Celebrating Petz

The life of the renowned Dr. Weldon Petz will be celebrated at the Plymouth Historical Museum with a live performance of the Michael Shirtz Quartet on Tuesday, July 19, from 7-8:30 p.m.

Petz died April 28 at the age of 88. He began his career as a trombonist in an orchestra with Jimmy Dorsey and Johnny Long, and worked with many others such as Ella Fitzgerald, Frank Sinatra, Jimmy Durante, and Abbott & Costello. Petz even started his own orchestra, the Tommy Weldon Orchestra, which operated from 1947 to 1953. He eventually sought a career in education, but continued to focus on music, and furthered his career as a historian focusing on the presidential history of Lincoln, music, and education.

The Michael Shirtz Quartet, led by Petz's grandson, is a unique jazz ensemble that plays traditional jazz with a blend of contemporary, folk and Gospel-like textures. The quartet is based in Ohio.

The museum is located at 155 S. Main Street, one block north of downtown Plymouth. Please visit www. plymouthhistory.org for more information or call (734) 455-8940.

Art in the Park off to a sunny start

Festival continues with Sunday hours

BY MATT JACHMAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Under sunny skies and a fairweather forecast for the weekend, the 32nd annual Art in the Park got under way Friday in downtown Plymouth.

Billed as the second-largest art festival in the state after Ann Arbor's, Art in the Park brings together more than 400 artists from around the country: painters, photographers, jewelers, furniture-makers, clothing designers and crafters of all kinds. In addition, the event offers food vendors, live entertainment and handson activities, such as the Lego Spinjitzu display at Kellogg Park.

Art in the Park continues through 5 p.m. Sunday in the park and several surrounding streets.

"I love the festival. I love the people it brings to town," said Stella Delap, the owner of Basket Kreations, a gift shop on Forest Avenue, in Kellogg Park during a break from browsing. The customers Art in the Park brings to downtown businesses outweigh inconveniences such as heavy traffic and closed streets, Delap said. It's also good for her, she added, as a way to find vendors for products, especially from Michigan, her store might carry.

Delap likes to shop Art in the Park, too. "There're just things you don't normally see in a store. Very unique," she said.

That's what Leslie Hawkins, of Las Vegas, Nev., is hoping brings people to her booth on Main Street. Hawkins sells women's clothing that's hand-painted with her own designs, including many flowers and abstracts, and says Art in the Park is a good fit for

"It's a good market. It's our clientele," said Hawkins, who guessed it was her fifth trip to Plymouth for the show. She's been embellishing clothing for 24 years; her mother, Jeanette Nacht, helps with dyeing, sewing and keeping inventory.

Hawkins said things got off to a quick start for them Friday. "We've been constantly busy. Nonstop," she said.

Photographer Shawn Malone of Marquette, also on Main Street, is back for a second year after her Art in the Park debut in 2010.

Compromise on water rates is near

BY MATT JACHMAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

A wholesale water-rate increase from the city of Detroit would be cut by more than half, and Plymouth Township's six-month contract dispute with Detroit resolved, under a compromise township officials will take up next week.

The deal would mean an increase in the wholesale rate the price Detroit charges the township for water — of just over 18 percent instead of the 40-percent hike Detroit was set to impose. Township officials say they'd pass along an increase to residents and businesses of 70 cents per thousand gallons, which would bring the retail price for water and sewer service from $8.35 to $9.05 per thousand gallons.

"Residents now will not see the 40-percent sticker shock and will be comfortable using water again," said Supervisor Richard Reaume, who participated in negotiations between the township and Detroit.

The contract, along with a proposal to raise the township's retail water price, will be on the agenda for the Tuesday township Board of Trustees meeting.

The yearlong contract would be retroactive to July 1; it must be approved by Detroit Mayor Dave Bing and the Detroit City Council as well as the township board before taking effect.

The impasse between the township and Detroit began in January, when the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department proposed a 40-percent wholesale increase for the township, the highest-percentage increase for any of the more than 120 communities to which Detroit sells water.

Detroit officials said the township was being penalized for exceeding the peak water demand agreed to in a 2009 contract; township officials, while agreeing peak demand had been exceeded, disputed the way the penalties were being interpreted.

"We were arguing over the numbers, how valid they were," Reaume said.

Five or six meetings went nowhere, Reaume said, but Jim Fausone, Wayne County's representative on the Board of Water Commissioners, recently stepped in to broker the compromise.

The contract adjusts some of the water-use factors that go into Detroit's rate calculations, including a provision that would have the township buy 200 million cubic feet (nearly 1.5 billion gallons) of water a year rather than the

Party planned to mark end of Plymouth streetscape work

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, July 10, 2011

BY MATT JACHMAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Plymouth officials, contractors, business owners and the public will toast the completion of a two-year, $2 million downtown streetscape project with a grand opening Saturday afternoon.

The event is scheduled for noon to 3 p.m. at Kellogg Park. Brief remarks from former mayor Phil Pursell, chairman of the Downtown Development Authority, are planned, a ribbon-cutting will be held to showcase the improvements, and free refreshments will include hot dogs, popcorn and bottles of Absopure water.

There will also be "Rocky Road" fudge from Kilwin's, a type the shop normally doesn't make, with the name intended as a nod to the difficulties that street closings and construction work posed for business owners and visitors during the project, said Tony Bruscato, the DDA's operations director.

"Now that we've completed the project in two years, we just want to have a fun time," Bruscato said. "It was tough for everybody, including our merchants and visitors.

The renovations were originally planned to be completed over three years but will be completed in two (Old Village Landscaping is expected to finish brick-paver work this week, weather permitting.) The work included the installation of new mast-arm traffic signals at Main and Penniman and Main and Ann Arbor Trail; new concrete pavement at those intersections; the repaving of several streets, including Main between Church and Wing; the rebuilding of downtown crosswalks; and new brick pavers in many of the decorative sidewalk features

There's also the awardwinning "compass" design of stained concrete in the intersection of Main and Ann Arbor Trail. The compass was barricaded off last week so that it could be re-stained and resealed, Bruscato said. "We think it turned out really well," Bruscato said of the entire streetscape. "We spent $2 million dollars between last year and this year to make our downtown look great." The project is an example of how, even during an economic slowdown, the city is able to invest in infrastructure improvements, Bruscato said

"They did a nice job. It looks good," said Matt Allen, who helps his wife, Teri, run the family owned Dearborn Jewelers on Ann Arbor Trail.

The work affected business at their store, Allen said, moreso during last year's phase, which focused on Ann Arbor Trail and Main, than during this year's, which centered on Main and Penniman. Still, Allen said, "it had to be done.

And have things picked up since major work was completed and streets reopened? It's too early to tell, Allen said, given this weekend's closing of the streets again for Art in the

WAYNE COUNTY TREASURER

'Then he was gone'

Fundraiser helps paralyzed Canton man

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Patty Cigile was wandering around the beach on the first full day of her family's vacation in Destin Beach, Fla., when she heard some noise, turned and saw people dragging a man out of the water onto the beach.

It took a second for the understanding to reach her before she noticed the shorts the man was wearing. They were familiar.

"I thought, 'Oh, my God, that's my husband," Patty Cigile remembered. "I didn't even notice it was my sons carrying him. He just had that vacant stare. It was ter-

Rick Cigile, Patty's husband of 29 years, was swimming in the waters off Destin Beach June 21, the first full day of the family's vacation. Rick was taking turns body surfing the waves with his 18-year-old son Ryan (who has since had his 19th birthday) and 17year-old Jeremy.

'HE WAS GONE'

Nobody really saw it, but this is what the family now knows happened: Rick took a wave in, and the wave slammed him into the ocean floor, snapping his neck and causing a C4-C5 fracture. Apparently understanding he'd just broken his neck, Rick gulped in one last gasp of air, which didn't hold.

Before Ryan and Jeremy could get to him, Rick had drowned. The boys got some help getting their dad to the beach — "There was another boogie-boarder who helped," Patty said - where a lifeguard and another woman, an ER nurse who happened to be at the beach that day, worked feverishly to try to bring Rick back.

"They just kept going and going," Patty said of the revival effort. "Then he turned that ashen gray and he was gone."

Six rounds of CPR, though, brought Rick back. At first, it was thought he'd suffered a heart attack. When EMTs kept asking him in the ambulance, "Can you feel that?" and Rick kept saying, "no," Patty thought, "Oh, God, he's broken his neck." They turned the ambulance toward Fort Walton Beach Hospital. The family tried to find an airlift to Pompano Beach Hospital, a much larger trauma center, but none was Rick spent a week at Fort Walton Beach until a room and a doctor at the University of Michigan Hospital could be arranged, and an airlift financed. The Cigiles' health insurance doesn't cover the $14,200 cost, which left Patty scrambling.

"You start pulling out your credit cards," Patty said. "'Put some on this one, and put some on this one.'

DAUNTING CHALLENGE

Now back at U-M, Rick faces a daunting rehab schedule that will have him working at it eight hours a day. Patty said doctors aren't saying anything in terms of a prognosis, but they're "treating it like a quad(riplegic)

Friends say Rick Cigile, a hockey coach whose three sons (they also have 21year-old Ricky about to play hockey at Bethel College in Minnesota), is suited by temperament and outlook to adjust to the challenge.

Jeff Powers, who has known Rick for 15 years and whose sons have played hockey with the Cigile boys, said Rick has always had a "positive outlook" that should help him

"He was always very positive not only about his kids. but about all the kids," said Powers, who watched Cigile as a coach. "He was always positive and tried to bring out the best in them. Once he gets over the reality of what's going on, which I can't even comprehend personally, I think his positive outlook and his mindset on life will help him adjust."

While Patty, currently on stress-related leave from her job with Delta Airlines, learns the ins and outs of Rick's rehab, his friends at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, where Rick has been a deputy for more than 23 years, are focusing on the financial aspect. The group is sponsoring a fundraiser to help with Rick's medical bills 3-10 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 7, at Boomer's Roadhouse in Waterford.

Rick Cigile of Canton clowns with his sons – Ricky, Ryan and Jeremy – the day before the swimming accident that left Rick paralyzed.

HELPING OUT

Tickets are $20 per person and include a buffet, pop and coffee. A "Rick Cigile Benefit Fund" has been set up through TCF Bank and donations can be made at any branch.

"I think that's a wonderful thing ... He's got a great, great group of friends who love and support him and care about him," Patty said. "They're finding ways to help the family. The support we got and the people helping us ... doing anything they could to help us, has been amazing."

Now, though, comes perhaps the biggest challenge of all: Getting Rick home. Ricky is already out of the home on his way to college, likely to be followed soon by Ryan. That leaves Patty alone with Jeremy to help with Rick's rehab, and Jeremy starts his senior year at Plymouth High School in September.

"I'm holding up pretty well ... right now I have to learn all the work and the rehab I'm going to need to know to help him," Patty said. "The scary part will be when he comes home and we see all that (rehab) includes. We have to wait and see, and get prepared. It's uncharted territory."

Group plans to help remodel home

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Jim Cisek spends a good deal of his time helping people around the community who can't help themselves.

So when Cisek, president of the group Christmas in Action. heard about the swimming accident that left Rick Cigile paralyzed last month, his direction was clear: Help.

"He's my neighbor," Cisek said simply of Cigile, who lives a few doors down from Cisek. "How can we not try to help?"

Christmas in Action has already started planning how to help Cigile, his wife and their three sons. The group plans to take on the task of remodeling the Cigiles' Canton home — widening doorways, adding first-floor bedroom and shower, building a handicap-accessible ramp.

There are a lot of things to be done to the house," Cisek

Cigile is well-known in the community, particularly for his efforts coaching his own three sons, and countless other kids, in hockey. In fact, Cigile was the first hockey coach for Cisek's own son.

It's Cigile's service to community, combined with the medical situation in which he now finds himself, that makes the Cigile family a prime candidate for Christmas in Action's help.

"He's a father and he's someone who's been trying to help the community out," Cisek said. "This is our way of helping him out now."

Cisek hopes to get to work around Aug. 12, and he's looking for skilled trades people to help. He figures to need carpenters, plumbers, electricians and flooring pros. The group is also looking for help with the cost, which Cisek estimates will be between $15,000 and $20,000.

'We're looking at turning this around as fast as we can," Cisek said.

To donate money, send a check/money order made out to Christmas in Action (with "Rick Cigile fund" on the memo line) to Christmas in Action, 1150 Canton Center, Canton, MI 48188. To volunteer to help or for more information, visit Christmas in Action's website at www.christmasinactionwayne.com

White House trip honors Dodson nutrition program

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, July 10, 2011

BY BRAD KADRICH OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The last time Joanne Randolph was at the White House, Ronald Reagan sat in the Oval Office.

Decades later, it's time for another trip, and not for the usual visitors' tour that tourists

Randolph, the nutrition coordinator for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, will join Board of Education President John Jackson on the White House's south lawn Friday, July 29, to receive an honor from First Lady Michelle Obama. The district is being recognized for its work to make school lunches and breakfast programs healthier.

The award is attributed to the effort at Dodson Elementary School, which this year earned the HealthierUS School Challenge Bronze Award. Dodson became one of what USDA officials said is a "small but growing number of Michigan schools" to achieve the challenge, a national initiative to promote healthier school meals, physical activity and fitness opportunities and nutrition education. Dodson is the third elementary school in the state to achieve Bronze level status

"We're honored to be asked to go," said Randolph, credited with enhancing the district's nutritional standards. "I've never been to the White House, except for the little tour everyone takes. I'm looking forward to going back."

The USDA's Food and Nutrition Service presented the HealthierUS School Challenge Bronze Award to Dodson back in March. It's a national initiative to promote healthier school meals, physical activity, fitness opportunities and nutrition education for students.

Improving child nutrition is the focal point of the Healthy, Dodson Elementary students had fun with Rory, the Detroit Lions' mascot, at an all-school assembly announcing the school's Bronze Award.

Hunger-Free Kids Act signed by President Barack Obama in December 2010. The legislation authorizes USDA's child nutrition programs and allows the USDA, for the first time in more than 30 years, the chance to make real reforms to the school lunch and breakfast programs. The goal is to help a new generation win the future with healthier lives.

The Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act is the legislative centerpiece of the First Lady's Let's Move! initiative.

