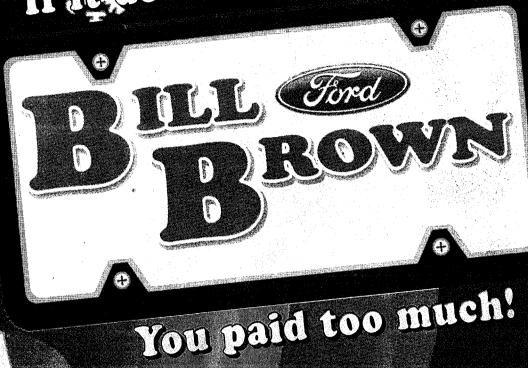

"Fortunately gasoline is still reasonable,"
Rogin said, so people are still buying vans or SUVs. "If you have a hot vehicle, people will come to your showroom," particularly if your dealership has a reputation for service.

The auto show — and the buzz it generated — is part of an encouraging trend, said Richard Kujala of Don Massey Cadillac in Plymouth. Sales have been ticking upward for the last 60 days, he said: "The optimism is growing, and I think this will be a very good year."

Three-part harmony

PCEP girls unite on Penguins for fun, friendship, hockey

BY TIM SMITH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

During the daytime, these five girls go to different high schools at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

Of course, they might see each other in a classroom or hallway. Maybe they won't.

But after school and on weekends, they see a lot of each other because they're teammates - on the Plymouth-Canton-Salem Penguins girls hockey

"It's really cool," said Jordyn Moore, a senior defenseman from Salem and a team newcomer. "It's fun because at school we don't get a chance to see each other every day but at hockey we do."

Moore, 17, decided to join the Penguins after playing for the moreintense Victory Honda travel team out of Canton Arctic Edge (where the Penguins call home).

"It's my senior year and I always wanted to play for my school, so I figured I'd give it a shot," Moore said. "I wanted something less pressure, but more fun."

Canton junior blueliner Sarah Coleman, in her third season with the Penguins, said the squad is definitely the sum of three "equal" parts.

There is plenty of camaraderie between the girls, whether their school colors are red, royal blue or black.

"We just hang out together, it's not segregated at all," said Coleman, 16. "The guys all play against each other, so they're rivals. But we don't." Concurring was junior defenseman Alaina Fleisher, 16, also in her third season with the Penguins and one of a small number of Plymouth students on the roster.

"The whole season has been good, getting to know all the new girls and bonding with them," Fleisher said. "I just think the whole experience is good."

GLAD TO BE BACK

For Salem senior Shauna Siebert (another defenseman) and Canton senior Kara Bongiovanni (a center), the Penguins gave them a vehicle to return to the team they left after ninth grade. They played the last two seasons with the Livonia Captains AA travel team. "It's my senior year and I guess I wanted to" play for the prep Penguins this season, Siebert said.

The 17-year-old Siebert, who started playing hockey at age four while living in Redford, added that it was the right decision to return to the Penguins.

"I'm pretty glad I came back," she said. "Everyone's really nice and it's a fun team.

Bongiovanni, 17, also skated with Coleman when they played in an Ann Arbor youth travel league.

"It's been nice coming back," Bongiovanni said. "The girls have been really nice about like, accepting us back onto the team. Everyone's really cool."

PCA adds football

BY TIM SMITH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

When Dillon Rahill transferred from Plymouth High School to Plymouth Christian this year, he doubted he'd be able to continue playing high school football.

But it turns out Rahill won't miss out after all on what many consider to be the main ingredient for how well students soak in their high school experience.

Plymouth Christian Academy principal David Butler and athletic director Rick Swilley last week announced that football is officially part of the 2010-11

Butler said the PCA board unanimously approved the new sport and that a feasibility study answered any questions about viability and student interest.

"I'm definitely excited," said Rahill, a sophomore who plays defensive end and running back. "I just transferred here and I was glad to hear that my new school would have a football team that I could also play on. I want to represent PCA."

Also enthusiastic about football coming to Plymouth Christian is sophomore Eric Jipping, a lineman who last fall played for a Christian Football League team.

"I'm excited," Jipping said.
"We had football before, but it was outside of PCA (via the CFL). So I'm glad that I can now play for my school."

Sophomore center Erin Menard scored a game-high 20 points Friday as Livonia Churchill posted a 43-31 KLAA South Division girls basketball victory over Plymouth.

The 6-foot Menard scored eight first-quarter points as the Chargers jumped out to a 14-4 advantage. She added six in the final period as Churchill pulled away with an 18-10 run after Plymouth closed the gap to 25-21.

"We established our inside game early and used our pressure to get some turnovers," said Churchill coach Chad Jenkins, whose team is 6-4 overall and 2-3 in the KLAA South. "Their zone (Plymouth's) slowed down our middle, but in the fourth quarter we were able to get to the free throw line and knock down some shots."

Senior guard Taylor Kerr added eight points for the Chargers, who made 13-of-20 free throws on the night.

