Ideas plentiful for Central property

Residents, officials put forth plans

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools officials are still months away from making a final decision on the disposition of Central Middle School, but that's not stopping people from popping up with their own ideas. And there are plenty.

The latest idea being floated suggests the possibility of city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township officials collaborating on a community center project that would fulfill recreational needs in both communities and keep many of the facilities, especially the indoor pool and the outdoor fields, intact. It wouldn't be the first time the two communities partnered for recreation. According to City Manager Paul Sincock, township officials gave the city a $1,500 grant – part of a larger grant it got from the state – to apply to the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Sincock pointed out the city has already put use of the green space around Central Middle School into its recreation master plan “for a number of years.” That plan, he said, includes things like multiple recreational facilities, outdoor athletic fields, improved lighting and turf on the football field and a walking path throughout the entire site.

The site's newest facility, Bilkie Field, where the Miracle League of Plymouth plays its baseball games for special-needs players, is also part of the plan, said Sincock, who said the city would be willing to sit down with the township to talk. “We're always interested in what options are available,” Sincock said. “It's a great tie between the downtown and Old Village area. It would be a really nice facility.”

But Plymouth Township Supervisor Richard Reaume said such talk is premature. Without more detail – and with no decision yet by the Board of Education – any decision would be tough to reach, Reaume

Bill Gauthier needs an oxygen mask – and soon a ventilator – to breathe, can't dress or shower himself, can't brush his teeth and has to sleep upright in a chair.

Diagnosed with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis in 2011, Gauthier is prepared to face the day when speaking will be impossible and he'll need to use an eye-movement-activated device to communicate.

Nevertheless, Gauthier, 61, isn't complaining.

“From the very beginning, I accepted the terminal part of the disease,” he said. “It hasn't stopped me from living. I live every day one day at a time.”

The Canton resident and Dearborn High School graduate was a credit manager by day and hockey referee by night and weekend when he started having neck pain and weakness. He

ALS FACT SHEET

- » ALS strikes both men and women, generally between the ages of 40 and 75, although many patients are young adults in their 20s and 30s.
- » In the United States, there are more than 30,000 people living with ALS. More than 5,000 people are newly diagnosed with ALS each year.
- » An estimated 1,000 people living in Michigan have ALS, with 200 new diagnoses each year.
- » ALS occurs throughout the world with no racial, ethnic or socioeconomic boundaries.
- » 50 percent of patients with ALS live three to five years, 20 percent live five to 10 years and 10 percent survive 10 years or more.
- » “Familial” ALS suggests the disease is inherited. Only 5-10 percent of people with the disease appear to have inherited it.

Billy Taylor's autobiography, “Get Back Up,” has been turned into a movie that airs at 9:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 30, on the Big Ten Network.

U-M legend tells story of comeback

By Brad Kadrich

Billy Taylor, the talented running back from small-town Barberton, Ohio, had it all in the late 1960s.

As a prep football star, he was wanted by both the Ohio State University and the University of Michigan (he chose the Wolverines). Once in college, he was a star: all-Big Ten, record-setting runner (his 102 yards per game set the school record), MVP in 1971, NFL draft pick.

It all turned around quickly. In January 1971, his mother died suddenly of a heart attack. In the months that followed, an uncle murdered his aunt and his girlfriend was stabbed to death in Detroit. His NFL career was short-circuited by injury.

While he was still functioning – he completed his master's degree in education, got a job with General Motors, married and had three children – these traumatic events nevertheless started what Taylor calls a “slide” into alcohol, drugs and trouble with the law.

All downhill

“It was really more than I could handle and it led to drinking and incarceration,” Taylor said. “It took me 25 years to come back from that.”

But come back he has. After what he calls an “encounter with God,” in which he said

Nan Washburn, entering her 15th season as music director and conductor of the Michigan Philharmonic, has been named the 2013 winner of The American Prize in Conducting-Professional Orchestra Division.

“Ms. Washburn was selected from applications reviewed this summer from all across the United States,” The American Prize organization said in a statement. The American Prize is a series of competitions unique in scope and structure designed to recognize and reward the best performing artists, ensembles and composers in the nation based on submitted recordings.

“These recordings confirm (Washburn's) excellent reputation,” judges said.

The American Prize in Conducting for 2013 adds to the array of national recognition with which Washburn has been awarded during her career. Her diverse collection of accolades was further enhanced this past June, when she was awarded an was interviewing for a new job during that time and sometimes it was all he could do to keep his head upright for the duration of the interview, Gauthier's wife Karen said.