"This is a really big deal," said Kristen Hennessey, Plymouth-Canton's director of food & nutrition services. "It recognizes the fact students are balancing nutrition and fitness, which we all know fosters a better learning environment. The folks at Dodson worked really hard on this."

According to USDA statistics, childhood obesity rates have tripled in the last 30 years, and now nearly 1-in-3 children is overweight and obese. The HealthierUS School Challenge is a key component of the First Lady's LetsMove! initiative to combat the childhood obesity epidemic through a comprehensive approach with schools, families and communities that helps children become more active, eat better, and get healthier.

"Dodson's Bronze Award reflects the school's commitment to student nutrition and physical fitness, cornerstones of Let's Move!" said Julie Mikkelson, USDA Food and Nutrition Service Regional Director for Special Nutrition Programs.

The school celebrated the milestone with an all-school assembly Wednesday that featured Chef Paul Penney, Plymouth High School head football coach Mike Sawchuk and player Brennen Byer, and Zumba instructor Veronica Randolph said now that Dodson has achieved Bronze status in the program, the district's other 15 elementaries are ready to step up to the same challenge.

"We've changed the menus for the other 15, and we've applied for all 15 of them," Randolph said. "We're hopeful they can all earn the same recognition."

Malone's prints are mostly landscapes and roadside scenes - the Mackinac Bridge, a weathered country grocery store, the Pictured Rocks - and her work was featured in National Geographic earlier this year. She's been pursuing the work seriously for six or seven years, she said.

Malone, wearing a T-shirt advertising another art festival, noted the day's heat, but said it was better than the alternative.

"We've had a couple total rainouts, so I'm not complaining about heat or sun," she said.

sharing an affiliation with my other professional orchestra, the Michigan Philharmonic, and thinking about all the exciting future collaborative possibilities between the two organizations," Washburn added.

Moslak said the goals of the OLPS - community service and music education — are "perfectly aligned" with Washburn's.

"We are thrilled at the opportunity to have such a renowned conductor take an interest in helping our OLPS Symphony Orchestra members maintain and grow their skills," she said.

The new affiliation will not affect Washburn's tenure or effectiveness with the Michigan Philharmonic. In fact, according to Beth Stewart, executive director of the Michigan Philharmonic, the partnership will do nothing but enhance the organization.

"We are really excited to have them affiliated with us," Stewart said. "It gives (Washburn) a chance to work with more students, and it gives us a chance to extend our reach out into the Oakland County area. "Studies show people who perform music have a greater interest in attending concerts and becoming involved with music organizations," Stewart added. "This is a great opportunity for our development. We're really excited about it."

Washburn has an extensive background as a conductor and artistic director. She co-founded a groundbreaking Women's Philharmonic in San Francisco, and is known for her authoritative knowledge of women composers. In addition, she has worked with a number of living American composers, often performing their work in her many guest appearances with symphony orchestras across the country, as well as during her tenures with orchestras in California and with the Michigan Philharmonic.

The Orchard Lake Philharmonic Society was formed when certain members of the Pebble Creek Chamber Orchestra wanted a weekly opportunity to play in an ensemble. The PCCO is the original chamber orchestra that still meets occasionally for Saturday Soirees in Moslak's living room to play chamber music, accompany Bach concerti for two and more keyboards and sometimes to accompany students playing piano, cello and clarinet concerti.

Washburn is the third conductor to assume the baton for the OLPS Symphony Orchestra, succeeding Susan Mutter. The musicians in the orchestra are all employed in other professions, including accountants, engineers, professors, and a Zamboni driver. They are volunteer performers in the orchestra, dedicating their time and talents because of their love of music and are grateful for the opportunity to play 165 million cubic feet a year called for in the previous contract. Though the contractual water consumption would be greater, township officials said, it would be more in line with the township's recent annual usage history and would come at a lower per-unit price.

Water conservation, however, will still be important, Reaume said, especially during periods of peak demand, between 6 a.m. and noon and between 6 p.m. and midnight.

"It's critical that we avoid those peaks," he said. Highwater-use tasks, such as lawn-watering or running dishwashers or clothes washers, should be done during off-peak times, he said.

The deal also requires the township to make some improvements to its own water system.

The township is spending nearly $97,000 to upgrade control valves and pumping equipment at its water tower on Five Mile. Treasurer Ron Edwards said about $350,000 more in upgrades are planned, including the addition of pumps to increase water pressure, with the goal of driving down the wholesale water price in the future.

The new proposed increase from Detroit would bring the price the township pays for water from $17.60 to $20.82 per thousand cubic feet. The township in turn meters water to its customers by the gallon; 1,000 cubic feet is nearly 7,500 gallons.

Signal Seekers help model aviators take flight

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, July 10, 2011

Scott Pasting remembers well flying model planes in the parking lot of Madison Elementary on Harrison north of Five Mile in Livonia. His father, who built and flew his own control-line planes, got him interested in the hobby. Now he's hoping to get others involved in it.

The president of the Michigan Signal Seekers Radio Club of Westland, a member of the Academy of Model Aeronautics, Paschen is hoping events like a recent two-day Take Off and Grow open house at the club's airfield will help increase membership, which now hovers around 60 flyers, ranging in age from 6 to 80.

"We wrote the AMA and asked them for a grant and they gave us $1,000 to promote model aviation." said Paschen. "We had 35 kids who flew planes on buddy boxes those two days."

Club members fly everything from remote-controlled and engine to electric, glider and control-line airplanes as well as helicopters. They come in all sizes from small scale to giant scale where the aircraft can have wing spans of 85 to 130 inches.

Their airfield is on the grounds of former Wayne County Eloise on property owned by the Ford Motor Co. They have a 400-foot landing strip and a half-mile of clear airspace in all directions, according to Paschen. Club members, including instructors are usually at the field around 5-5:30 p.m. Wednesdays through September. They had met on the fourth Monday of the month at the Maplewood Community Center in Garden City, but the club needed to find a new meeting spot after the center was closed last week due to the city's budget

The club was founded in the 1960s and at one time had some 160 members. Its ranks have dwindled to 60 members who hail from Farmington Hills, Canton, Downriver and the east side of Detroit. There's even one member who comes occasionally from Howell.

Admittedly, building the airplane is the fun part, according to Paschen, but flying it requires training. He encourages people to get in touch with the club when it comes to flying them. The club has instructors to help aviation newbies learn how to fly their aircraft without crashing them. Considering planes can range from $100 to $1,000, depending on the size, crashing isn't a good thing, Paschen

"Planes can cost from $100 to tens of thousands of dollars," he said. "Giant scales can cost $1,000 to $1,500 when you're done building them. It used to be model kits included the balsa wood and you followed plans, now they're built in China and most airplanes come almost ready to fly. You have to do some assembly.'

Nankin Hardware and Hobby in Westland and the Prop Shop in Warren helped sponsor the open house. Nankin Hardware even gave the club a plane to use for training and to keep.

Recently retired from the Livonia Police Department, Paschen decided to become president in hopes of "getting the club going again and trying to promote the sport." He first got involved in flying with the Livonia Ribcrackers Model Airplane Club, then joined the Signal Seekers in 1981 when he was 14 years old.

He builds airplanes in the winter and flies them in the summer. He owns both electric and gas-powered airplanes and currently does sport flying. He also plans to go to Wisconsin in August to study aerobatics.

And he has a gift for seeing his future.

"I see a giant scale in my future," he said.

People can stop by the gated airfield on Wednesdays. The entrance is off Henry Ruff, just south of Michigan Avenue. Paschen recommends people looking to work with an instructor call the club at (313) 563-5143 or visit the club's website at www.michigansignalseekers.org.

Heed grown child's needs in medical emergency

GUEST COLUMNIST

Q: Dear Rick: Our 18-yearold daughter will be going out of state next month to begin her college education. I think we have all our ducks in a row from the standpoint of finances. We have the Michigan Education Savings Plan, which I think will pay the great majority of her college. The one issue there seems to be some confusion on is estate planning. I remember reading one of your past columns which discussed the importance of college kids doing some estate planning such as a will. When I mentioned this to a lawyer friend, he said since my daughter doesn't have any assets there's no reason to do a will. What do you think?

A: Congratulations to your daughter as she enters the next phase of her life. The best investment vou can ever make is in a quality education.

As to estate planning, I agree that a will is not essential for most typical 18-year-olds. A will is a document that takes effect upon death and it basically names who vou want to inherit your property and who should be in charge of vour estate.

However, in certain situations an 18-year-old should have a will such as if they have a child. If so, dealing with guardianship is something that is important. In addition, if 18-year-olds do have substantial financial resources, then it would make sense to consider a will and potentially even a

Even though a will is not important for an 18-year-old, it's still something that you may wish to have them do as it would show that they are adults and that they have to think like one. If that is the case, I recommend the Michigan Statutory Will. It's a free fill-inthe-blank will that is very good planning needs. And although a will is not that important for an 18-year-old,

for simple estate

that doesn't mean that estate planning is not essential. The planning I recommend for an 18-year-old doesn't deal with issues regarding death, but rather, handling medical issues and other types of emergency situations. Medical durable powers of attorney for example, would allow a parent to make medical decisions on behalf of a child in cases of an emergency. For parents of 18-year-olds, it is important to recognize that they are legal adults and parents no longer have legal rights when it comes to their children. Therefore, you run into the possibility that in a medical emergency parents may find they are totally shut out because they do not have a medical durable power of attorney.

Another type of power of attorney that parents may wish to obtain for an 18-year-old is a general durable power of attorney. A general durable power of attorney allows someone to operate on your behalf above and beyond medical.

For example, a general durable power of attorney may be used to deal with certain financial issues.

This document is important but it's not essential. Whether an 18year-old is going to college or not, I believe a medical durable power of attorney is important. After all, you don't want to be in the situation where there is a medical emergency and as the parent you have no rights and the doctors won't even talk to you. Therefore, spend a few minutes and do a medical durable power of attorney. One last note and that is you don't have to pay excessive legal fees to draft a medical durable power of attorney. You can do it for free. There are many free fill-inthe-blank forms and these forms fit the great majority of people. Download the free medical durable power of attorney at www. bloomassetmanagement.com by clicking on Legal Forms under the Bloom University tab.

When I went to college, no one heard of medical powers of attorney. If there was a health issue, parents almost always were immediately notified. In today's world it doesn't work that way. Therefore, to protect your family make sure that when your child does turn 18 they execute a medical durable power of attorney as their initiation into adulthood. Good luck!

Camp-out, movie night back in park

Canton Leisure Services' annual Family Camp-out and Movie Night, sponsored by Renewal By Anderson and Rosey's Romper Room, takes place Friday, July 15, and features the animated movie "Despicable Me."

Families are invited to celebrate the great outdoors and set up tents around the Heritage Park amphitheater. The movie, which is rated PG for rude humor and mild action, starts at dusk. There will be plenty of activities for the entire family beginning at 6 p.m. including the climbing wall; inflatable bouncer; face painting; children's craft; s'more making; family games and activities. Canoe rides will also be available for a nominal fee. In case of severe inclement weather, this animated movie will be shown that evening in the Summit gymnasium.

New this year, campers and RVs are now allowed to participate. Set-up of tents and campers will begin on Friday at noon. No advance reservation is necessary and the $15 camping fee will be collected on-site the day of the event. Anyone who'd like to come to the event but can't stay the night can pay a $5 fee per person to take part in the evening's activi-

Stabenow: Extend advanced battery grants

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, July 10, 2011

U.S. Sen. Debbie Stabenow has written and will introduce legislation Monday she hopes will add jobs to the advanced battery industry.

Using the A123 Systems facility in Livonia as a site for her press conference Friday, Stabenow announced the Battery Innovation Act will help spur research and development, develop raw materials for production, boost domestic manufacturing and create alternative and secondary use in the advanced batter industry.

A123 Systems is a developer and manufacturer of advanced Nanophosphate[®] lithium ion batteries and systems.

Stabenow points to A123's 1,000 jobs added in Michigan at the Livonia and Romulus plants as a success story of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act. That $2 billion in investment created billions more in investment from the private sector and created jobs nationwide.

ADVANCING ADVANCED BATTERIES

Stabenow called her proposal the first coordinated plan that incorporates raw materials, research and development, and manufacturing into advanced battery production.

"We need to have a comprehensive plan if we are to win the race (in advanced batter technology)," Stabenow said.

Stabenow's bill would create grants to entities working on advanced batteries, create an Energy Innovation Hub in Michigan for advanced science and engineering related to advanced batteries, and create a competition for research in battery durability and energy storage with a goal of building a car battery that can travel 500 miles on a charge.

It would create partnerships with businesses and universities that manufacture advanced batteries and their components, including software and system design and vehicle integration.

The legislation also would require the Secretary of the Interior to assess international and domestic supplies of these materials, and trade opportunities and barriers to advanced battery development.

Jason Forcier, vice president and general manager of A123's Automotive Solutions Group, said the act helps companies compete internationally.

Asian battery manufacturers pay a 3-percent duty on their finished batteries, while American companies pay more in tariffs just for the raw materials, 6.5 percent, imported from China to manufacture the same product. "So we really need a level playing field," Forcier said.

GRANTS BROUGHT GROWTH

Forcier said the ARRA's $2 billion helped companies like A123. "Half of the employees we hired were unemployed," Forcier said. "For those people who think that ARRA doesn't work, we hired 500 unemployed people out of our 1,000 employees."

Forcier said the company paid for 50 percent of investments in the new facility to match the federal grant money received two years ago to total $200 million from the two sources invested in the Livonia facility and another $100 million in Romulus.

Forcier said A123 took over a building that had been vacant for about 10 years. Located in a building that once housed Technicolor Videocassettes at 39000 W. Seven Mile, the plant manufactures prismatic cells and systems. The factory includes research and development, manufacturing of high-value components, cell fabrication, module fabrication and the final assembly of complete battery packs ready for vehicle integration.

Stabenow said her initiative would cost $2 billion. "It will not impact the deficit because we intend to stop the subsidies of the oil companies," she said.

the oil companies," she said.
Stabenow believes her legislation will pass, but it will take time. She expected hearings will take place in the fall on her initiative.

When asked how her Republican counterparts would react to it, Stabenow said: "There were 1,000 jobs created at A123. I would see it as a great investment. I think the public would want us to focus on jobs and they should talk to the people who represent them."