Alex Roberts tallied a teamhigh eight for the Wildcats, who slipped to 3-7 and 2-3. CANTON 58, JOHN GLENN 15: On CHURCHILL 43, PLYMOUTH 40: The visiting Chargers came out strong Friday night, building a 16-4 first quarter lead and that was enough to ward off a late rally by the Wildcats.

Once again, a team came out of the chute ready to give defending KLAA champion Salem a big-time challenge. This time, Northville grabbed a 6-0 lead early in the first quarter of Friday's KLAA Central girls basketball game against host Salem.

But as has often been the case, once the Rocks get things squared away, they make it tough for squads to maintain any early edge. Salem gave up a total of four points over the middle two quarters Friday and rolled to a 39-29 victory to improve to 8-3 overall and 5-0 in the Central.

"It was a slow start, but we finally got cooking in the second half," Salem veteran head coach Fred Thomann said. "I'm real proud of them."

Scoring 20 points and tallying 11 rebounds for Salem was senior guard Sara Stone, who proved too tough around the basket for the Mustangs (4-6, 1-3).

We finally loosened their defense up a little bit where she was getting some easy catches," Thomann said. "She was able to convert."

Thomann added that "everybody brings their best game against us" to try to knock off last year's champs.

"And we obviously have to bring our best game to compete with that," he added. "We competed hard tonight, we figured it out and we got it done."

Northville opened the game on fire, gaining possession around the baskets and using a diamond press (1-2-1-1 zone) to give the Rocks difficulty getting untracked. It was 10-4 midway through the opening quarter and 12-10 Mustangs after one.

Both teams couldn't find the mark in the second quarter, with Salem outscoring the Mustangs 3-2 to trail 14-13 at halftime.

In the third, the Mustangs still couldn't overcome Salem's pressure defense and the Rocks began knocking down some shots to go up 23-16 after three.

Wednesday was "Senior Night" for Plymouth's wrestling team, but some underclassmen perhaps had the biggest impact on the Wildcats' 56-11 victory over KLAA South rival Livonia Churchill.

According to Plymouth head coach Quinn Guernsey, the most-riveting bouts of the evening featured freshman Alec Breckenridge and junior Brett Echols, who won at 112 and 140, respectively.

Breckenridge held off Churchill's Jake Meadows to win 6-5 while Echols trailed Jon Bannoura 7-2 before pulling out the win with a "crowdraising throw" and pin in 3:05 to thrill the Plymouth audi-

But Guernsey was thrilled, too, because his division contending team is clicking in time for next week's big quad meet at Canton.

Not just seniors big for Wildcats.

"This is the best our team has looked all season," Guernsey said, "with many guys working especially hard to get more points from major decisions and falls.

"We were able to get every matchup that we wanted throughout the dual which definitely showed in the final score." Plymouth's seniors were recognized before the meet for their service to the wrestling program over the past four years. Seniors who were victorious on their night included Brandon Crowther (145), Curtis Crosier (160, with a pin in 23 seconds), Brendon Varner (189) and Brett Keys - also by fall to take the bout at 215. Senior Jordon Birman dropped a close 4-3 decision in the heavyweight slot. The team's remaining seniors are Rob Barackman, Wally Eppler and Ryan Schultz.

Salem's Heidi Schmidt (No. 40) strips the basketball from Northville's Katie Giacomini during Friday hight's KLAA Central game.

"Our guys did a better job (as the night progressed) of recognizing open players and getting the ball to those players," Thomann said.

Opening the 10-2 third with a layup was Salem senior guard Brett deBear (seven points) to put the Rocks up 15-14 and then Stone contributed a three-point play. Junior guard Heidi Schmidt (seven points, seven rebounds) then drained back-to-back buckets and the Rocks were in control.

Northville's top scorer was junior Megan Gertley, with six points. Chipping in with five each were senior Julia Ramey and junior Beth Roach.

Late goals break ice for Salem

BY TIM SMITH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

At a jam-packed Plymouth Cultural Center Friday night, the host Salem Rocks boys hockey team served notice to Plymouth that they plan to stick around for a while.

Salem scored two goals in the third period to break a 1-1 tie and held on for a 3-2 KLAA South triumph to move ahead of the Wildcats at the top of the division.

"Plymouth's a good team," said Salem head coach Ryan Ossenmacher. "They outplayed us for the majority of that game but we found a way to win and that's what good teams do."

According to Plymouth head coach Paul Fassbender, his team couldn't capitalize on a number of scoring chances, stymied time and time again by Salem senior goalie Steven Manser (36 saves).

'We had chances, no question," Fassbender said. "Their goalie came up really big for them and (junior netminder) Mike Justus came up really big for us. It was one of those battles, a hard-fought game."

The Rocks are 8-4-3 overall and 5-1-1 in the South, while Plymouth dropped to 12-3-1 and 4-2-1.

Outstanding goalkeeping by Manser (36 saves) proved to be the key. During late in the second period, he made a series of clutch stops with the Wildcats pouring it on during two power

"He bailed us out of a lot of situations," Ossenmacher said. "But that's what he's been doing all year so I wouldn't expect any different."

Then, Salem senior winger Mario Macari broke the tie at 9:13 of the third — with just six seconds left on a Plymouth penalty.