It took a couple of years to reach a diagnosis of ALS and from there life changed dramatically for Gauthier. The former avid golfer and all-sports enthusiast's focus has changed. He uses his time these days to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association so that people like Autumn, an 8-year-old who's had spinal muscular atrophy since birth and has been an inspiring force for him, can live life to the fullest.

The MDA provides funding for children like Autumn to go to camp each year and helps coordinate their care and equipment needs, in addition to researching treatments and cures for numerous muscle diseases. The organization also provides much-needed support groups for patients and their families.

At MDA's 2013 Show Strength Telethon, Gauthier was awarded the organization's first Most Inspiring Award for his upbeat attitude in the face of adversity.

"I just think there's someone out there who can inspire us all," said Robin Rhea, executive director for the Greater Detroit MDA. "Bill, through the whole process, has been so positive. He's always asking, 'How are you doing?' and 'What can I do to help?' He wants to give back and help others, despite what he's going through."

It's not just other ALS and neuro-muscular patients Gauthier inspires. He's a powerful force in the lives of everyone who knows him. One friend, David Winter, who's known Gauthier since his dorm days at Eastern Michigan University, wears an ALS bracelet every day in Gauthier's honor.

Winter, a Plymouth lawyer, said Gauthier has a great spirit.

"What I see in Bill is grace, courage and strength of character," Winter said. "While fighting a deadly, debilitating disease and a decreasing quality of life, he expresses no sadness - only strength. His primary goal is security for his family and to spearhead fundraising to aid in research for a cure of this awful disease."

Gauthier has organized many golf outings, attended MDA lockup fundraisers and participated each year in Detroit's MDA Muscle Walk. Last year, Gauthier and his extended family raised $9,500 for the MDA walk.

He helped promote the MDA Muscle Walk by writing a letter that sheds light on the driving force behind his diligent fundraising. "The most important reason I walk is for the kids," Gauthier wrote. "Since I was diagnosed later in life, as a kid I was able to run, jump, play catch and do other things. Kids with muscular disorders are not able to enjoy these simple things."

ALS, a neuro-muscular disease characterized in its early phases by muscle weakness and stiffness, is just one of many similar diseases the MDA supports through clinical research, patient and family support and advocacy. As the disease progresses, the muscles stop working and the disease ultimately affects swallowing, breathing and speech abilities.

ALS has severely compromised Gauthier's diaphragm muscles, so he has difficulty breathing. Always the optimist, Gauthier said he's thankful he can still use his legs and arms. At home, he can usually be found in front of his large-screen computer, emailing friends and family, accessing photos or chatting on Facebook with other ALS patients.

Gauthier attributes much of his success to his support system: his wife Karen, son Ryan and his wife Adriana, daughter Kelly Benko and her husband Chris and son Bill Jr., in addition to the many long-term friends who've stuck by him and the ones he's met through the MDA.

He said many spouses can't handle the caretaking that comes with ALS and leave their husbands, so he's grateful to have Karen.

"Without help, I couldn't get by," he says. Gauthier is also quick to mention his 3-month-old grandson Adrian and days-old granddaughter Hadley. "I want to be a part of their lives, at least a little bit," he said.

A sports buff at heart, Gauthier thinks of his disease the same way he would a game. "I give my best effort" in living with ALS, he said. "That's what I attribute a lot of my success to throughout life. Whether I win or lose, I will know I've done my best."

His wife Karen said his new-found sport is raising awareness and money for ALS and other neuro-muscular diseases. He'll do anything he needs to do, she said.

Gauthier, never one to play the sympathy card, doesn't care why people donate to the MDA, as long as they do.

"Even if they just look at me and feel sorry for me and make a donation, that's OK," he said. "Working with the MDA, I really feel good about myself."

TAYLOR

God spoke to him on the streets of Detroit, Taylor hasn't had a drink, a drug or a cigarette since Aug. 17, 1997. In May 2003, he earned his Ph.D. in education from the University of Nevada-Las Vegas. And in 2009, he founded Get Back Up, Inc., a residential substance-abuse treatment facility.

While Taylor acknowledges the center, a 30,000-square-foot, 160-bed facility in Detroit, is currently tied up in litigation, he expects to win the legal battles and put the center back to work providing a multitude of resources to its residents, in tandem with their treatment.

Taylor talked about his life and Get Back Up during a speech Thursday to the Kiwanis Club of Colonial Plymouth.