BATTERIES ARE 'BUILDING BLOCKS'

Sam Trinch, vice president of sales of automotive for A123, said the company has created batteries for 10 different vehicle models and is in development for 40 to 50 others. The Big Three has signed onto Stabenow's initiative, along with A123 Systems, Johnson Controls and others.

A123 creates battery cells, which are set inside modules. The modules are stacked up into packs, Trinch said.

"We call it building blocks," Trinch said. "It gives us flexibility in manufacturing." Larger packs are used in highperformance vehicles and trucks.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Many people are wrongly rejected when they apply for Social Security Disability benefits. Money was taken out of their paychecks for Social Security taxes to ensure that they would receive disability benefits if they could no longer work full-time. Sadly, the government denies approximately 60% of those who apply for disability benefits.

Attorneys J.B. Bieske and Jennifer Alfonsi have 42 years combined experience representing only Social Security disability clients. And they personally meet with all clients and appear personally at all court hearings. Many large firms assign inexperienced attorneys to your case. And some of these firms are located thousands of miles away and only fly the attorney in the day of the court hearing. Attorneys Bieske and Alfonsi have vast experience before local Michigan judges.

Attorneys Bieske and Alfonsi

can often make a winning difference at the application stage. And, if an appeal is necessary they have won several hundred cases before a court date is even set.

Those denied can appeal on their own but statistics for many years reveal that those represented by attorneys win a much higher percentage of appeals. And attorneys who specialize in Social Security Disability cases win a much higher percentage yet.

In addition to practicing only Social Security disability law attorney Bieske has written a book for attorneys about the subject and has been interviewed on various television programs. Both attorney Bieske and Alfonsi have also been interviewed on radio programs and have given speeches to many

Commission on Services to Aging holds public hearing

The Michigan Commission on Services to the Aging invites older adults, care givers, aging service providers and other interested parties to attend a public hearing 1:30-3 p.m. Friday, July 15, at Senior Services Inc., 918 Jasper St., Kalamazoo.

Comments received at this public hearing will contribute to shaping aging programs, targeting federal and state resources, and ensuring the public has a voice in how the interests of older Michigan citizens are best served. Topics for public testimony may include - but are not limited to - health and long-term supports and services, housing, nutrition, elder rights, caregiver needs, older volunteers and other programs that promote ways for older people to remain in their community with independence and dignity.

Both oral and written testimony will be accepted at this hearing. For those unable to attend, written testimony is welcomed, and may be forwarded to the Office of Services to the Aging via mail at P.O. Box 30676, Lansing, MI, 48909-8176; Attn: Carol Dye; via email to dyecar@michigan.gov; or faxed to (517) 373-4092.

The bi-partisan, 15-member Commission on Services to the Aging serves at the pleasure of the governor, advising policy makers on all matters relating to aging policies and programs. The Commission, which meets monthly, also approves how federal and state funds are distributed throughout Michigan.

This meeting is open to the public. Anyone needing accommodations to attend this meeting should contact Carol Dye at (517) 373-7876 at least five days prior to the meeting date.

Commission Lawrence Tech research key in remaking bridges

BY STEVE KOWALSKI ECCENTRIC STAFF WRITER

The oohs and ahhs were reserved for the collapse of a half-scale bridge during an Ultimate Load Test, but there was plenty to cheer for as Lawrence Tech engineering students tested the corrosion-free material that state and federal highway officials plan to use on bridges in future road projects.

The bridge split in two, once 254,000 pounds of force were applied to its center in an experiment Wednesday inside the university's Center for Innovative Material Research building.

The experiment was by the National Science Federation and the Michigan Department Of Transportation-Center of Excellence. The project was funded with a $300,000 federal grant, according to Nabil F. Grace, dean of the university's College of Engineering.

Conducting the experiment were eight graduate students, two post-doctorate students and two professors, Grace said.

No one was happier when the bridge collapsed than 14-year-old Daniel Kagan, who won a contest and a Lawrence Tech sweat shirt for making the closest prediction of when the bridge would fail. Kagan predicted the breaking point at 254,000 pounds.

"I had clues (from experts), between 240,000 and 260,000, and I chose the middle one," Daniel Kagan said, adding the break was "awesome, pretty cool."

Daniel, the son of Luba Kagan, an accountant at Lawrence Tech, will be a freshman in the fall at Farmington Hills Harrison. Daniel said he wants "to be a professional soccer player," and his mother is glad he had the chance to see engineering and science working together.

"It's good exposure for kids who have got no idea what they want to be when they grow up," she said.

Charles Elder, manager for graduate research projects, narrated the Ultimate Load Test for the crowd of guests, describing the weight and inches of deflection being applied to the bridge up until the collapse, which took the better part of an hour.

Elder was encouraged by the length of time the half-scale bridge remained in one piece before collapsing. Its weight capacity, and costs, are its biggest concerns, compared to bridges reinforced by "traditional steel," he said.

Bridges made of composite materials have several advantages, however, according to Elder.

Among them are:

• The avoidance of a traditional deck slab that usually requires frequent overlay or replacement every 20 years.

 Opportunity for engineers to inspect without difficulties experienced in the traditional box beam bridge system.

• Beams designed and constructed with corrosive-free reinforcements.

• It's designed for quick construction and deployment.

• Employs Ultra High Performance Concrete of about 30,000 pounds per square inch between the beams rather than the weak grout traditionally used.

"We'd like to achieve bridges that can sustain 90 to 120 years (of use) with minimum maintenance," Elder said after the experiment. "The goal here is to have a bridge not affected by salt or de-icing of roads."

Kirk T. Steudle, MDOT director, gave an introduction to the experiment and the type of materials contained in the composite half-scale bridge. When first experimented with years ago, a composite bridge cost 10 times more than the "traditional steel" model, he said. An increase in the use of the new materials has reduced the cost of a composite bridge to about twice the amount of a conventional bridge, according to Steudle.

Subtract from that the savings expected in bridge maintenance and price comparisons are inching closer to equal, Steudle said.

"It still costs more than conventional steel, but as (road projects) use more (composite materials) the cost is eventually going to equal," he told guests. "It's a longer lasting product and you pay for quality."

Interviewed after his address, Steudle said a composite bridge will be put in place at Pembroke Street over the Southfield Freeway in Detroit, which is currently undergoing an $80 million complete reconstruction from I-96 north past Eight Mile and into Southfield where the expressway becomes a road. Pembroke was chosen because it is more lightly traveled than the other bridges at Six, Seven and Eight Mile roads along the Southfield Freeway stretch, he said.

Steudle said a majority of bridges across the country are up to 50 years old, dating to 1955 with the passage of the U.S. Highway Act, which began the Interstate system.

"A lot of the bridges are 55 years old, have lasted 50 years, and if you look at them you see the corrosion that's happening," Steudle said.

Mark Brucki, executive director of economic development and government relations for university advancement, said Lawrence Tech is a leading researcher for corrosion-free long-lasting bridge design.

"The key is to make sure (the composite bridge) performs and exceeds the performance of steel," Brucki said.

Meet Whalers forward Alex Aleardi and you'll usually see a smile on his face.

Aleardi was smiling recently when he strolled into the Canton Public Library to read to children as part of the library's "Connect Your Summer" program.

As Aleardi met some 20 children and their parents, they started smiling, too. It's not always easy to hold the attention of a group of children from the ages of 3-10, but Aleardi did as he read "If You Give a Mouse a Cookie" by Laura Joffe Numeroff and then switched to Dr. Suess.

After reading, Aleardi suggested a group photo, and the children moved around him quickly, except for one little

Although she was as quiet and reserved as a 3-yearold can be, Lilli Hallanen of Canton did not want to participate in a group photo. To her credit, Lilli did not cry or whine. She finally joined the group photo, but with a great deal of reluctance.

Lilli came to the library hoping to see her friend, Tom Wilson, who is back home Toronto during the off-season. Nothing against Aleardi, but Lilli was hoping to re-connect with Wilson.

Lilli is part of the Whalers Extended Family.

Bachrouche headed to 2012 Olympic Games

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

Katya Bachrouche of Farmington Hills, following an outstanding career at the University of Virginia, plans to swim for Lebanon in the 2012 Olympic Games.

Farmington Hills swimmer will compete for Lebanon

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

In the world of sports, as in life itself, you go where the opportunity exists. For

Katya Bachrouche, that will mean a chance to compete in the next Olympics. Her ability as a swimmer has taken her from North Farmington High School to the University of Virginia and now to Lebanon. It seems all but a formality the 22-year-old Bachrouche will represent her other country at the 2012 Bachrouche Games in London. Bachrouche, a four-time state champion and an All-America honorable mention at Virginia, holds dual citizenship.

Her father, Nassif, is a native of Lebanon. Though she was born in Southfield and raised in Farmington Hills, Katya was able to be registered at birth as a Lebanese citizen through her father.

"I wasn't ready for my career to end, and I wanted to take it to the next level," said Bachrouche, who

Ex-Michigan cager Young thrives overseas as pro

Former Michigan center Chris Young (left) dunks during a Belgium Division I game. The Plymouth native has played 10 years overseas.

BY BRAD EMONS OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Fresh out of the University of Michigan in 2002, basketball player Chris Young remembers flying into Brussels, Belgium and feeling all alone.

"I stood around in the airport by myself for two hours, I had no phone or Internet," the Plymouth native recalled. "Somebody finally picked me up and took me to see a house the team arranged. They dropped me off and said, 'See you at practice tomorrow.' It was a difficult first month or two, but I finally said to myself, 'This is my life, get used to it.' It was a nice set-up once I got going.

And 10 years later, the 6foot-9, 255-pound Young is coming off his best professional season, along with making himself a home away from home.

He is currently under contract in Aalst, playing for General Okapi Aalstar in the Belgium Division I League.

The 1998 Detroit Catholic Central High grad averaged 13 points and 6.5 rebounds per game for second-place Allstar, which finished 22-10 and lost to first-place Charleroi in the finals of the league playoffs, 3-0, thus ending Young's season on June 4.

Young, who averaged 34 minutes per game, shot 58 percent from the field, while earning first-team All-League and Center of the Year honors.

In a 95-91 loss to Belgacom Liege Basket, Young scored 30 points, going a perfect 11-of-11 from the floor and 8-of-8 from the free throw line.

Canton Cardinal takes national baseball stage

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

If you watch Monday night's Major League Baseball Home Run Derby closely enough, you'll likely see one of Canton's rising young baseball stars sharing the stage with some of the world's best players.

Fourteen-year-old Canton resident Tyler Brooks was one of just 24 young athletes from across the country who earned a trip to Monday's Aquafina Major League Baseball Pitch, Hit & Run National Finals that will be held at Chase Field in Phoenix, Ariz.

Chase Field, which is the home of the Arizona Diamondbacks, will also host Monday night's MLB Home Run Derby and Tuesday night's MLB All-Star Game.

One of the perks of advancing to the PH&R National Finals - Brooks is one of three finalists in the 13-14 age group - is shagging balls during Monday's Home Run Derby.

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, July 10, 2011

In addition to Monday afternoon's PH&R competition, he and his father, Rob, will also be attending an All-Star breakfast, an All-Star Funfest and Tuesday's All-Star game.

"I'm looking forward to the entire experience," said Brooks, who will be a freshman at Salem High School in the fall. "It will be exciting to walk out onto the field, look around and take it all in."

The 6-foot-1 Brooks had to defy some amazing odds to reach Monday's finals. After winning a local competition held at the Canton Sports Center, he punched his ticket for Phoenix by out-performing fellow standouts at the sectional level of the event at Comerica Park.

"It's been an incredibly exciting experience for our whole family," said Brooks' mom,

Nora. "Everybody we've met at every level has been so positive. I'm happy for Tyler. He's worked hard; he deserves it."

The competition includes three baseball-related events. Points the athletes compile in each event are added together to determine the winners.

More than 600,000 youths between the ages of 7-14 participated in the competition across North America.

"For the pitching part of it, you throw six pitches (from a distance of 45 feet) toward a target," Brooks said. "Every time you hit the target, you get 75 points. I was six-for-six in the first round and five-for-six at Comerica Park.

"For the hitting, you hit three balls (off a tee) and try to hit it as far and as straight toward center field as you can. The distance you hit it away from the center-field line is subtracted from your distance. They use your best distance."

Each participant is also timed running from second base to home.

"My best event is probably the pitching," Brooks said. Brooks has racked up some lofty stats as a pitcher/infielder for the 14U Canton Cardinals this spring and summer. His batting average is a robust .350 while his earned run average is south of 2.00. Given his Motown roots, it's not surprising to learn which All-Stars he'd most like to run into on the Chase Field diamond Monday night.

"I'd like to meet (Detroit Tigers) Miguel Cabrera and Justin Verlander," he said, smiling.

A three-year honor roll student at Discovery Middle School, Brooks has two younger siblings: brother Matt and sister Alexis.

ewright@hometownlife.com (734) 578-2767

Fourteen-year-old Canton resident Tyler Brooks has qualified for the national final round of the Aquafina Pitch, Hit & Run competition, which will be held Monday in Phoenix as part of Major League Baseball's All-Star Game festivities.

"I guess you can say I'm like fine wine – I get better with age," said the 32-year-old of Lithuanian heritage (through his mother Carol Mykolaitis-Young). "I understand how to play and don't rely as much on my athletic ability. The game has slowed down for me. When I catch the ball in the block now I see things ahead of time. I guess I'm maturing and understand better how to play.'

Young's pro basketball odyssey has taken him to five different countries.

Besides six seasons in Belgium, he's also had stints in Italy (2003-04), Poland (2004-05), France (2007-08) and Germany (2007-08).

In November 2008, Young signed a contract with Spotter Leuven (Belgium) for the remainder of the 2008-2009 season, which was extended afterwards until 2010.

In summer 2010, he inked a two-year deal with Okapi Aalstar.

Young was an All-Observer and All-State player at CC before suffering through three uneventful seasons at Michigan for coach Brian Ellerbe.

But Young blossomed during his senior year at U-M under first-year coach Tommy Amaker, averaging 11.4 points and 5.7 rebounds per game.

Transitioning to the European brand of basketball from the Big Ten was certainly an eye-opener and a challenge for Young. "You can't compare it," he said. "The Big Ten plays aggressive. Over there (Europe) you can't be that physical. It's a little more finesse. When I first started out I fouled out of every single game. Every (European) league is like that. There's not a lot of contact."