Macari walked the puck from the left boards and let a high shot go from the circle that beat Wildcats junior goalie Mike Justus (22 saves) over the glove hand.

Salem netted another at 12:32 when Macari sent a pass from the left side over to sophomore forward Mark McGee, who made no mistake.

That goal proved to be huge because the Wildcats, on the power play and with Justus pulled for an extra skater, scored with 1:22 to go.

Senior forward Pat Smiatacz poked the puck past Manser, with junior forward Tyler Sanders and sophomore forward Zach Gambrell drawing assists.

But Plymouth really did not threaten again after that.

Opening the scoring at 3:50 of the second was Plymouth senior forward Ryan Bauer, with Smiatacz and junior blueliner Justin Bauer assisting.

The Rocks made it 1-1 at the 11-minute mark on a goal by sophomore forward Austin Sartorius, from senior Ryan Blakey and junior Ryan Quigley.

Ossenmacher said the victory gives his team the confidence that it can hang with the Wildcats.

"This is for the league," he emphasized. "But the reality is that a more important game we'd play them down the road would be in the pre-region, so it's important to know if we play well we can beat them."

tsmith@hometownlife.com

The KLAA South defeat left Plymouth with a 5-5 record overall and 2-3 in the division with Churchill improving to 5-4, 2-3.

Brennen Beyer led the Wildcats with 11 points while Pat Salo and Mike Nadratowski each scored nine. Grabbing six rebounds for Plymouth was Jake Morris. Adam Bedell and D'Juan Cooks scored 12 each for

NORTHVILLE 38, SALEM 28: The visiting Rocks led 14-8 after one quarter of Friday's KLAA Central matchup but had trouble finding the mark the rest of the night. "Both teams played good defense," said Salem head coach Bob Brodie. "But Northville had a hot second half and we were stone cold."

Tyler Stewart scored six points for Salem (6-4, 2-3).

Boys hockey

CANTON 8, CHELSEA 2: Josh Dickson, Alec Gilo and Jordan Smith scored twice Friday night at Arctic Edge to spark the Chiefs to a lopsided non-conference win. Bagging single goals were Garrett Bryden and Kyle Chiefs head coach Jeremy Majszak said it was "a big bounceback win" after Wednesday's loss to Plymouth.

'Snowball' softball tourney to return

The games return beginning 9 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 13, starting at 9 a.m. at the Canton Sports Center, located at 46555 W. Michigan Ave., Canton, MI

For the uninitiated, it's a co-ed tournament in a double-elimination format so everyone plays a minimum of two games. The entrance fee is $130 per team and an umpire fee of $12 per game is required. The deadline to register is 5 p.m. Feb. 10.

Chicago-style softball has a fun diversion from regular softball. A 16-inch ball is used, instead of the traditional 12-inch, and pitchers throw to their own batters who get two swings to put the ball in play.

If traditional softball is more your style, the 2010 season is coming up fast and registration begins March 1 with opening day on April 11. The Canton Sports Center has plenty of leagues to choose from that run six days a week, Sunday through Friday; leagues can be competitive or recreational and men's or

All adult leagues are scheduled as double-headers with weekday game times at 6:15/7:30 p.m. and 8:45/10:00 p.m. except for Friday leagues which have game times at 7:45/9:00 p.m. Sunday through Thursday leagues consists of 18 games and playoffs and the Friday leagues have 10 guaranteed games plus playoffs.

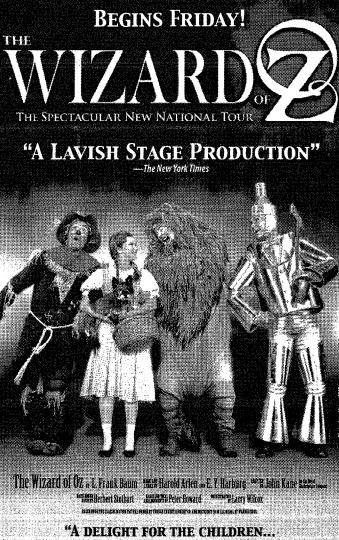

For more information or to register for the Snowball Tournament and the softball leagues that are starting soon, call the Canton Sports Center at (734) 483-5600 or visit Cantonfun.org.

Rockets no match for upstart Canton, 55-31

BY BRAD EMONS OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The student pulled rank and got the teacher Friday night. And in the process, Canton has pulled into a share for first place in the KLAA's South Division following a convincing 55-31 boys basketball win over host Westland John

Junior point-guard Dietrich Lever, who led all scorers with 18 points, played a strong floor game and led the victorious Chiefs, who improved to 6-4 overall and 4-1 in the Canton is now tied for first in the KLAA South with Wayne Memorial, which was upset Friday at home by last place Livonia Franklin, 71-66, in overtime.

Canton first-year coach Jimmy Reddy played three varsity seasons under Glenn's Dan Young. Reddy graduated in 2000.

The two teams are mirror images of each other stylewise.