"It's all about helping people and changing lives," Taylor said of Get Back Up. "I was one of them. It's amazing what happens when lives change. Children get their dads back, wives get their husbands back ... it's amazing."

Taylor spends a lot of time talking to young people these days, an effort Kiwanis Club spokesman Mark Hutchins, who recruited Taylor to speak, said matches Kiwanis philosophy.

"He's helping young men and that's the focus of our club," Hutchins said.

Talking about it

Taylor has written an autobiography, Get Back Up: The Billy Taylor Story, which is also being turned into a movie. The movie, Taylor said, debuts at 9:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 30, on the Big Ten Network. He said he was worried "no one would show up" when the movie had a sneak preview, but some 700 people were in the audience.

"Doing the autobiography and the movie were hard, because it's personal," Taylor said. "Most people have skeletons in their closet; I had a truckload. Most of it is stuff you want to stay away from and move on, but if you're doing a documentary, you have to talk about it."

Taylor infused his speech with stories from his football days, including his first encounter with legendary U-M coach Bo Schembechler. Taylor was originally recruited by Miami (Ohio), where Schembechler was the coach at the time. After a particularly tough recruiting visit, where Schembechler put recruits through a tough workout, Taylor said he decided to go to Michigan, in part to stay away from Schembechler.

However, the next year, it turns out, was Schembechler's first year at U-M. "He looked at me and said, 'Thought you'd gotten rid of me, eh?'" Taylor said, laughing.

Taylor's appearance was particularly interesting to Kiwanis Club member Fred Hill, an Ohio State graduate and unabashed Buckeyes supporter. He told Taylor he'd already "touched my life in a significant way" by scoring what turned out to be the winning touchdown against Ohio State in 1971.

"I can still hear (U-M broadcaster Bob) Ufer's voice, 'Touchdown by Billy Taylor,'" Hill said with a smile. "But it's all fun."

said. "No one has (officially) brought anything forward; someone did talk to me, but they said they were still working on details," Reaume said. "Canton (the Summit) and Livonia (recreation center) did that and it cost them something like $20 million."

"We're for recreation, but we'd have to see more details," he added. "We wouldn't close the door."

A grass-roots group made up of citizens and community leaders started meeting over the summer to talk about Central's fate and what role the property could play in the community. The district is planning to close Central following the 2014-15 school year and open a new middle school in Canton in September 2015.

Preserving and re-purposing the building - with features such as a competitive swimming pool, a recreation pool, a gymnasium, meeting rooms, a fitness center and arts facilities - is a top priority for the group. And a joint city-township effort would be more than appropriate, supporters say.

"I consider the city and township one community," said Deb Madonna, president of the Miracle League of Plymouth and a township resident. "I grew up here and it's always been that way. I think we have to appreciate that the city of Plymouth, which is just two square miles, provides much to (township residents) and we don't pay taxes to have all those activities going on. What would life be like for the township residents if there wasn't a downtown like ours?"

There is some sentiment in the community to simply save the historic building - Central Middle School was the original Plymouth High School - but Sincoc warned that might not be such a great selling point, since it might not be feasible.

"I wouldn't say, 'Save Plymouth High School' until you do an assessment of the building," Sincoc said. "In the end, it may come down."

Central's fate, obviously, is being discussed within the district. District administrators, led by Superintendent Dr. Michael Meissen, plan to provide a report to the Board of Education detailing a variety of data, including outstanding leases connected to the property, revenue sources from current users of the property, any bond money impacts and other legalities before the property can be sold, in October.

Before the board makes a decision, likely in January, trustees and administrators plan on listening to the people.

"The board respects what the community thinks," Meissen said. "The idea is to be very open, very transparent and follow a decision-making model where the board has an opportunity to do their homework, develop some ideas and then talk with the public about it."

Credit union branch teaches kids to save

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

Michelle Richards knows the value of a buck and she wants the students at Starkweather Academy, the alternative high school in the Plymouth-Canton school district, to learn the same lesson.

Now they have their chance. Richards, a program coordinator for Community Financial Credit Union, was on hand Wednesday as CFCU opened another student-run branch in a local school. The branch, which will be open every other Wednesday for Starkweather students, is the 39th student branch CFCU has opened in its service area.

The credit union now has branches in all but two of Plymouth-Canton's school buildings. It has also opened branches in several Novi and Northville schools.

"The main goal is for students to get in the habit of saving money at an early age, so they don't face the financial difficulties some adults are facing," Richards said.