After completing his 10th season overseas, Young feels he has more left in the tank going forward.

"I'd like to pursue it as long as I can and as long as my body will hold up," Young said. "I think I have four or five years left because I didn't play organized ball until I was 14.'

The arrival of a new coach, Brad Dean, also proved to be a Godsend.

received the Belgian Flemish MVP award.

"That was the biggest thing last year, we had an American coach who understands you can't kill people in practice," Young said. "We ramp it up the first part of the season, the first two months, but then we back it off."

Young has embraced not only the fans, but also the culture of Aalst, located 19 miles north of Brussels with a population of 77,000.

"We have the best fans in all of Belgium," Young said. "Our gym (Forum Aalst) seats 2,800 and it's packed every game. There's a 2,000 waiting list. People go nuts, go crazy. It's insane.

"And it's absolutely home for me. The U.S. is so big, so fastpaced and sometimes it's a rat race. Over there it's a slower pace. Sure, there some things I wish I had like being able to go to a Wal-Mart at 3 in the morning."

It also helps to have a companion along for the ride.

Young's wife Heather (formerly Zalewski) has a degree in Communications from the University of Michigan-Dearborn and helps navigate through three different languages (English, Flemish and French) spoken in the coun-

Heather Young also works for NATO and recently signed to play pro volleyball contract to play in Belgium.

"We usually get one day off per week and we travel as much as we can," Chris Young said. "We're a couple of hours from Paris and Amsterdam. We've seen many of the finer things. We've visited the Battle of the Bulge. We've been to Normandy. My wife loves it."

season for Zwolle, where he averaged 19.9 points. Wilson also earned Player of the Year honors in the Dutch Basketball League.

In 2008-09, he signed with the rival Magixx Kidsrights Nijmegen where he converted from the power forward to small forward position.

"My first year there wasn't a boatload of money, but I got my foot in the door," Wilson said. "The second year I was one of the leading scorers and it was a good experience."

In 2009, Wilson participated in summer showcase camp for import players in Las Vegas and migrated to Belgium D-1 League with Voo Verviers-Pepinster (for the '09-10 season).

"I had a great season individually, but it was a tough season for the team because we were in third place all year and didn't make the playoffs," Wilson said.

Last season, Wilson played for his fourth different team, the Giants, who also made a strong run during the seasonlong EuroChallenge where he appeared in 14 games (from Sept. 28 to March 1).

The Giants' season ended on May 21 when they fell to Oostende in the D-1 League playoff quarterfinals, 2-1.

"It was not my best season," Wilson said. "We played a slow-down offense and I'm more of a fastbreak player. I had to be a little bit smarter, find the open man and see the defense. I also played the 'four' position again and it kind of hindered me. I'm more used to getting up-anddown the court - running and dunking."

Wilson, however, gained valuable experience in 2010-11 as he appeared in a total of 49 games.

"I think I can play into my early 30s," he said. "I feel great. I've had my bumps and bruises, but I feel blessed not to have any serious injuries."

Wilson, however, said adjusting to the European style of play was initially difficult.

"It's a different type of game," he said. "I have to work on my smoothness, be a finesse player. There's an emphasis on fundamentals.

Darnell Wilson and his wife Stacey have enjoyed their overseas basketball stint in Belgium.

You can't be as aggressive like you can in college where they play hard defense and pressure up. The big man has got to be cautious in the post."

Wilson is in the midst of a two-year contract with the Giants and looks forward to his return in August for preseason training camp.

He and his wife, Stacey, whom Darnell met during his freshman year at Canisius, were married two years ago. Stacev came over to join Darnell after earning her Masters in social work from the University of Buffalo.

"She loves it," Darnell said. "She's a basketball housewife. She knows French and Flemish. They all speak English."

The only thing Wilson misses is a late run to Taco Bell. He has adjusted nicely to the Belgium culture.

"Everything shuts down at 5 (p.m.), but Antwerp is the best city I've played in," Wilson said. "It has a wide variety of places to eat and shop. We're 20 minutes from the dining district. We go to movies and restaurants.

We take our dog (a Yorkshire Terrier) out walking. On days off, we've gone to Paris, Brussels, Cologne . . . we travel and see a lot.

"During the winter there's not as much snow (as in Michigan). By late December it rains a good amount. But by March it warms up.'

Darnell and Stacey stay with his parents, Everett and Marcella, during the summer months. But he and Stacey plan to close on a house in Canton before they leave again for Belgium.

Wilson, meanwhile, keeps sharp by playing four times per week at High Velocity in Canton while also working out at Lifetime Fitness.

And as long as he can continue to play professionally, Wilson believes he has made a wise investment.

"The only thing I pay for is food," he said. "They give me an apartment, a car and all the (Nike) practice gear. And if you're smart with your money, you can make a good living.

EX- SCHOOLCRAFT COLLEGE CAGERS PLAYING OVERSEAS

Rudy Hatfield, 33: The Livonia Churchill High grad, who played at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, is an icon in the Philippines Basketball League. Known as the "H-Bomb" and "Mr. 110 Percent," the 6-foot-4 forward is a relentless rebounder who returned to the PBA after a threeyear absence to average 9.6 points and 12.4 rebounds in 23 games this season. He's played on three PBA championship teams after getting his pro start in 1999 with Coca-Cola. Despite his mother being Filipino, Hatfield's citizenship was revoked and was deported by the Department of Justice in 2004 before being reaffirmed by the Office of the President in 2005. Was once linked to famous Filipino actress Rufa Mae Quinto and did a movie and commercials. During his three-year hiatus, Hatfield entertained thoughts of becoming a pro wrestler or firefighter, but returned to the court in April of 2010. The born-again Christian, now married with two children, also worked for Mega City Ministries in Manilla helping Typhoon Ondoy victims. Kevin Melson, 33: The 6-6 forward became famous on Dec. 31, 1999 when he led Wright State to an upset 53-49 win over eventual NCAA champion Michigan State. Melson played last season for Leuven in the Belgium D-I League averaging 5.2 points in 23 games. He also played for N. Ferrara in the Italy-Lega 2.

Sam Hoskin, 32: The 6-9 Redford Bishop Borgess grad, who played at Eastern Kentucky and DePaul universities, was most recently seen in the Iran SuperLeague where he averaged 26.2 points and 14.5 rebounds under a two-month contract. The well-traveled Hoskin also has played in Israel, Greece, Croatia, China and Italy. His best seasons came with Russian teams Ural-Great Perm where he averaged 22.2 points (2004-05) and 16.3 points (2006-07). He also played for Dynamo Moscow. Rob Brown, 31: The 6-5 Brown, an Oak Park native, played his final two collegiate seasons at the University of Buffalo. The highflying forward, who dunks ferociously, signed a lucrative deal with in December with Derby Ace in the Philippines, but returned home after one game (scoring 29 points) to take care of a family emergency. Has also played in Israel, Iran, Argentina, Dominican Republic, Finland, Australia and Luxembourg. During the 2009-10 season he average 28 points and eight rebounds for Hapoel Haifa in Israel.

Mike Williams, 30: The silky smooth 6-8 forward, who led Western Michigan to the NCAA Tourney in 2004, played just seven games last season due to injuries in the Spanish D-I League with Sport Lisboa Benefica. In 2009-10, Williams appeared in 34 games with Vigo, averaging 8.1 points and 4.6 rebounds. Also played in the France Pro A League.

Gary Johnson, 29: The Wayne Memorial High grad, who led Central Florida to a pair of NCAA berths (including a 27-point first-round effort vs. UConn), has thrived in German Pro A League. The 6-2 guard led Chemitz to a 19-9 record and a third-place finish while averaging a team best 16.4 points, to go along with 5.2 rebounds, 3.1 assists and 1.9 steals. He shoots 50 percent from the floor and 78 percent from the line. Also played for Herten in the German Pro B League and enjoyed a stint in Ireland.

Ronald Dorsey, 28: The 6-5 forward from Detroit Pershing and McNeese State (La.) played most recently for the 16-12 Skytrans Cairns Taipans of the National Basketball League of Australia where he averaged 13.7 points and 4.9 rebounds per game. James Holmes, 28: The Belleville High and University of South Florida product played last season for Andorra of the Spanish League. The 6-3 guard averaged 10.8 points while shooting 49.8 percent from the floor in 40 games. Andorra finished 19-9 in the LEB Silver Division (fourth place).

Martin Samarco, 26: The 6-2 guard, another Belleville High grad who played collegiately at Bowling Green, averaged 16.9 points for Webmoebel of the German Pro A League. Samarco shot a blistering 55 percent from the floor and 83 percent from the foul line for 14-14 Webmoebel, which finished fourth. Samarco also played for the Holland Blast of the IBL.

book and newspaper. "He taught me leadership skills and he was a great man to learn from," Orr said. "The man had the biggest heart I've ever met. He loved Wayne and the kids. He loved to be there the minute he walked through the door. I never met a man who loved the school like him. It was remarkable.

"Back when he became my class sponsor, he was involved in the student activities and homecoming. When it came to the spirit and the culture of the school, Bill was always Brooks played football both at Adrian College and in the army (where he served in Germany during the Korean Conflict from 1951-53). He also played semi-pro baseball and raced stock cars before graduating from Eastern Michigan University.

Brooks began his teaching career in 1967 at Marshall Junior High in Wayne-Westland before moving over to Wayne Memorial High in

And that's where Brooks, who was later enshrined in the Wayne-Westland Sports Hall of Fame at Jake's Again Lounge, launched his P.A.

"Sometimes his play-byplay made the (visiting) coaches mad," Orr said. "I don't believe he ever missed a Wayne football or boys and girls basketball game since then. He showed up at every single game."

Brooks retired from teaching in 1995, but returned to the classroom at Wayne as a sub where he worked regularly until April when he was diagnosed with cancer.

"He was a soft guy even though it may have seemed he had a rough exterior," said longtime friend Bill Sexton. "He tried to bamboozle them with that grumpy attitude, but he put that on to keep them at bay." Brooks, Hays, Sexton and the late Don Graham were regulars at Wayne-Westland prep sports events, whether it involved Glenn or Wayne

Mud Hens finish 2nd in Sylvania

The 11-and-under Farmington Hills Mud Hens were finalists in the Sylvania (Ohio) Fourth of July Tournament, winning five straight games before losing to Highland Heights (Ohio) in the championship game.

The Mud Hens scored a total of 91 runs in the six games while only giving up 39. The team's batting average during tournament play was

The Mud Hens trounced the Sylvania Mavericks Blue in their first game, 15-3, but pitcher Kevin Korte was rushed to a hospital after being hit with a line drive.

Korte, who was checked out and released that day, returned in time to play several innings of the next game against Royville

At the time of Korte's return, Royville had runners at first and second with one out. Korte made a spectacular line-drive grab over third base and turned a double play, tagging third base and throwing to first.

The play inspired the Mud Hens as they mercied Royville by a score of 21-8 and their next two opponents, too. The Novi Heat Black and Milan (Ohio) Road Warriors went down to 15-4 and 17-6 defeats.

The four victories made the Mud Hens the No. 1 seed for the playoffs. They defeated the Next Level Copperheads in a semifinal game, but their 20-11 victory took a lot out of the Mud

Playing back-to-back games, Farmington Hills had little time to rest before taking on a strong Highland Heights team in the championship game. The Ohioans won, 7-3

"The Hens played excellent baseball this weekend and were prepared for a tough battle against some very solid teams," Mud Hens manager Roger Parsons said. "All of our players did extremely well and made key plays, which contributed to our team's success, when we needed them."

Great hitting was another key factor as the Mud Hens racked up 93 hits in the tournament. Five players batted over .500 for the series.

Jack "The Ripper" Budde led the team in hits and batting average as he went 12-for-17 for a .706 batting average. Dylan "Bam-Bam" Parsons went 11-for-19 (.578), Mitchell "Big Poppy" Knedgen 11-for-20 (.550), Dom "The Bomb" Lanni 9-for-18 (.500) and Will "The Thrill" McLellan 10-for-20 (.500).

Blake Bean, Shane Saxton, Vic Mencotti, Kevin Korte and Harsh Purani contributed 40 hits to the effort, and all the boys made key defensive plays at critical points in the tourna-

Rams steal win vs. Chief Pontiac

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, July 10, 2011

It's been an up-and-down summer for the Michigan Rams in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

On Wednesday, the 20-and-under squad pulled out a 4-3 walk-off victory over Chief Pontiac with three runs in the bottom of the seventh at Bicentennial Despite being out-hit 8-2, the Rams evened their LČBL mark to 11-11.

Walks, wild pitches and errors cost 22-and-under Chief Pontiac (7-14) its three-run advantage.

Pat Lancaster crossed home with the bases loaded for the winning run, while Mark Weist, Evan Piechota and Mike Carson tallied the other Rams runs.

Josh Deeg went 3-for-4 with an RBI, while Mike Musary added two hits and knocked in a run for Chief Pontiac.

Zach Wedesky, who pitched three scoreless innings of relief of starter Jeff Sorenson, got the victory. Wedesky allowed three hits, walked two and struck out two.

Deeg, who walked four of five batters, was the losing pitcher in relief. He had four wild pitches and was the victim of two errors.

Starter Zane Birchler gave up just one run on two hits. He walked three and hit five batters

PRIDE 6, RAMS 2: On Tuesday, Kevin Zak went 2-for-3 with two RBI as the 22-and-under Michigan Pride (13-7) turned back the Rams

(10-11) in an LCBL clash at Ford Field

Logan Curtis and Garrett Green also knocked in runs for the Pride, who were out-hit 6-4 in the make-up game (rainout from June

Winning pitcher Charlie Fisher allowed two runs on five hits and five walks over the first five innings. Randall Stempek pitched two scoreless innings of relief, allowing one hit and

The two Pride pitchers combined for six strikeouts.

Evan Piechota and Miles Sorise each had an RBI for the Rams.

Rams starter Greg Spiess, who gave up three earned runs on three hits and five walks, took the loss. He struck out five before giving way to reliever Jay Perry, who gave up two unearned runs in two innings of work.

BULLS 3, RAMS 1: The first-place Michigan Bulls (17-4) got a complete-game, four-hitter Tuesday from pitcher Mark Heard to beat the Rams (10-10) in an LCBL make-up game at Ford Field.