"Jim was one of favorites, I love him to death," Young said. "He's a great worker and does an outstanding job. It doesn't feel good to get beat. I hope to get them next time. But give them credit. They (Canton) played hard and they were just Lever, a speedy 5-foot-10 senior, had 12 first-half points as the Chiefs held a 24-17 advantage.

"Dietrich has a great feel for the game," Reddy said. "He's played so much basketball, whether it's AAU, or here. He's gotten so much stronger. He does a great job creating in the lane and getting other guys shots."

Canton broke the game open with a 17-9 third-quarter run to take a commanding 41-26 lead.

"They (Canton) share the ball, play defense and showed good teamwork," Young said. "And obviously they hurt us on

The Chiefs held Glenn to 22.2 percent shooting (10-of-45) and committed only 11 turnovers.

"Our goal is to be under 12, which is good," Reddy said. "We're very similar. I played under Coach Young. We use the same motion (offense) with dribble penetration. Kevin Weisz, a 6-6 senior forward, contributed three triples and finished with 11 points. Paul Baumgart, a 6-6 sophomore, added nine. We're just trying to keep pace and stay in the hunt with Wayne," Reddy said. "We have a big game coming up next week (Jan. 29) against Wayne. That's a big game for us."

Paul Baumgart chipped in with nine points and seven boards for Canton.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Plymouth rec offerings

Registration is continuing throughout January for two spring programs being offered by the City of Plymouth Recreation Department. The recreation office is located at 525 Farmer Street. Call (734) 455-6620 for further information or go to www.ci.plymouth.mi.us.

Programs include the follow-

Spring Youth Soccer: Register at the recreation office during business hours (Mondays through Fridays from 12 noon-to-4:30 p.m.) the entire month of January. All first-time registrations require a birth certificate.

Spring Lacrosse: Registration for youngsters in grades 3-8 continues all month at the rec office from 12 noon-to-4:30 p.m. weekdays. Roster space is limited and the program will be filled on a first-come, firstserved basis.

Lacrosse coach wanted

Applications are being taken by the City of Plymouth Recreation Department for a boys 7th- and 8th-grade lacrosse coach. Lacrosse experience as a player or coach is preferred but not mandatory. Salem tennis meeting

Salem Girls Tennis will hold its roundup meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 25 in the Salem Library.

All new and former players and their parents should plan to attend. Please bring physicals and medical insurance informa-

Players must bring a check (made out to Salem Girls Tennis) to order their uniform. It will be the only chance to order a uniform this year.

The 2010 season begins on Monday, March 15.

Be a Lion

Not the Detroit Lions, thankfully. The Canton Lions Junior Football and Cheerleading programs are in the midst of a recruiting drive as we speak. There will be a mail-in registration on Thursday, Jan. 21 for newcomers. Go to www.eteamz. com/cantonlions for more information.

Programs both for football and cheerleading include varsity (ages 11-14), junior varsity (ages 10-12), freshmen (ages 9-10) and junior freshmen (ages 7-8).

GCYBSA open registration

The Greater Canton Youth Baseball Softball Association will hold open registration on Monday, Jan 11. Information for either "online" or manual registration can be found at www. GCYBSA.com. Programs are available for players ages 4-18.

Registration will remain open through March 15. Questions can be directed to cott@canton-

Join PCLL spring leagues

The Plymouth-Canton Little League also is holding walkin spring registration for five leagues available to residents of Plymouth, Plymouth Twp, Canton and Canton Twp.

Canton Coney Island (8553 N. Lilley Road) will be the site for the first date, 1-3 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 23.

The follow-up is slated for 1-3 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 6 at Plaza Lanes, located at 42001 Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth.

The leagues include the following: T-Ball (ages 5-7), Coach Pitch (ages 6-8), Minor League (ages 7-10), Major League (ages 10-12) and Junior League (ages 13-14). Early registration is encouraged as the teams fill up hopefully spur enrollment and boost school and community pride. Butler said there definitely is substantial interest among students in signing up to play. We did a feasibility study and talked to kids," Butler continued.

"We know that once it starts other kids will join the bandwagon.' The addition also underscores that Plymouth Christian aims to be a full-service school. "It gives our school credibility,"

Butler emphasized. "It says we're serious about growing, we're serious about being a formative school in the area and that we have a complete sports program. "We really try to match the desires of our kids, whether they're athletic, artistic or musical, that we'll have a niche for them." Plymouth Christian has approximately 635 students in grades K-12, with close to 60 percent residents of Plymouth or Canton. Butler estimated that there are 190 in the high school.

Swilley said considerable donations from parents helped raise the $40,000 in start-up costs needed to start the program. It will cost about $10,000 annually in successive years.

He added that a letter was sent to the Michigan High School Athletic Association, to complete the process of officially adding the sport.

Meanwhile, Plymouth Christian will be an independent team in 2010 because the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference schedule already was completed. Beginning in 2011, the Eagles will play in the MIAC, Swilley noted.

There will be a practice field at PCA, but home games will be played elsewhere.

Swilley said efforts began in earnest in 2007 to start football and that it quickly became apparent that the community support was bubbling over for the concept.