Students fill all of the critical jobs in the branch, including computer operator, teller, branch manager and marketing. Students interested in working for the branch have to fill out a job application, view a presentation about the goals and policies of the credit union and go through the job interview process.

Kim DelProposto, an economics teacher at Starkweather, worked with CFCU officials and business teacher Eric Souva to put the program together. DelProposto said the whole goal is to teach students about financial matters.

"It's important they learn about saving and money management at an early age," DelProposto said. "We're excited to have this in the school and helping the students start those habits early."

The students rotate through the various jobs. Melissa Fisher was working the teller's cash box Wednesday and was excited to be part of it.

"The word 'economics' scared me at first," Fisher said. "This is giving me a chance to see through all of that."

Zuri Turner, a 16-year-old student from Canton, said opening an account helps her save money and gives her a little bit of independence.

"Instead of having to ask my mom to go to the bank, I can just come and do it myself," Turner said. "I can just come here and, if I have a few dollars, I can deposit it."

It's the kind of lesson Souva wants all of the students to learn.

"A lot of kids don't understand the importance of saving money," he said. "This gives them the opportunity to do it during the school day. They don't

PCA welcomed home-school students Sarah Reinhart, Bruce Wilson, Jacob Reinhart, Josh Pop, Richard Wilson, Dillon St. Ledger and Nicole Reinhart.

PCA partners with home-school families

Parents grateful for program's benefits

While the 2013 school year has begun, it's not just the traditional students who have returned to the classroom at Plymouth Christian Academy.

PCA also welcomed a contingent of home-schooled children, whose parents send them to PCA part time for classes such as music, art, physical education, computers and world language.

It's the third year PCA has opened its doors to the home-school community. Caryn Huntsman, interim superintendent and elementary principal and a member of the PCA staff for 21 years, has welcomed these families with open arms.

"With the number of children being taught in their home on the rise, PCA has identified a need to partner with this community and offer a one-or two-day option for elementary home school families," Huntsman said. "Families with students in grades 6-12 can work with the school counselor to determine the classes and schedule that best work for them."

Kathleen Reinhart of Canton has been sending her children to the PCA Home School Program since 2010.

"The program, program facilitator, principal and teachers of the school have always made my children feel welcome and they are always included in every school activity, such as field day, concerts and class field trips," Reinhart said. "My kids have benefited from the art, music and world language classes. I have benefited from having teachers in my kids' grades that are willing to answer questions about curriculum and teaching methods. The program has been a wonderful addition to our home school week."

Academics are an obvious part of a child's school experience, but another very significant aspect is socialization. Reinhart appreciates the role the PCA Home School Program plays in this area.

"This program has been great for our family," she said. "It allows the kids to see friends that they have made since the beginning of the program and provides them with lessons in areas that I feel I lack the skill to teach myself."

Huntsman said PCA understands and appreciates the reasons people choose to home-school their children and wants to "partner alongside these families to offer education and support."

For more information on the program, call the PCA admissions director at 734-459-3505, ext. 2120, or email her at bonnie.varney@plymouth-christian.org.

Farmers market promotes healthy kids program

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Using a portion of state dollars it received, the Canton Farmers Market has announced a program intended to improve children's health by encouraging proper nutrition and fitness.

Market manager Tina Lloyd said only 50 students in grades 4-5 can sign up for the Healthy Start to School initiative and they face a deadline by noon Friday.

Healthy Start to School happens Sunday, Sept. 29. It features cooking with Chef Paul, a fitness activity and interactive nutrition activities. By participating, students receive a gym sack and $10 in "market money" to spend that same day at Canton Farmers Market, in Preservation Park on Ridge north of Cherry Hill.

The program uses just a portion of a $15,472 grant the market received from the Michigan Economic Development Corp.

Last year, Healthy Start to School focused on middle school students.

"This year, we're going to go a little bit younger," Lloyd said. "I think it's good to start young and get kids exposed to the things they can do to stay healthy."

Parents can register their children online at www.cantonfun.org using the online registration button on the left menu, then search 9000.911. First-time users need to set up an account.

On the day of the event, parents can check in their students at the market at 10:15 a.m. Activities occur 10:30-11:30 a.m. and shopping happens at 11:30 a.m. The market closes at 1 p.m.

Anyone who has questions may call (734) 394-5375 or send an email to cantonfarmers-market@canton-mi.org.

MSU coach from Canton killed in crash

By Lindsay VanHulle
Gannett Michigan

LEROY TOWNSHIP — Michigan State athletics officials recalled assistant softball coach Charles Fobbs, who was killed Wednesday in a car crash, as a “wonderful human being” who was committed to working with young people.