Heard went all seven innings, scattering six hits and one walk while fanning eight. The Bulls, taking advantage of two Rams errors, rallied for three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Livonia Stevenson High grades Jeff Sorenson and Evan Piechota each collected two hits in the setback. Sorenson had the lone Jacob Rhodes knocked in a run for the Bulls. Losing pitcher Mike Schypinski, the Rams starter, worked the first 5.1 innings allowing all three runs (all unearned) on four hits and four walks. He struck out four before Zach Wedesky got the final two Bulls batters in the bottom of the sixth.

SUMMER SPORTS CAMPS

Canton wrestling camp

Canton High Schools wrestling program will conduct a four-day camp July 11-14 at the school gym. Offering the camp is the Advantage Wrestling Club, run through Eastern Michigan University.

The camp will be 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. all four days, for students entering grades 7-12 in 2011-12.

Emphasis will be on running, lifting, technique, drilling, intense practices and end of the day competitions. Another plus will be one counselor per 10 wrestlers for plenty of individual attention.

The cost to sign up is $200. Contact Canton head wrestling coach Cory Mancuso (cory.mancuso@gmail.com) or EMU head wrestling coach Derek Delporto (Derek.delporto@emich.edu) or call (734) 487-6429 for more information.

graduated this year from Virginia. "I'd heard of other swimmers who were dual citizens representing their other countries.

"In the U.S., it's very, very competitive to make the Olympic team. Not to say I'm a bad swimmer, but you have to be a top-notch, world-class, record holder of some sort to make the American team.

"It was always my dream since I was young to go to the Olympics. It's every athlete's dream. That's the highest level you can get to. I knew I had dual citizenship, so I told my dad I wanted to swim for Lebanon."

Her father, with the help of a cousin who's a general in the Lebanese army, made the right connections with sports officials to make them aware of Katya's desire and talent.

"He went over during Christmas break 2010. I said: 'Please, put in a word for me. I'm here; I'm Lebanese; I'm a swimmer,' Bachrouche said. "My dad talked to the right people; now they know who I am. I owe a lot to my dad for making this possible, for talking to people."

During a family trip to Lebanon in June, Bachrouche received her Lebanese passport, which she will need in August to represent Lebanon at the World University Games in China.

The trip, which had been planned to coincide with Bachrouche's college graduation, served a dual purpose. She had never met her grandfather and hadn't seen her grandmother since she was 6 years old.

"Because of my swim career, I've never been able to take enough time off to go over there," Bachrouche said. "Getting to know (her grandparents) was so special, wonderful and meaningful. After the first day, it was like I knew them my whole life."

Bachrouche, who is fluent in the Arabic dialect spoken in Lebanon, will return in September to officially earn her spot on the Olympic team at the national meet. For someone with her ability, there seems little doubt she will make the team.

"Lebanon is still a developing country in swimming, which means the competition is a lot less intense than it is in the U.S.," Bachrouche said. "Hopefully, it shouldn't be as difficult as it is

"I definitely want to make a good impression; so I'm going to be training for it, and I'm going into it as if it was an American

"Hopefully, by going there and swimming for Lebanon, I'll bring a new wave of improvement for the sport there. I hope it will make people in Lebanon more aware of the sport of swimming and, if you train hard, this is what you can Bachrouche met the U.S. Olympic qualifying standards in the 400- and 800-meter freestyle. Those are her favorite events and the ones she expects to swim for Lebanon.

The U.S. Olympic Trials are still a year away. Bachrouche could have opted for those tryouts, but Lebanon offered the more certain prospect.

"As a swimmer, you pretty much know how you stand with the rest of the country," she said, adding she was 20th at a U.S. national meet last summer. "You have a general idea how you would stack

You have to be No. 1 or 2 in the country to make it. I don't think between now and then I would move up that quick.

"I guess people don't understand. As swimmers, we understand where we stand. There's just a lot of talented swimmers in the U.S.

At the Olympics, Bachrouche knows she'll be up against not only the best U.S. swimmers but superstars from other countries, too.

"I have a good gauge on where I stand among the top dogs," she said. "My coach and I think I could do pretty well compared to the rest of the world — maybe not medal but definitely beat a lot of people."

Bachrouche is excited and pleased to be on the verge of realizing her longtime ambition to be in the Olympics.

"For my family in Lebanon, I'm proud to represent the country and city where my family is from," she said. "It extends way past me.

"It'll be a real proud moment for me, my friends, my dad and my family. Just to have the opportunity, to do something not everybody gets to experience.

BACHROUCHE BIOGRAPHY: Katya Bachrouche of Farmington Hills was a four-time, All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection and one of the best swimmers in the University of Virginia history.

On the all-time list of UVA best times, she ranks second in the 500 freestyle (4:38.56), second in the 1,650 freestyle (16:03.52), third in the 1,000 freestyle (9:40.96) and fourth in the 400 IM

Competing in her second consecutive NCAA championship meet, Bachrouche was 12th in the 500 freestyle and 10th in the 1,650 freestyle, earning All-America honorable mention in both.

She broke a 10-year-old UVA record in the 500 freestyle at the ACC championship, and she broke her own record when she swam 4:38.56 in the NCAA meet. A teammate broke Bachrouche's record in one of the following heats,

She finished second in the 500 freestyle and 1,650 freestyle at the ACC championships. She also was fourth in the 400 IM.

Bachrouche was slowed by injuries early in her college career, requiring ankle surgery the first year and knee surgery the second. "I didn't start to reach my full potential until my third and fourth years," she said. "I wish I had one more year to see how much more I could improve." Bachrouche will spend the next year training at Virginia while she pursues a masters degree in education and prepares for the 2012 Olympics.

"Being able to swim another year for Lebanon kinda fills that void, although it's a different environment and a different kind of racing," she said.

"I wouldn't trade anything for my four years at Virginia. I was part of a special team, and the girls who were on the team with me will be like family the rest of my life.

Nursing career opens pathways to opportunities

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN CORRESPONDENT

As a college student, Caroline Trapp never dreamed nursing would lead her down so many different paths even though a speaker talked about the possibilities. Convinced it was the career for her, Trapp earned bachelor and master's of science degrees in nursing at the universities of Michigan and Pennsylvania before returning to Ann Arbor to complete a certificate as an Adult Nurse Practitioner in 1998. After more than 25 years Caroline Trapp in the field, she's done everything from producing a video on nutrition to developing curriculum for a plant-based diet.

"I never thought I'd have the chance to travel to China, the South Pacific, to lecture in Hawaii," Trapp said.

Many of Trapp's opportunities arose as director of diabetes education and care for the Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine based in Washington, D.C. in 2007. The position requires Trapp to present educational programs in foreign locations as well as closer to her Farmington Hills

The nonprofit PCRM promotes a plant-based diet to prevent and reverse diseases such as heart disease, diabetes and cancer.

"Part of the fun is meeting people from all over," said Trapp. "These health care professionals have become a support group. They're likeminded people enthusiastic about their work. They see people get well."

At home, she encourages patients of Premier Internists. a division of Millennium

Medical Group, not to eat meat or dairy products. A diabetes educator and nurse practitioner, she practices what she preaches. For the last six years, she has not eaten meat, fish or dairy products.

Trapp's travels only confirm her beliefs about the health benefits of not eating meat or dairy products. In the Marshall Islands, 2,000 miles west of Hawaii, she met a man who had been in a wheelchair due to neuropathy. He was dancing and walking after taking part in a diabetes intervention project that taught participants to eat and cook without meat and dairy products.

"I was teaching in nursing schools and hospitals the importance of the plant-based diet," said Trapp. "I met a man who had nightly chest pain and it was gone.'

Trapp suffered with chronic joint pain that vanished after about a month of eating a plant-based diet. In her practice, Trapp has seen diabetics reduce or eliminate a patients' need for medication. She's also seen two cases of mercury poisoning caused by eating large amounts of tuna.

"I've noticed how much more energy I have," said Trapp. 49. "Even patients with osteoarthritis have been helped."

PLANT-BASED DIET

Trapp is so convinced that consuming a plant-based diet can reverse type 2 diabetes she has developed curriculum for nutrition and cooking intervention programs around the country. It all began in 2006 when she took part in a PCRM pilot project to introduce healthy eating to people with diabetes seen by physicians of the Millennium Medical Group in Southfield. A class Trapp developed is now offered by more than 30 Food for Life instructors, with plans to expand to a multiweek program in fall.

Most recently, Trapp coordinated the Food for Life Cooking and Eating to Beat Diabetes program sponsored by PCRM, the Indian Pueblo Cultural Center, and the Institute for Indian Arts. The collaborative effort includes classes on nutrition and cooking demonstrations for Native Americans with diabetes in New Mexico and Arizona.

Trapp was stunned to find the Marshallese and Native Americans ate a similar meatcentered, highly processed diet that's linked to diabetes and

"You see the same growing rate of diabetes and heart disease," said Trapp. "Native Americans are like the canary in the coal mine, demonstrating the disease risk all Americans face. Removed from their traditional diet, they have the highest rates of diabetes in the country."

Nearly one out of every five Native Americans has diabetes, according to PCRM. Over the years, white flour, sugar, canned meat, and fast foods replaced their traditional diet of beans, squash and corn. The "Three Sisters" were the main agriculture crops for Native Americans who interplant maize, squash and climbing

"I saw in New Mexico and Arizona people were at the point they were receptive to something new," said Trapp.

APPRECIATION

The horse blanket on the back of the living room couch attests to the appreciation of Native Americans. Trapp is equally grateful for the gift that began with a nutritionist from the Navajo Natives Special Diabetes Project shearing a sheep then weaving the wool. She received the handiwork as a thank you for being keynote speaker last March at the 10th annual Native Women & Men's Wellness Conference presented by the American Indian Institute in Albuquerque in March. More than 100 tribes were present. It was the first time Trapp was preceded by dancers in colorful regalia.

"It's so special to me," said Trapp, who plans to hang the black and white work of art on a wall. Trapp's curio cabinet in the living room is filled with memorabilia from her trips to China and the Marshall Islands.

In the U.S., Trapp has spoken from coast to coast about diabetes and vegan/vegetarianism nutrition, most recently in April at the Maine Dietetic Conference. Locally, she gives guest lectures at Wayne State University College of Nursing and as adjunct faculty at the University of Michigan School

Physician group advocates for plant-based diet

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN CORRESPONDENT

Caroline Trapp had already toyed with the idea of becoming a vegetarian by the time she picked up one of Dr. Neal Barnard's books. As founder of the Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine (PCRM), he has promoted a plant-based diet and conducted clinical research on its' ability to prevent and reverse heart disease, diabetes and cancer since

One of his studies found that although the standard American Diabetes Association effectively treats the disease, plant-based, low fat meals dramatically reduce blood sugar and cholesterol levels in addition to promoting weight loss.

Barnard has written several books on topics that include reversing diabetes with a diet of grains, legumes, fruits and vegetables. His recent book, 21-Day Weight Loss Kickstart, promises to boost metabolism, lower cholesterol and dramatically improve

Trapp had health concerns when she learned about PCRM while attending a nursing conference. She had ordered a vegetarian plate and "was surprised by how good it tasted." Shortly after, she started e-mailing Barnard who invited her to spend a day at the PCRM office in Washington, D.C. The nonprofit organization provides educational

Caroline Trapp passes out bracelets that sport the message, "I choose healthy foods," at a Marshall Islands school assembly. About half of adults over the age of 35 in the Marshall Islands have type 2 diabetes, largely because they east a diet of processed and meaty materials as well as diabetic and Cancer Project cooking classes aimed at prevention.

"It gave me confidence to talk to my patients about type 2 diabetes. I suddenly realized I was not alone," said Trapp, a nurse practitioner at Premier Internists in Southfield.

Before long, Barnard invited her to teach curriculum he was using and then offered her a full time position as director of diabetes education and

"Patients are coming to the practice because they've heard of the intensive lifestyle change," said Trapp. "Blood sugars have gone from 300 and 400 to 100. Diabetes medications prolong people's agony. It's not a cure and has known side effects. We have to use what is known about nutrition. One major concern is fat and animal pro-

"Everybody is clear that dietary fat is linked to heart disease, but also insulin resistance. Dairy foods are high in fat, with a speck of calcium in a package full of hormones, injected and natural, and antibiotics which are increasing antibiotics resistance in humans," explained Trapp.

Trapp has done research to back up her claims. These facts were presented in her written testimony for the U.S. Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry field hearing May 31, at Michigan State University.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), 29.6 percent of Michigan's population is obese and some 9 percent are suffering from type 2 diabetes. A recent study estimated that between 1998 and 2000 obesityrelated diseases cost Michigan nearly $3 billion in health care expenses. More than 60 percent of all deaths in the U.S. are from diseases linked to unhealthy diet: heart disease, cancer, stroke, diabetes, liver disease, and high blood pressure.

Diabetes prevalence will increase to 1 in 3 adults by 2050, compared to approximately 1 in 10 today. Approximately one-third of children born in 2000 will develop diabetes at some point in their lifetimes. Research has shown that meat and dairy consumption significantly increases diabetes risk.

An estimated 70 percent of colorectal and prostate cancers and 50 percent of breast, endometrial, pancreatic, and gallbladder cancer

While Trapp came to her decision to eat a plant-based diet strictly based on health concerns, she says, "it's very gratifying that the way I eat doesn't support cruelty to animals and environmental pollution, the amount of oil it takes to get food to your plate, what it takes to produce a hamburger."

She has a problem with eating fish

"As a health care professional I developed recognition of the bigger picture," said Trapp. "A good example is fish. Fish get Omega 3 fatty acids from eating plants. Humans can get Omega 3 from eating walnuts, flax seed, hemp milk, and green, leafy Fish is full of saturated fat. Salmon is 50 percent fat."

Fishing impacts the environment, too, said Trapp.

"The oceans have been so overfished they have to go further and further out. How much oil does it take to fish?"

of Nursing.

Her hectic schedule doesn't stop there. Trapp just finished going live with The Nurses Nutrition pages on the Web site pcrm.org. It is a network for nurses to access patient and professional educational resources. She also helped produce a DVD, A New Approach to Nutrition for Diabetes, by Trapp continues to learn from Native Americans like chef Walter Whitewater. A Native American chef and food historian, Frank converted a recipe for Indian Fry Bread, an unhealthy staple, for the Food for Life program. Trapp presents on the experience of developing the Native American nutrition curriculum at the American Association of Diabetes Educators conference in August in Las Vegas.