"Football is one of the biggest draws you can have at a school, at any level," Swilley stressed. "We're looking to draw a lot of enthusiasm from the community we're in right now."

Swilley said he's confident that at least 15-to-20 players will take the field this fall for the inaugural

"Based on the survey we took, we do have enough interest to fill a football team," Swilley said. "When the fall comes we'll see, once the hitting starts then we'll truly know. But we believe that we can go forward with this."

The girls joined to play high school hockey in a competitive yet more-relaxed environment then they might get on a travel team.

"The players are still really good in this league," said Bongiovanni, one of the co-captains along with Moore, Siebert and Coleman. "There's still really good teams in this league, it's just a little bit more relaxed."

According to Moore, playing for the Penguins "is giving me a chance to focus on the basics and it reminds of why I like hockey because it's really fun again."

There also is the rush of having that high school sports experience that they probably wouldn't enjoy without the existence of a combined

"You feel like you're part of something," summed up Fleisher. "You have your pride for your school and you get your letter jacket and it's a very cool experience."

Apologies are due n Dec. 20, 2009 there appeared in this newspaper a column that I wrote titled: Cash Paid Out Without Any Return. In it, I quoted an e-mail I received from a lady named Phyllis. She told me that she had purchased appliances from Walter's Appliance, had paid for an extended warranty and when she needed service work, she was told she was not covered for warranty repairs. She wrote to the Attorney General without any results.

Phyllis was in a bit of a pickle

and so I asked

my son Mark

'Party of One'

Plymouth songwriter/guitarist releases solo CD

BY SHARON DARGAY

Jeremy Porter has paid his musical dues for 25 years while playing in numerous bands, but has begun building a reputation as a solo artist,

The Plymouth resident, who is the guitarist and singer/songwriter for the rock band, Fidrych, has performed locally and toured out of state, singing original songs and playing acoustic guitar in coffeehouses and bars since 2008.

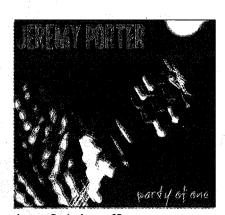

He'll release his first solo CD, Party of One, this week. It's on Magwheel Records, a Toronto-based independent label and copies will be on hand at Porter's performance, Saturday, Jan. 29, at the Plymouth Coffee Bean Co., 884 Penniman, Plymouth; (734) 454-0178. Jeff Haskins will open the show. Admission is free.

"I've been doing a lot of acoustic shows over the last year and a half. Some of the better ones have been at the Plymouth Coffee Bean. It's a fantastic room, intimate and like setting up in a corner of someone's living room," Porter said.

"I also play in bars. I came up through the trenches playing in rock and roll and punk bands. It's louder and everyone is drinking and in generally a lighter mood in a bar...but solo acoustic lends itself to the coffeehouse setting. There's more focus on the music, more give and take. It's much more rewarding to play to 20 people at a coffeehouse than 100 at Porter includes a mix of songs at his solo performances — from his first band as a teenager in Marquette, to Fidrych to Party of One selections.

"My style has been fairly consistent throughout the years, whether I'm playing in a band or by myself. I work hard to write catchy songs with good hooks. Lyrically my songs can get dark, but musically, not so much. I like a high energy feel.

"I do songs going all the way back to punk rock days, but it's just me. I'll work on an arrangement or slow it down."

PLAYED PUNK

Porter began playing in rock bands in 1985 when he was a 16-year-old growing up in Marquette. He was a founding member of The Regulars, one of the upper peninsula's first punk bands.

He attended Northern Michigan University for a year before transferring to Eastern Michigan University, where he earned a degree in English language. Although he studied poetry and literature, music rather than lyrics, influences his song writing technique. He usually starts with a few chords and then "it happens organically."

"The lyrics just fall into place."

GOING SOLO

Porter started dabbling in solo pieces while he was a member of the local band, SlugBug. He started recording tracks for a project he hoped would be a solo venture. When SlugBug ended in 2000, Porter helped found the Offramps.

In its seven years, Offramps put out two CDs and frequently performed.

"In late 2008 that started to fall apart. I didn't have anything lined up. I needed something to do. I wasn't ready to get into another band. I thought, what the hell...and I booked myself a solo acoustic tour."

Porter, who's married, works as a Web developer by day, a job that enables him to travel and perform.

"A lot of what I do is online. It's not so much going into an office," he said. "I'm luckier than most."

NEW BAND

Fidrych, with members in their late 30s to early 50s, formed last year. The musicians have all done their time "in the trenches" and focus on "keeping it fun." They don't take every gig that comes their way.

Porter decided to make his first solo CD after a successful acoustic tour last summer. He said it's easy to juggle both the band and solo work because music is his passion.

"I've been writing songs for 25 years. I have a day job and a great wife and friends. But there's something about picking up the guitar and writing a new song. It's what keeps me going."

Party of One will be available in local record stores next month. Visit porter's Web site at www. jeremyportermusic.com for more information.

Mass at St. John Episcopal honors new priest

BY SHARON DARGAY

The Rev. Robert Kerr has been on the job since November 2009 at St. John's Episcopal Church in Westland, but received a formal welcome Thursday night.