"My hope is that other Native American organizations and health care professionals will take the curriculum and try it out," said Trapp. "PCRM makes it available at no cost. We're planning a second DVD and classes are being held currently in Santa Fe and Albuquerque, drawing natives from pueb-los. My other hope is to offer the curriculum to Native Americans locally."

In addition to developing plant-based cooking and nutrition classes, Trapp is trying to influence legislators. On May 31, she attended a field hearing on the 2012 Farm Bill at Michigan State University. The U.S. Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry, chaired by Michigan Sen. Debbie Stabenow, held the hearing. Afterward, Trapp submitted written testimony about her concern "over the health crisis being caused by the growing obesity rates in Michigan and throughout the country" as well as the increasing prevalence of type 2 diabetes. She says it's alarming and troubling because it is largely preventable.

"The Farm Bill dictates how federal money is spent to support agriculture. Currently it supports cheap meat and dairy," said Trapp. "There's not a lot of talk about health implications. If we continue to subsidize meat and dairy we do it at the peril of our families."

According to Trapp, in recent history, more than 60 percent of agricultural subsidies have directly and indirectly supported meat and dairy production. Less than 1 percent went to fruits and vegetables. Trapp suggests supporting farmers by encouraging them to produce fruits and vegetables. Michigan is already a leading producer of crops such as apples, cherries, blueberries and edible dry beans.

"We can still support our farmers and everybody can afford healthy foods."

Support from family is one of the reasons Trapp has been able to follow so many different paths during her nursing career. In December, she leaves for Washington, D.C., to train instructors for the Cancer

Project and Food for Life nutrition and cooking classes. Before then, she'll be at the computer writing an article for Diabetes Spectrum, a professional jour-

FAMILY SUPPORT

Caroline and Bill Trapp have been married 23 years in August and have two sons, Davis, 18, who'll be attending Michigan State University in fall, and Baxter, 20, a student at Central University. Both graduated from North Farmington High School. Trapp grew up in Farmington Hills and lived in Philadelphia and Plymouth before moving back 11 years ago. Bill's family owns George W. Trapp Company, producers of doors and windows in Redford.

"I've been really lucky the kids are at an age where it's possible to be away from home," said Trapp. "My husband is a good sport and tremendously supportive."

Trapp is still looking for health care professionals to train as instructors for the cancer Project and Food for Life nutrition and cooking class. Email her at ctrapp@pcrm.org.

Family fun day benefits bleeding disorder research

Our Hope Holds The Cure will hold its 2nd annual Hope Fest to raise funds and awareness of a bleeding disorder called HHT, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday July 30 in Heritage Park, 1150 Canton Center Road, Canton.

The event, the largest of several fundraisers, will offer food and entertainment, including a DJ and performances by Central City Dance of Canon. This is a fun family event, with several bounce houses, a rock climbing wall and carnival games for the kids.

Last year, the volunteerdriven Our Hope Holds The Cure raised both awareness and $65,000 over several months. This year their goal is to double those results with a day of fun, sun, and activities at the 2011 Hope Fest.

Admission is free and no advance registration needed. Donations and all proceeds will go directly to the HHT Foundation International.

HHT, or Hereditary Hemorrhagic Telangiectasia, is an incurable genetic disorder that causes abnormalities in the blood vessels (AVMs) that can result in bleeding in the lining of the nose, mouth, brain, lungs, liver and gastrointestinal system.

www.dollhospital.com

HHT can result in stroke,

hemorrhage and heart failure - leaving patients with HHT and their families living in constant fear of a potentially catastrophic life event.

Our Hope Holds The Cure was founded by Jody Nissan of Canton. With the health of her husband and children at stake, Nissan is on a mission to make a difference in the lives of those with HHT. The mission of Our Hope Holds The Cure is dedicated to raising money for continued research into a cure for HHT, increase awareness of HHT and its effects, and provide regional support for families affected by HHT through an annual fundraising campaign located in and around Southeast Michigan.

HHT impacts one in 5,000 Americans, and approximately 1.2 million people worldwide. Ninety percent of individuals with HHT are undiagnosed. Failure to detect and treat HHT-related AVMs can cause brain abscesses, hemorrhage, stroke, liver, lung and heart failure, disability and death.

Twenty percent of children with HHT die prematurely from stroke.

Dr. Polona Zalar of the University of Ljubljana specifically identified black yeasts Exophiala dermatitis and E. phaeomu-riformis which are known to be dangerous to human health. To add to the alarm, a statement was made by a person of responsibility saying that, "One thing that is not in the report is that we tested the dishes after they had been cleaned in these dishwashers and they were full of this black yeast, so too the cutlery that you put in your mouth. We just don't know how serious this containing bleach I know how ill-informed he is as well. Bleach will remove the oil in the rubber seal, causing the seal to dry up and crack and the next thing you know we will have thousands of leaky dishwashers. I've said for years that dishwashers with recommended hot water temperatures at 120 degrees were a cause for concern because that water temperature didn't kill bacteria. At a meeting with engineers from different appliance manufacturers, including the head of the U.S. Health Department, I recommended that dishwasher water temperature should be increased to 155 degrees or more. Today that is the case, and I know we are using safer dishwashers than in the past.

As for appearance of this black fungi discovered by these scientists, I used to do service calls on these products and always loved to inform customers on how to maintain things on their own. I would open the door of a dishwasher and carefully reach inside just over the lip of the bottom cavity of the tub. I would rub my finger on the inside surface and it would come out all dark and greasy looking. That was undissolved detergent which would build up over years. To get rid of it I would recommend the Tang treatment, which I've written about so many times. I don't think these scientists took the motor and pump assembly apart to observe the build up of detergent on the pump impellers. If they had, they might have had to dress in coveralls with hoods so the black yeast wouldn't catch them.

It might serve greater purpose to do a study on what appliance repair technicians are dying from. I'm sorry, but I don't go along with a group from a school in a little country on the other side of Italy that creates attention by alarming every homeowner in America. Maybe it's time for the University of Michigan to get involved. If so, I would like them to see what is in the inside of a hot water heater. Stay tuned.

EDWARDS, BEVERLY J. Of Grass Lake, age 70, went to be with the Lord June 30, 2011 surrounded by her loving family. She was preceded in death by her parents, William and Edna Solomon. Bev is survived by her loving and devoted husband of 49 years, Cliff; daughter, Lisa (Curt) Lapham; son, Cliff (Hillary) Edwards Jr.; six grandchildren; three great grandchildren; brothers, William (Nicki) and Warren (Beatrice) Solomon; several nieces and nephews. Bev was an example of love and devotion as a child of God, wife, mother, grandmother and great grandmother. As a lifelong Christian, Bev was a 35 year member of Grass Lake Assembly of God where she mentored countless children through her years of teaching Sunday School, Junior Church, and passing out sticks of gum and smiles from her favorite pew. A devoted and much loved teacher of 35 years in the Garden City School District, Bev continued her love of teaching through substituting and assisting her six grandchildren with countless school projects. She spent her final hours surrounded by her loving family, never failing to make them smile through her humor and love for life. She has promised to send us all a picture text from heaven with a view from her golden golf cart. Services were held July 5, 2011 at Grass Lake Assembly of God. Six things young adults should know about managing health

Despite perceptions that young adults consider themselves young and invincible, the majority of Americans, ages 18-26 are taking an active role in maintaining their health.

Two out of three young adults have a usual source of health care, and most are seeing a physician at least once a year for wellness exams and other preventive services, according to a nationwide poll conducted by Harris Interactive on behalf of the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP).

"Young adults seem to understand the correlation between having an ongoing relationship with a primary care physician and creating a healthy future," says Dr. Roland Goertz, president of the AAFP, "But unfortunately when it comes to managing their health, they, like many others, often lack the experience or desire to navigate the complex health care system."

The health care reform law now enables young adults, up to age 26, to be covered under their parent or guardian's insurance plan.

"As more provisions of health care reform become effective, such as when restrictions related to pre-existing conditions are lifted, even more young adults will have access to health care," Goertz says. "Family physicians stand ready to provide the care they need, when and where they need it."

As more young people take advantage of this benefit, the AAFP offers the following tips to help them make the most of their health care interactions. • Establish a relationship with a family physician who will know you and your health history. Family physicians provide comprehensive care to people of all ages - ranging from preventive services to the diagnosis and treatment of acute illness and chronic conditions. They also treat depression and other mental health conditions. Most importantly, family physicians make it convenient for patients to get the care they need. Seventythree percent offer same-day appointments, nearly half offer early morning and evening appointments, and 27 percent communicate with patients via

These services are all parts of the patient-centered medical home model of care. Under this model, family physicians coordinate care across all settings, including doctors' offices, hospitals and many other services that make up our complex and confusing health care system. Key medical home technologies, such as electronic health records, enable health care professionals to communicate with one another and stay updated on mutual patients' medical conditions and courses of treatment. This eliminates duplication, lowers costs and improves quality and patient satisfaction. • Be open and honest with your doctor. Taking an active role in your health care can help you get the best care possible. Be sure to disclose any current and past health care issues or concerns. It's important to share any information you have, even if you're embar-

• Ask questions. Don't be afraid to speak up if you have questions or concerns. It's important to let your doctor know if you don't understand something. If you have questions before your appointment, write them down and ask them during the exam. Be sure to write down the most important questions first to make sure they get answered, and tell your doctor when you need more time to talk.

· Play an active role in your medical decision making. Research shows that patients who are more involved with their care tend to get better results. You have a say in your medical treatment. If you aren't comfortable with a prescribed course of treatment — like taking medicine, scheduling a test or scheduling an appointment with a specialist — let your doctor know. Patients and doctors who share decision making are more likely to identify treatment plans they can both agree on.

• Make sure your personal doctor is in charge of your care. This is especially important if you have many health problems or are in a hospital. Make sure that all members of your health care team know about all prescriptions and over-the-counter medicines you are taking, including dietary supplements such as vitamins and herbs. Also, make sure your doctor knows about any allergies and adverse reactions you've had.

· Understand your medical bills and keep medical paperand understand medical bills and explanations of benefits to know what's covered, what not covered, and why. Consolidate your medical care, health history and medical records, and organize your medical paperwork so you can review it easily if questions arise. Keep your medical receipts if you have a health savings account; you may be need to show them for tax purposes.

Health officials urge measles protection

Department of Community Health (MDCH) is advising Michigan residents to get the measles vaccine because there are more cases of the highly contagious disease reported in the country this year than any time since

The Michigan

"This is especially important for persons planning international travel, because the current U.S. situation is largely the result of measles outbreaks occurring elsewhere in the world," stated Dr. Dean Sienko, acting chief medical executive, MDCH. "But it's also important that non-travelers be protected. We have to keep our guard up against measles by having as many of our citizens protected as possible. This is an easily preventable disease."

According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), there have been more than 150 cases reported so far. In a typical year, there are about 50 cases. Cases have appeared in more than 20 states, and in some instances outbreaks have resulted. So far, there has been one case in Michigan.

Measles is very easily transmitted. The virus spreads to others when an infected person sneezes or coughs. A person is contagious before the characteristic rash appears. It can spread through casual and brief contact.

Health officials have been tracking large outbreaks of measles in several European countries as well as parts of Africa and Asia. Most of the cases in the U.S. have been traced to travel or other connections in those areas.

Since summer is a traditional travel season, officials say there are more opportunities for measles virus to be brought into the U.S.

Symptoms include a high fever, eye inflammation, a cough, and a runny nose, followed by an extensive rash. It takes about two weeks for symptoms to develop, and the ill person can spread the measles virus to others from four days before the rash appears to four days after. Some people can get much sicker from measles and may be hospitalized with pneumonia or, rarely, encephalitis.

All children routinely are vaccinated against the disease. They receive two doses by the time they start kindergarten. However, some may miss or delay measles vaccination. Adults also must be sure they are vaccinated.

Additional information on measles is available at http://wwwnc.cdc.gov/ travel/notices/in-the-news/ measles.htm

Arthritis Today JOSEPH J. WEISS, M.D. RHEUMATOLOGY

WHEN LESS IS NOT MORE

A favorite expression to show the benefits of economy is the saying: Less means more." Such words do not hold for a person with bad knees.

with painful knees not walk, but by not walking, the individual loses strength and stamina. The result is that stopping activity increases fatigue.

Doctors often hear people who have bad knees complain that their arthritis is spreading. These patients note that stiffness is debilitating in the morning, being present not only in the knees, but in the shoulders, hips and legs. The doctor usually has a difficult time explaining to patients that the arthritis is not worsening; rather the body from lack of exercise is getting more and more out of shape.

Treatment is not more pills, but increased activity.

Patients protest, saying how is it possible to move more, when they can hardly walk at all. That response creates a challenge for the doctor. He finds it difficult to tell the patient that despite the pain, the person should keep walking; the effort will reward the person with steps that are easier to take

That result does not always happen on the initial attempt leaving the patient with the feeling of being deceived. However, the doctor's advice is correct; the person must persist, if he or she is to prevail.

The best treatment for bad knees is knee replacement, but poor health or a deep skepticism about such an intervention makes exercise the best alternative. If the knee isn't advanced for operation, then exercise is a necessity.

What Can I Do With A Liberal Arts Degree?

Kate Lorenz. CareerBuilder.com Editor

Perhaps the most persistent -- and often most annoying -- question college students hear throughout their years (second only to "What's your major?") is "So what are you going to do with your major?" The truth, for many of them, is that they simply don't know. And that is totally OK. While choosing a major will help you prepare for a career in a specific field, it can also provide a solid basis for pursuing a career in a seemingly dissimilar field. For example, history majors can go into government, journalism or even museum work, and it's not unusual for theater majors to work in business. Before you think about what you're going to do with your major, find out what you can you do with your major. Art: So daddy wasn't thrilled when you announced that you were switching from premed to art history. eh? "At least I'll be rich in spirit," you offer as the smallest hints of tears replace the dollar signs in his eyes. But art majors aren't necessarily destined to be starving artists. You can go into any number of fields, ranging from commercial art, media and photography to art therapy. If you've still got a place in your heart for scrubs, supplement your studies

commercial art appeals to you, intern with a photographer, magazine or portfolio as you go along. The same other media outlet and compile a

with psychology or counseling courses to pursue art therapy. If goes for studio art, wherein interning or volunteering for a museum will help you see the administrative side of this field.

Biological Sciences: Lest you shy away from concentrating on the biological sciences (biology, microbiology, zoology, etc.) because you don't want to go to grad school, know that there are plenty of career options for those with bachelor's degrees in biology. Not only does an undergraduate degree prepare you for a career in the rapidlygrowing healthcare industry, it also qualifies you to work as a laboratory assistant, technician, technologist or research assistant. Should you feel the need to break out of the lab, you could also do nontechnical work like writing, illustration, photography and legislation by signing up for relevant electives, doing parttime work or interning.

Psychology: Yet another major that seems to ensure that, unless you have a graduate degree, you'll be reduced to spouting Freud to the patrons you serve at the local cafe after graduation. Not so. Psychology provides a strong liberal arts background, allowing graduates to pursue work in several fields like public relations, retail management, sales, market research, advertising and education. Again, it's important to pursue outside interests in different fields, both to further your work experience and make contacts. English: Majoring in English isn't just for future teachers anymore. Those with a background in English have a variety of options when it comes to choosing their fields of work, including law, public relations, advertising, publishing and well, okay, teaching. English majors looking to work in law should obtain summer work at law firms and tweak their speech and debate skills. Picking up an LSAT prep book probably wouldn't hurt, either.

Foreign Language: Yes, you've taught all of your friends dirty words in three different languages, but what else can you do? Well, a lot, actually. For one thing, the government (including the FBI, CIA, Customs Service and the Library of Congress) is one of the largest employers of people with foreign language skills. Foreign language majors can also go into arts and entertainment by working at museums, book publishers and film companies, or into commerce and work at American firms abroad or international firms in the nontechnical Travel, tourism, service and education are also popular industries for foreign language graduates. Try to become as accustomed to the culture of the language(s) you're studying as possible, in any way possible, from studying or working abroad to renting foreign language movies and books. Political Science: So you want to go into politics, but you're neither an Austrian bodybuilder/movie star nor a former professional wrestler... that's probably okay. In fact, some might say a more typical approach would be to supplement that political science major with participation in student government, a model United Nations or local political campaigns if they hope to go into government, law or politics. Other career options include journalism, non-profit work, business, broadcasting or education. A degree in political science can also be good preparation for post-graduate studies in psychology, law and business. Whatever your major, keep your options open by volunteering, interning, doing part-time work or taking classes in other areas that interest you. Involve yourself in community events and get to know local professionals who can give you contacts, advice and references. And the next time someone hassles you about what you're going to do with your major, resist the urge to tell that person where you'd like to stick it; instead, say with every confidence that you have a variety of options to pursue, but you don't want to narrow them down quite yet.

NEWSPAPER POLICY

All advertising published in this Newspaper is subject to the conditions stated in the applicable rate card. (Copies are available from the advertising department, Observer and Eccentric Newspapers, 41304 Concept Drive, Plymouth, MI 48170 866-887-2737. We reserve the right not to accept an advertiser's order. Our sales representatives have no authority to bind this newspaper and only publication of an advertisement shall constitute final acceptance of the advertiser's order. When more than one insertion of the same advertisement is ordered, no credit will be given unless notice of typographical or other errors are given in time for correction before the second insertion. Not responsible for omissions. Publisher's Notice: All real estate advertising in this newspaper is subject to the Federal Fair Housing Act of 1968 which states that it is illegal to advertise "any preference limitation, or discrimination". This newspaper will not knowingly accept any advertising for real estate which is in violation of the law. Our readers are hereby informed that all dwellings advertised in this newspaper are available on an equal housing opportunity basis. (FR Doc, 724983 3-31-72) Classified ads may be placed according to the deadlines. Advertisers are responsible for reading their ad(s) the first time it appears and reporting any errors immediately. The Newspaper will not issue credit for errors in ads after THE FIRST INCORRECT INSERTION. Equal Housing Opportunity Statement: We are pledged to the letter and spirit of U.S. policy for the achievement of equal housing opportunity throughout the nation. We encourage and support an affirmative advertising and marketing program in which there are no barriers to obtain housing because of race, color, religion or national origin. Equal Housing Opportunity, slogan: "Equal Housing Opportunity", Table III - Illustration of Publisher's Notice.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Beginne

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Ford is attempting to build on its early lead in on-board connectivity and also add to its safety chops as it continues to navigate the increasingly strategic and high-profile world of automotive infotainment. Innovations such as Sync have gained Ford some leadership in this area in the eyes of American consumers, and recently Ford announced incremental advances. such as expansion of its Sync voicecontrol software to more vehicles.

"Being 'green' and 'smart' are Ford's most important differentiators in the marketplace," Mark Fields, Ford's president of the Americas, told journalists assembled at the company's design center in Dearborn, Mich., for a safety and technology show-and-tell last month. Consumer appreciation of the "smart pillar" of Ford's long-term positioning - which also includes "safe" and "quality" values as well as "green" - rose 62 percent by the end of the first quarter compared with 2008 when the concepts were embodied formally, Fields said.

Doug VanDagens, director of Ford Connected Services Solutions, asserted that when it comes to infotainment, the company is "thinking like and innovating at the pace of a consumerelectronics company."

Specifically, Ford said that it plans to make Sync AppLink available on an additional nine vehicles for 2012 beyond the previously announced 2012 Ford Mustang, expanding customer access to AppLink's "intuitive" voice control and to smart-phone apps on the go. Ford plans to add more than 100 jobs over the next four years in this expanding area and announced that 2.500 independent developers have signaled their interest in creating more apps for Ford by signing onto a web site. The company also disclosed a new partnership with Nuance Communications, based in Burlington, Mass., which develops voice-control

As competitors scurry to catch up to Ford in infotainment, executives want to keep their feet on the gas. More than 84 percent of Ford Fusions now are sold equipped with Sync as well as more than 76 percent of F-150s. A total of three million Ford-built vehicles now include Sync, and Fields said that more than 50 percent of customers say that the system was a key factor in their purchase considerations.

About 55 percent of smart-phone users prefer voice commands over other types of interfaces in the car, VanDagens said, and more than 25 percent admit to using apps in the vehicle. Small wonder: Smart-phone owners spend an average of 7.4 hours a week in their vehicles, he said.

Sync AppLink will be available on the 2012 Mustang

The 2012 Ford Mustang GT.

Ford'sreputation in the infotainment area slipped a bit recently after Consumer Reports identified difficulties in operating both Sync and MyFord Touch, a complementary infotainment platform. But Fields said that Ford is "fixing issues" with MyFord Touch, not only with the software per se but also in helping customers understand the systems.

"Early this year, dealers began offering personalized sessions just like at the Apple store, and even going to customers' homes" to conduct the training, Fields said. Ford also has added an owner-supported web site for Sync. Partly as a result, 73 percent of customers surveyed by Ford indicated satisfaction with the first generation of MyFord Touch versus 65 percent who had given the thumb's up to the first generation of Sync a few years ago, he said.

Because vehicles now have become so digitally integrated internally as well as with the outside world, safety improvements - as well as entertainment and communication functions in the vehicle - increasingly run through computer interfaces. The most crucial frontier in that regard is how to help drivers safely use smartphone apps in the car that they're simply insisting they want to use.

Sue Cischke, Ford's vice president of environmental and safety engineering, said that the most important determinant of safety is for drivers to keep their eyes on the road and both hands on the steering wheel. This remains the case, she insisted, even in the wake of conflicting research that suggests distressing cell-phone conversations, for example, can significantly promote the possibility of an accident even if the driver is watching the road and has both hands in place.

Ford is researching more ways for the vehicle to automatically suggest accident-avoidance action-avoidance actions by the driver and maybe even curb them. "We're looking at disrupting communications, for instance, when you're coming around a curve," Cischke said. And Sync already offers a "Do Not Disturb" feature that drivers can activate if they don't want incoming cell-phone calls to interrupt their driving.

What did Billy Gardell do before Mike & Molly?

Jared Scott Tesler Rochester, N.Y. Gardell, 41, is a veteran of prime-time TV: You may have spotted his guest turns on NBC's My Name Is Earl in 2009 or on ABC's The Practice in 2004. Now he plays the paramour of Molly (Melissa McCarthy) on CBS' sitcom Mike & Molly, about a couple who meet at an Overeaters Anonymous group. He told us this summer that he's happy to be a leading man: "When you're a fat guy in Hollywood, you're the bad guy, a cop or a neighbor." And yes, his show makes jokes about his weight. "I broke a chair before I came over here," Gardell says. "It happens. I'm not kidding." Before the show returns this fall, he's taking his stand-up routine on the road, appearing in Nashville July 15 and Louisville July 16.

What can you tell me about British actor Brendan Coyle of Downton Abbey?

Eleanore Whitaker, Old Bridge, N.J.

Born in England to an Irish father and Scottish mother, Coyle, 47, is a 1999 winner of the prestigious Laurence Olivier British theater award for The Weir, one of a long list of stage credits in the U.K. He was most recently seen by American television viewers on the PBS Masterpiece Classic broadcast of Downton Abbey (which returns for a second season next where year), played Covle the valet, John Bates. who uses a cane

Patti Price Bourbonnais, III.

Since leaving The Talk in January, Winokur, 38, tells us she misses "the camaraderie" she had with her co-stars. Still, "I really needed to branch off and do my own thing" — well, two things:

a cable show that's in development and a clothing line that's in the works. Also on her schedule is a job that's a little more familiar to fans: reprising her Tony Award-winning role as Tracy Turnblad when

Hairspray plays at the Hollywood Bowl (just 5 miles from her home) for three nights starting Aug. 5. Harvey Fierstein mom Edna returns to the show as well, along with newcomer Nick Jonas, 18, as Tracy's boyfriend, Link Larkin. "I am absolutely old enough to be his mother." Winokur jokes. Who's hot in Hollywood

Her In Plain Sight character is pregnant, and so is Mary McCormack, star of the USA Network show. But that's about where the commonalities end. "I'm not very good with a gun," McCormack, 42, says. Of course, Mary Shannon doesn't have children — Margaret, 6, Rose, 3, and a third due in September — to preoccupy her. "From 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., I work with a much clearer head because my kids are in school. But when they're away from me and not asleep, I'm racked with guilt." ... Wedded bliss came at just the right time for Kara DioGuardi, the former American Idol judge who now can be seen on Bravo's Platinum Hit. The songwriter, 40, married schoolteacher-turned-contractor Mike McCuddy almost two years ago. "Marriage in your late 30s is different from marriage in your 20s. You have a really great sense of who you are."

Most people remember to apply their sunscreen when going to the pool or beach. It's remembering to reapply when you're outside too long that gets people into sunburn trouble. Vicky Hart of Dublin, Ohio, has a solution: She sets her cellphone alarm to go off when it's time to reapply.

Tune in to the latest trends in decorating

WITH THE NEW season of HGTV Design Star set to begin Monday at 9 p.m., we asked the show's three designers and judges to pick one of their favorite decorating trends.

Here is what they told us:

Zebra prints. Animal prints have been in for a while now, says designer Vern Yip, but the new focus is clearly and squarely placed on the zebra print. "Zebra is proving the 'in' print," Yip says. Throw pillows, rugs, dishware, bedding and home decor fabrics can all be seen sporting it. Many people even consider it timeless and neutral enough to be easily integrated into almost every personal style.

World wide webs. If you knit it, crochet it or weave it ... they will come, Candice Olson says. Traditional handicrafts get reinterpreted in stylized ways with state-of-the-art technology and materials.

"Lacey pillows
and prints, macrame-inspired light fixtures,
finely perforated laser-cut steel tables and woven web
chairs," Olson
declares, "get my Spidey
senses tingling!"

Marine paint. When the deck starts to dull and you're missing some color, Genevieve Gorder recommends marine paint. Typically used to paint boats, it can be your best friend, Gorder

says. "Fuchsia, checkerboard, black-and-white stripes," the designer declares. "It's a brilliant layer to bring a drab, silvered deck to life again very inexpensively."

Gently prepare a loved one for long-term care

Making effective decisions about the care of a loved one often takes more time than expected and requires an understanding of the long-term-care system. But a proactive approach can yield better options when the time comes and can head off a family emergency, says Jody Gastfriend of Care.com, an online resource that connects families with trusted care providers.

Here's her advice:

Talk early and often. Understand your parents' preferences as they age. Don't make assumptions about what type of care they may or may not accept. Instead, ask.

Respect autonomy. Rather than starting off with an admonition (for example, "You have to ..."), lead with an empathic statement such as, "I am worried about you because ... if you continue to live alone, you may fall and break your hip."

Be prepared. Realize that resistance is common, is so introduce support measures incrementally. Try first suggesting a caregiver once a week so the help feels comfortable.

The manc is over for Daniel Radcliffe.

At 21, an age when many are toasting their official entry into socalled adulthood, Radcliffe is just now graduating from Hogwarts.

Friday, Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows — Part 2, the final chapter of the eight-movie saga, opens. And with it, life as Radcliffe has known it since age 11, when he made the first installment, ends.

"The Harry Potter films finishing comes with the same inevitability as aging," the British-born actor reasons after our two-hour photo shoot in downtown Manhattan, not far from his West Village digs. "While there's sadness for things that won't be the same again, experiences I've had now that I won't have again, it was always going to have to end. So I've been prepared for it for quite a while."

He considers it for a moment. "I'm not crying myself to sleep at night, luckily."

Radcliffe may be the only one. Many tears are sure to be shed by the legions of Potter fanatics who've read every one of the seven J.K. Rowling books countless times and breathlessly awaited this last film and the climactic finale between Harry and the dark wizard Voldemort.

It's a seminal moment for the young actor, too. He has dabbled in a few other movies and a play (winning critical praise for his daring performance in Equus, in which he Continued on page 12

CookSmart BY THREE MANY COOKS

GRILLING CHICKEN on a beer can stand is a fun, tasty way to cook a whole chicken in the summer. For extra flavor, squeeze with fresh lemon.