"What it's actually called is a celebration of ministry," said Fr. Kerr. "When someone has been elected and approved as a priest in a parish, particularly the pastor of the parish, normally there's a service of welcome."

The Mass included guests
Bishop Wendell Gibbs of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan and Archdeacon George Leylegian of the Armenian
Apostolic Church.

The beauty of the Mass, with its grand music and pomp, drew Fr. Kerr to the Episcopal church while he was a student at Concordia College in Ann Arbor.

"I grew up in the Evangelical Church and became an Anglican in college," said Kerr, a Taylor native.

He also earned a Ph.D in counseling and psychology and has taught at Ashland Theological Seminary's Southfield campus since 2002.

The knowledge "comes in handy" as Fr. Kerr counsels parishioners through crisis.

"At some of the most critical times in people's lives, they invite me in. I get the honor to share with them."

Previous assignments
Before joining St. John's Episcopal Church, Fr. Kerr served as director of pastoral care at a retirement community in Waterford for three years. He also has worked with missions, started a congregation "from scratch," and served as a hospice chaplain.

"It was a nice ministry," he said, referring to his most recent assignment, "but I felt God's call to me to parish ministry.

"I had heard about the church in Westland. The heavens didn't open and I didn't hear voices. I said (to God) I'll send in my stuff and the rest is up to you," Kerr described his job application process.

He celebrated Mass for the first time at St. John's on Thanksgiving Day last year.

LIKE HOME

"They are a wonderful group of people. They're easy to get along with and they're all friends. It's like coming home."

It's an environment Fr. Kerr hopes will continue.

"I want St. John to be a church where everyone will feel welcome."

Masses are offered at 8:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m., with Sunday school scheduled for 10:15 a.m. The Eucharist and prayers for healing are shared at noon Tuesday and Thursday. Bible study meets from 10:15-11:45 a.m. Thursday.

11:45 a.m. Thursday. Fr. Kerr plans to lead an "Anglican Boot Camp" Thursday evenings during Lent. Participants will learn what it means to be an Anglican Christian and will cover such topics as sacraments, church history and sin.

"My goal as a priest is I want Jesus to be real for everybody who comes through the door and that they know they are loved by him and cared for and have a real experience of him.

"Our primary duty and calling is worship of God and to do it with all the energy and beauty we can muster."

St. John's Episcopal Church is at 555 S. Wayne Road, Westland. (734) 721-5023

ADOPTABLE GREYHOUNDS

Greyheart Greyhound Rescue and Adoption received four new dogs recently.

'They came from Florida and are very thin, but our fosters will take wonderful care of them and they will fill out very soon," said Jackie Bowen, public relations coordinator for the group.

Two are featured this week. Here's what volunteers say about them: Pebbles was called Amy when she raced, but her foster family thought her new name suited her better because of the pebble-like brindle marks on her white fur. She arrived Jan. 16 from a race track and is getting used to playing outside in the snow. She's having fun with the other greyhounds she lives with. She is $4\frac{1}{2}$ years old and loves people as well as other greyhounds. She'd rather not have a small dog under foot.

Annie's old racing name was Donna Whistler but her foster family thought Annie was much cuter. She's a beautiful brindle girl, $4\frac{1}{2}$, with the sweetest face and gorgeous soulful eyes you could ever fall in love with. She just arrived in Michigan from a racetrack in Florida. She's having a great time with her foster family and the other greyhound she's living with but is looking for a home of her own.

If you're interested in Pebbles or Annie, call Greyheart Greyhound Rescue and Adoption at (866) 438-4739. Check out the group's Web site at www.greyheart.org.

U-M gets new scanner to identify brain tumor cells

Doctors will be able to scan a child's brain while operating with cutting edge equipment that will be part of the neuroscience operative suite at the new University of Michigan C.S.

Mott Children's Hospital. The intraoperative MRI will be the first of its kind available to patients in Michigan when construction of the $754 million hospital is complete. "The system will greatly improve current technology for removal of brain tumors in children," said Karin Muraszko, chair of the Department of Neurosurgery at the University of Michigan Health System.

"The iMRIS system brings cutting edge MRI technology into the operating room to obtain brain or spine images. in the middle of a surgical procedure, without moving the patient or compromising the surgical field," Muraszko added. "This will advance our ability to care for patients with brain tumors, epilepsy and even patients with hydrocephalus. The iMRIS system lets us obtain the best available MRI imaging in the middle of an operation to determine what's going on."

A surgeon can use the location, appearance and texture of the tissue to determine what is normal brain and what is tumor in a patient undergoing a resection of brain tumor, said Hugh Garton, pediatric neurosurgeon at the C.S. Mott Children's Hospital.

"But none of these tools are completely accurate," Garton stated. "There is good evidence for brain tumors that the longterm outcome is better with a completed resection than for one that is not complete.

"During procedures, we could face a difficult choice regarding tissue about which we are unsure. Removing it is risky and could cause permanent neurological injury. Leaving it have a different meaning to a patient than to the doctor. This column will discuss

The best example of referred pain in joint conditions is hip pain. One feels pain originating in the hip as groin pain, that is, a pain in an area just below the abdomen and going from the edge of the pelvic bone to the midline area. Why hip pain manifests itself this way has to do with the distribution of the nerves that supply the Radiating pain is the pattern of pain one feels with a pinched nerve such as sciatica. In sciatica, the pain originates in the back when a major nerve, the sciatic, becomes compressed between a vertebral disk and the surrounding bone. What the person notes is a pain, sometimes burning, tingling or sharp going down the leg. This

The pain from strain occurs when a muscle near an impaired joint becomes subject to undue use. Thus, when the hip experiences arthritis, the quadriceps muscle of the high may hurt because of the extra work the muscle must undertake with walking. Strain in the back of knee with knee arthritis represents the same phenomenon. The hamstring muscles are trying to compensate for an impaired knee www.drjjweiss.yourmd.com behind could risk committing the patient to a second surgical procedure and an increased risk of complications."

IMMEDIATE FEEDBACK

A neurosurgical patient may be best served when up-to-date MRI views of the surgical field are available during an operation. But getting that information without the iMRIS system, requires moving the patient from a surgical suite to an MRI imaging suite, through a nonsterile environment.

"Intraoperative MRI provides immediate feedback as to the both the nature of the tissue in the surgical field and the anatomic relationships of critical structures of the brain as they are oriented in a surgical procedure. For me, to be able to demonstrate to a surgical trainee the correlations between what he or she is seeing in the surgical field and what the MRI shows should accelerate the learning process," said Cormac Maher, a pediatric neurosurgeon at the University of Michigan Health System.

"We are excited by the research possibilities, for example, in developing agents that more accurately identify tumor cells on both the MRI and in the operating room."

No other system offers the same degree of safety for both the patient and the surgical environment.

IMRISneuro provides neurosurgeons with timely images during surgery from which they are able to make better decisions for their patients.

Peter Strouse, director of pediatric radiology at UMHS, says the IMRISneuro system is a critical acquisition for Mott.

"We have a chance to do something really good with this piece of equipment. It's really cutting edge and for neurosurgery, if we want to be the leaders and the best, it's just something we had to have," he said.

The first, Carlos Gomez of Brooklyn, N.Y., has made music his career for 15 years. A freelance DJ in nightlife culture nationwide and an electronic music producer, he creates music in his studio. The second. Fadi ElTal, a support engineer at Apple Computers Inc., in Cupertino, Calif., works as a liaison between the engineering team and the contact centers. Denver's Stephen Franklin is a lead engineer at United Launch Alliance L.L.C., which launches satellites. His eight-member independent team assesses product risk and launch preparedness. Here are some of the problems they encountered

-- headaches. Considerable loss of hearing in his

"music" ear caused straining and uncertainty in face-to-face and telephone conversations. (Gomez) -- failed understanding. Lower voices in meetings never quite registered. (ElTal) -- embarrassment. Normal or quiet voices nearby in meetings were not perceptible unless the person sat immediately in front of him. Ambient noise in large meetings required him to stare at a person . . . not always possible in a large room. (Franklin)

'CLEAR COMMUNICATIONS'

"The onus is on everyone to make sure that clear communications happen in the office," observes Sharon Campbell, president of the Pueblo Chapter of Hearing Loss Association of America. Gomez says that people in his group warn each other if the monitor is too loud, distorting the noise on the floor, ElTal encountered diminished productivity when callers were put on speaker in meetings. When he had questions, he went to meeting notes, if available, then e-mail or a phone call. Franklin mentions that e-mails often go out to confirm what's discussed, but "you have to take responsibility for information that's made available. Life becomes very insulating if you don't and you eventually will fall behind everyone. It's really difficult in the technical world," he adds, "where we're often asked at the end of a meeting if we concur with something. If you haven't heard well and say you concur with it, you're putting the company at risk. There are no do-overs in our

CO-WORKERS

However, there is an additional experience some people in their situation encounter. Campbell indicates that co-workers can be more than mean. "deliberately saying something to the hard of hearing employee and then, when called on it, claim that the hard of hearing employee 'misunderstood." Failed communication becomes the "fault" of the employee, who is often fired. Harassment, she comments, often begins when the person first wears a hearing aid.

Franklin, who's never encountered this problem, feels that it's cultural, reflecting an unstable environment where people fear for their jobs. Only Gomez, the DJ, has experienced something close to it - "gentle ribbing among friends." He concedes that when it happens repeatedly for six years or longer, it begins to have an impact.

Each of these men uses a hearing aid. ElTal loves his Lyric in-canal hearing aid (InSound Medical, Inc.) because of its clarity, use of the ear to enhance sounds and invisibility. Gomez enjoys his Songbird (Songbird Hearing Inc.), because it's occupationally-specific, designed for musicians early in their careers and in their hearing loss. Franklin likes his Siemens Pure

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Nissan Sentra: An Old Standby That Delivers Quality

Advertising Feature CAReport

By Kevin Koloian For Avanti NewsFeatures and AllOpinions Allthe Time.com

The Nissan Sentra offers a sharp, visually striking image. Following its larger and more upscale siblings, the Altima and Maxima, the Sentra is no longer Nissan's entry-level car now that the company makes the Versa.