Beer Can Chicken with Lemon and Italian Seasoning

1 Tb. kosher salt

- 2 tsps. each: ground black pepper, Italian seasonings, paprika, and finely grated lemon zest
- 1 tsp. granulated garlic or garlic powder
- 1 whole small chicken (about 3½ pounds, rinsed, patted dry, giblets reserved for another use)
- 1 can dark beer, such as stout or ale

Mix salt, pepper, Italian seasoning, paprika, lemon zest and garlic. Pat chicken all over - including cavity - with mix. Let stand on a wire rack over a plate for 1 to 2 hours or refrigerate overnight. When ready to grill, heat a gas grill, igniting all burners on high for at least 10 minutes or build an indirect charcoal fire. Open beer; pour off (and enjoy!) 1/3 of it. If using a gas grill, turn off one of the burners; set chicken's leg cavity on open beer can. If using a gas grill, set chicken on turned-off portion. If using a charcoal grill, set chicken on charcoal-less portion of grill. Cover and cook (400 or so degrees until brown and cooked through - about 170 degrees in the leg/thigh portion), 50 minutes to 1 hour depending on grill temp and chicken size. Remove from grill and let rest for 10 minutes. Carve (watch video on usaweekend.com for the best method) and serve.

Pat Boone Confesses: My Heart Rate Monitor Helps Keep Me Young!

¬ olks are often amazed when I tell them I am 76 years old and full of youthful energy.

Perhaps you wonder whether I have some secret for maintaining good health to share with you . . .

Well, one of my secrets is performing simple exercises that strengthen my heart muscle. My cardio routine is simple: I swim, bicycle, and even play tennis.

And my doctor tells me I still have an "athlete's heart," with a usual pulse of 70 beats per minute.

As Chauncey Crandall, M.D., one of America's top cardiologists, explains, your heart rate is a key to long life - and closely related to high blood pressure, your number one risk factor for heart disease.

If your pulse rate is 85, your heart will contract its powerful muscle 122,400 times each day.

Multiply that over just 40 years, and your heart will beat 1.8 billion times!

But, drop your rate to 72 beats per minute, and you can eliminate the wear and tear of 280 million wasted heart contractions over the same 40 years. And lower your risk of high blood pressure and heart disease, too.

Pat says this stylish

watch also monitors

his heart rate - keeping him young.

So how do you do this? First, you need to monitor your pulse regularly. To do this, I use the Heart Rate Monitor Watch.

It's a stylish but simple wrist watch that monitors both time and heart rate. In fact, I can see what my heart is doing at any moment.

Now, the Heart Rate Monitor Watch usually sells for $49.95.

But my readers can get a great

New strategies to manage diabetes

HE NUMBERS ARE alarming: More than 25 million people in the United States have diabetes — that's about one in 10 Americans. And according to recent government reports, rates are projected to surge over the next 40 years, affecting as many as one in three Americans by 2050. New research reveals three strategies that can help change the course of the disease:

Eat less fat. It can help reduce your risk of developing diabetes, regardless of whether you lose weight. With type 2

By 2050, 1 in 3 Americans may have this disease.

diabetes, your body either down't produce enough

insulin, or your cells ignore it; insulin is needed to use glucose for energy. Researchers at the University of Alabama-Birmingham put 69 overweight people at risk for diabetes on either a lowerfat or lower-carb diet; after eight weeks, the group who reduced their fat intake to 27% of their overall diet had significantly higher insulin secretion, improved insulin sensitivity and better glucose tolerance. For a 1,600-calorie diet, that equals 48 daily grams of fat; for 2,200 calories, it's 66 grams.

Get a trainer. A structured and supervised exercise program (that includes aerobics and strength training) helped people with type 2 diabetes lower their blood sugar levels more effectively than just getting advice about working out more, according to a review published in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Scientists also found that exercising for longer periods of time was better at bringing blood sugar levels down than exercising more intensively.

Improve your sleep habits.

Doing so may help you better manage your diabetes, according to a new study in Diabetes Care. Researchers found that people with diabetes who also had insomnia had a 23% higher fasting blood glucose level, a 48% higher fasting insulin level and an 82% higher insulin resistance than the normal sleepers with diabetes.

appeared nude). But Hogwarts has been home. He has quite literally grown up on multimillion-dollar movie sets and today is the face of the $6 billion(!) cinema franchise, the most successful of all time.

Radcliffe is the first to concede that it has been a pretty weird way to grow up.

"To have been in the middle of a worldwide phenomenon for 10 years is just bizarre, to be honest," he says. "It affords you no end of very surreal moments in life."

Radcliffe was a bright-eyed 11-year-old boy mostly jazzed by the fact he didn't have to go to school when he started making 2001's Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone.

"I could go and fool around on the set for three hours every day," Radcliffe recalls. "I do maintain there is no place more fun on Earth as an 11-year-old boy than a film set, because you just have limitless toys at your disposal."

Radcliffe shares the stage with John Larroquette in How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying.

Free of the famous Harry Potter glasses, his bright blue eyes glisten as he cracks wise about walking around Manhattan incognito (it's easy for him, "especially when you're this short," says the 5-foot-5 actor), nixing the chance of one day starting The Daniel Radcliffe Experience ("Nobody wants to see actors in bands, just like we don't want to see musicians in films") and possibly starring in a superhero movie one day ("There's not been nearly enough Lycra in my career so far.")

On this day, he's a bit nerd chic, clad in jeans and a dark blue shirt touting the periodic table of the elements, as he talks about being involved in such a huge adventure.

Daniel Radcliffe's FAVE Harry Potter movie moments

1. Bonding with Rupert Grint, aka Ron Weasley (at right), on the set of Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone (2001) when the two were 11. Where: On the Hogwarts Express. Why: "That scene was our standby weather-cover scene. Anytime it rained, we'd end up coming back to it."

2. Dueling in Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets (2002). Who: With Hogwarts rival Draco Malfoy (Tom Felton, upper right). Why: "It was a lot of stunts and wire work, so that was very good fun."

3. Learning on the set of Harry
Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban
(2004). From whom: Gary Oldman
(who played Sirius Black right). The elder actor taught him to play the bass part in the Beatles' tune
Come Together.

4. Leaping 35 feet off a roof in Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire (2005). Why: Need we ask? Radcliffe was 15, and it was "absolutely terrifying." Even better: "I did it about three or four times."

5. Reuniting with his co-star buddies in Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows — Part 1 (2010). Why: Radcliffe has "some very, very good memories" of scenes with Grint and Emma Watson, as Hermione Granger (right).

Radcliffe and Ralph Fiennes confront each other in Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows — Part 2, opening Friday.

Like Beatlemania before it, Pottermania has been a worldwide phenomenon. Radcliffe remembers landing in Japan and being greeted by 5,000 adoring fans.

"As a 13-year-old, it was pretty intimidating," Radcliffe says, smiling as he's reminded that he now has something in common with Paul McCartney. "I was terrified. And then you suddenly realize, 'OK, lots of people taking pictures. Smile — otherwise you're just going to look like you're being assaulted tomorrow in the papers.' "

Though child actors have often flamed out spectacularly, Radcliffe credits his parents — former actors who live in the USA for the time being while he's on Broadway — and the folks he was surrounded by on the Potter movies for a successful upbringing.

"Through the process of making the films, I've learned everything I know about how to live," he says, sounding older than his years, "about my own morality and my principles and what I think is important."

The young actor, who concedes he's a fulldged "workaholic," says his way of dealing with the end of Potter has been to throw himself into more work.

We caught him on his one-day-a-week off. He's now starring in a role wholly different from Harry — this one hoofing his heart out in the Broadway musical How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying.

Still, Harry endures, it seems, at least for the mostly young female fans swarming around the show's stage door one recent evening.

For Radcliffe, it's a bit daunting.

"They're cheering for the me they've read about in interviews or seen on TV," he says. "But they don't know me."

As for those who are waving "Marry me, Daniel!" signs, they're probably out of luck. Radcliffe won't reveal her name, but he says he has a girlfriend of nine months back home in London.

"I thought it was part of an actor's life not to bed-hop but to be with lots of women. I tried it for maybe three months. I was really bored not getting to know anyone," Radcliffe says.

"It's a nice feeling to suddenly meet somebody and go, 'I'm really happy with you, and I like the idea of coming home to you at the end of the day."

He plans to return to England to see her when his How to

"I've learned everything I know about how to live" from Harry Potter.

Succeed contract is up in January — the same month his next film, the horror movie The Woman in Black, is due to arrive in theaters.

He's also plotting his post-Potter career path, and a role he's looking forward to claiming one day that may be surprising coming from a 21-year-old although maybe not from one as seemingly wise as Radcliffe.

"I think about being Dad quite a lot," he says. "I can't wait to have kids."

So the next time Radcliffe revisits Harry Potter, it may be reading those adventures of a magical boy to his own children.

"I imagine I will," Radcliffe says, his eyes glistening. "It will be very, very strange, though." m

Boys can be affected by HPV disease too.

GARDASIL HELPS PROTECT BOTH YOUR SON AND DAUGHTER.

When it comes to human papillomavirus (HPV), females are only half the equation. There are 30 to 40 types of HPV that will affect an estimated 75% to 80% of males and females in their lifetime. For most, HPV clears on its own. But, for others who don't clear certain types, HPV could cause cervical cancer in females and other types of HPV could cause genital warts in both males and females. And there's no way to predict who will or won't clear the virus.

GARDASIL is the only HPV vaccine that helps protect against 4 types of HPV. In girls and young women ages 9 to 26, GARDASIL helps protect against 2 types of HPV that cause about 75% of cervical cancer cases, and 2 more types that cause 90% of genital warts cases. In boys and young men ages 9 to 26, GARDASIL helps protect against 90% of genital warts cases.

GARDASIL may not fully protect everyone, nor will it protect against diseases caused by other HPV types or against diseases not caused by HPV. GARDASIL does not prevent all types of cervical cancer, so it's important for women to continue routine cervical cancer screenings.

GARDASIL does not treat cervical cancer or genital warts. GARDASIL is given as 3 injections over 6 months.

Patient Information about GARDASIL® (pronounced "gard-Ah-sill")

Generic name: [Human Papillomavirus Quadrivalent (Types 6, 11, 16, and 18) Vaccine, Recombinant]

Read this information with care before getting GARDASIL. You (the person getting GARDASIL) will need 3 doses of the vaccine. It is important to read this leaflet when you get each dose. This leaflet does not take the place of talking with your health care provider about GARDASIL.

What is GARDASIL?

GARDASIL is a vaccine (injection/shot) that is used for girls and women 9 through 26 years of age to help protect against the following diseases caused by Human Papillomavirus (HPV):

- Cervical cancer
- Vulvar and vaginal cancers
- Anal cancer
- Genital warts
- Precancerous cervical, vaginal, vulvar, and anal lesions GARDASIL is used for boys and men 9 through 26 years of age to help protect against the following diseases caused by HPV:
- Genital warts
- · Precancerous anal lesions
- · The diseases listed above have many causes, and GARDASIL only protects against diseases caused by certain kinds of HPV (called Type 6, Type 11, Type 16, and Type 18). Most of the time, these 4 types of HPV are responsible for the diseases listed above.

GARDASIL cannot protect you from a disease that is caused by other types of HPV, other viruses, or bacteria.
 GARDASIL does not treat HPV infection.

 You cannot get HPV or any of the above diseases from GARDASIL.

What important information about GARDASIL should I know?

- You should continue to get routine cervical cancer screening. · GARDASIL may not fully protect everyone who gets the
- · GARDASIL will not protect against HPV types that you already have.

Who should not get GARDASIL?

You should not get GARDASIL if you have, or have had:

- an allergic reaction after getting a dose of GARDASIL.
- a severe allergic reaction to yeast, amorphous aluminum hydroxyphosphate sulfate, polysorbate 80.

What should I tell my health care provider before getting GARDASIL?

Tell your health care provider if you:

- have immune problems, like HIV infection, cancer, or you take medicines that affect your immune system.
- have a fever over 100°F (37.8°C).
- · had an allergic reaction to another dose of GARDASIL.
- · take any medicines, even those you can buy over the counter.

Your health care provider will help decide if you should get the vaccine.

How is GARDASIL given?

GARDASIL is a shot that is usually given in the arm muscle. You will need 3 shots given on the following schedule:

- Dose 1: at a date you and your health care provider choose.
- · Dose 2: 2 months after Dose 1.
- · Dose 3: 6 months after Dose 1.

Fainting can happen after getting GARDASIL. Sometimes people who faint can fall and hurt themselves. For this reason, your health care provider may ask you to sit or lie down for 15 minutes after you get GARDASIL. Some people who faint might shake or become stiff. This may require evaluation or treatment by your health care provider.

Make sure that you get all 3 doses on time so that you get the best protection. If you miss a dose, talk to your health care provider.

Can other vaccines and medications be given at the same time as GARDASIL?

GARDASIL can be given at the same time as RECOMBIVAX HB®1 [hepatitis B vaccine (recombinant)] or Menactra [Meningococcal (Groups A, C, Y and W-135) Polysaccharide Diphtheria Toxoid Conjugate Vaccine] and Adacel [Tetanus Toxoid, Reduced Diphtheria Toxoid and Acellular Pertussis Vaccine Adsorbed (Tdap)].

What are the possible side effects of GARDASIL?

The most common side effects with GARDASIL are:

- pain, swelling, itching, bruising, and redness at the injection site
- héadache
- · fever
- nausea
- dizziness
- vomiting
- fainting

There was no increase in side effects when GARDASIL was given at the same time as RECOMBIVAX HB (hepatitis B vaccine (recombinant)].

There was more injection-site swelling at the injection site for GARDASIL when GARDASIL was given at the same time as Menactra [Meningococcal (Groups A, C, Y and W-135) Polysaccharide Diphtheria Toxoid Conjugate Vaccine) and Adacel (Tetanus Toxoid, Reduced Diphtheria Toxoid and Acellular Pertussis Vaccine Adsorbed (Tdap)].

Tell your health care provider if you have any of the following problems because these may be signs of an allergic reaction:

timidating: she's the queen of interviewing. Jesse Ventura, for raw energy. At a certain point thought he might actually punch me. Charlie Sheen [for] walking on the set with five minutes to spare."

Lady Gaga vs. Madonna? "Madonna I just find highly pointless. Lady Gaga does what she does, only she's half Madonna's age and does it better."

What advice do you give your sons, Spencer, 17, Stanley, 14, and Albert, 10?

"My father gave me two bits of advice: One was always be nice to policemen, and the second was always drink the best French wine you can afford."