Targeting the Toyota Corolla and Honda Civic, Nissan hopes the Sentra, like the $22,000 car we tested, with its many standard features, can put a dent in these best-sellers'

The biggest knock against the old Sentra was its tight cabin room. Nissan designers took that into account and made the latest Sentra much larger.

Offering one of the largest interior volumes in its class, the new Sentra has a 5.9-inch longer wheelbase than the 2006 model. It is 2.3 inches longer in overall length, 3.2 inches wider and sits 4 inches taller for easier entering and exiting.

Passengers should have no problem getting into the Sentra's rear seat, but they may find foot room is limited because of the large front seat brackets on the floor. But, there's plenty of headroom and rubber door armrests are comfortable resting places for forearms.

The trunk itself is designed to accommodate long and bulky items by increasing the size of the trunk pass-through opening. Combined with the new 60/40 split double-fold rear seat, Sentra offers enough cargo flexibility for carrying snowboards, hockey sticks and even Sentra's innovative trunk divider allows the trunk to be used for short term and long term/ hidden storage. A removable divider wall, which can be positioned flat on the trunk floor when not in use, can be raised into a vertical position, creating two separate compartments.

Other handy storage features include an integrated, removable overhead compact disc holder above the driver's sun visor which can hold up to eight CDs, net storage pockets on the upper backs of the front seats for rear seat passengers' cell phones and mp3 players, a rear seat armrest with cup holders that can accommodate a 20-ounce bottle and 32-ounce drink cup, extra instrument panel storage next to the driver's door, and a large glove compartment that's big enough to fit a largesized map book. The center console offers multiple storage options, including an adjustable cup holder design and cell phone space.

With its tall dash and vertical center stack, the Sentra's interior design has a few elements you'd find on most SUVs. Its instrument panel is made up of alloy-like rings on the gauges and dials, while chrome accents the door handles and steering wheel emblem

Buyers of the Sentra have a choice of five trim levels: base, S, SL, SE-R and SE-R Spec V. Standard on the base trim are 15-inch steel wheels, air conditioning, a four-speaker CD stereo with an MP3 player jack, and power windows and locks. The S trim level adds 16inch alloys, a height-adjustable driver seat, keyless entry, power mirrors, steering-wheelmounted audio controls and an extra pair of stereo speakers. When you spring for the SL trim, you get leather upholstery, a leathertrimmed steering wheel, keyless start, cruise control, an alarm system and a trunk divider. The Sentra SE-R is equipped similarly to the SL, but the keyless start and steering wheel audio controls are become options instead of standard equipment. It also gets 17-inch wheels, firmer suspension tuning, larger brakes, a lower body kit, sport seats, aluminum-trimmed pedals, and oil pressure and G-force gauges. The SE-R Spec V has everything the SE-R has and adds summer tires, an even firmer and lowered suspension, and larger front brakes.

The Nissan Sentra competes for sales with the Toyota Corolla and Honda Civic. The Sentra has been a solid contender for many years due to its plethora of standard features.

Standalone options on all models but the base Sentra include a sunroof, a spoiler, an upgraded 340-watt Rockford Fosgate sound system, Bluetooth, and either XM or Sirius Satellite Radio.

The base, S and SL Sentras are powered by a 2.0-liter inline four-cylinder engine good for 140 horsepower. Base and S models are available with either a six-speed manual or a CVT transmission designed to offer smoother operation and better fuel-efficiency than a regular automatic. Sentra SL models come only with the CVT.

The CVT is also standard on the Nissan Sentra SE-R, which has 2.5-liter four-cylinder good for 177 horsepower. The SE-R Spec V gets a high-output version of this engine capable of 200 horsepower. A six-speed manual is the only transmission available on the Spec V.

Fuel economy ratings for the Sentra 2.0 SL are 29 miles per gallon in the city and 36 mpg on the highway. These figures hold up well among its main competitors and are only worse when compared to cars with smaller engines.

The Sentra has decent acceleration and its electric power steering is quick, but sometimes it is too quick and the steering wheel returns to center with unusual force. Overall, it provides a firm ride, swallowing road bumps and potholes, although there's a lot body roll going around corners.

Nissan has done a good job of minimizing road noise. Even when the Sentra's 4-cylinder engine is pushed to high speeds, the highway ride is surprisingly quiet.

On the safety front, the Sentra gets the usual array of airbags including seat-mounted sideimpact bags and roof-mounted curtain airbags. Active head restraints come standard on the front seats to reduce the chances of whiplash from a rear-end collision. Front and rear crumple zones, side impact door beams, an energy-absorbing steering column, and a system to pull the engine down in a frontal impact all contribute to overall occupant safety.

All of these safety features earned the Sentra a five-star frontal crash rating for both driver and passenger by National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The Sentra is a solid entry in the compact car segment. With its strong engine, styling and interior, the Sentra should stay near the top of the class of affordable, well-built cars.