Fobbs, 47, of Canton, was killed in a crash on eastbound Interstate 96 near M-52, outside Webberville, Michigan State Police said. Authorities said his Chevrolet HHR left the road at 6:25 p.m. and rolled multiple times after he swerved to avoid slowing traffic. He died at the scene.

Fobbs was hired as an assistant softball coach for the 2013 season, according to his official MSU biography. He had worked for the team as a volunteer coach in 2009 and specialized in hitting and catching.

From 1991-2008, Fobbs was the varsity softball coach at Detroit Cass Tech, where his team won five Detroit Public Schools league championships, 12 district titles, a regional title and advanced to the state quarterfinals. He also worked as an assistant football coach at Cass Tech from 1994-2008.

“He was an exceptional person,” Cass Tech football head coach Thomas Wilcher told the Detroit Free Press. “He was always fun, always laughing. He was always trying to help you out, always trying to figure out how to get something done. He was always trying to figure out how to get kids ahead. He lived to make people happy. He was the only guy I knew who would sit there and coach kids all day long. That was all he wanted to do — coach kids.”

Fobbs is a 1989 graduate of the University of New Mexico, where he earned a bachelor's degree in business technology.

He founded Detroit Cannon Youth Organization, a nonprofit youth development organization for urban kids. His wife and stepdaughter live in Canton.

“I'm absolutely devastated by the loss of my very good friend and a wonderful human being,” MSU softball coach Jacquie Joseph said in a released statement. “We have lost someone incredibly special — he dedicated his life to helping develop young people and this is a tremendous loss. My heart is with his family and all those who had the privilege of knowing him.”

“Our thoughts are with Charles' family and friends at this incredibly difficult time,” MSU Athletic Director Mark Hollis said in a statement. “We also have heavy hearts for Jacquie Joseph and her softball family here at MSU. More than a coach, Charles was a good friend to many here in our athletics department and across the state of Michigan.”

Fobbs coached with Wilcher for 15 years at Cass Tech and was the best man in Wilcher's wedding.

“We were together for a long time,” Wilcher said. “I liked how he always tried to make sure that a person would try to reach their potential and he understood all it would take was hard work to achieve some type of success at athletics.”

When Wilcher became head coach at Cass Tech, he coached the offense and Fobbs ran the defense before they switched roles a few years later.

Wilcher was not surprised when Fobbs decided to give up football and concentrate on coaching softball.

“He always coached softball, his dad did softball and he learned from his dad — Charlie Fobbs,” Wilcher said. “He trained hard. He taught a lot of girls how to play softball. He was always at a softball coaches camp. He learned a lot from other softball coaches.”

Fobbs is survived by his wife Lisa and stepdaughter Hannah Shuler. Funeral arrangements are pending. MSU's Sunday doubleheader against Detroit Mercy has been canceled.

State police have asked anyone who saw the crash to call the Lansing post at 517-322-1907.

Detroit Free Press sports writer Mick McCabe contributed to this report.

Sincock said. "It's a great tie between the downtown and Old Village area. It would be a really nice facility."

But Plymouth Township Supervisor Richard Reaume said such talk is premature. Without more detail – and with no decision yet by the Board of Education – any decision would be tough to reach, Reaume said.

"No one has (officially) brought anything forward; someone did talk to me, but they said they were still working on details," Reaume said. "Canton (the Summit) and Livonia (recreation center) did that and it cost them something like $20 million."

"We're for recreation, but we'd have to see more details," he added.

"We wouldn't close the door."

A grass-roots group made up of citizens and community leaders started meeting over the summer to talk about Central's fate and what role the property could play in the community. The district is planning to close Central following the 2014-15 school year and open a new middle school in Canton in September 2015.

Preserving and re-purposing the building – with features such as a competitive swimming pool, a recreation pool, a gymnasium, meeting rooms, a fitness center and arts facilities – is a top priority for the group. And a joint city-township effort would be more than appropriate, supporters say.

"I consider the city and township one community," said Deb Madonna, president of the Miracle League of Plymouth and a township resident. "I grew up here and it's always been that way. I think we have to appreciate that the city of Plymouth, which is just two square miles, provides much to (township residents) and we don't pay taxes to have all those activities going on. What would life be like for the township residents if there wasn't a downtown like ours?"

There is some sentiment in the community to simply save the historic building – Central Middle School was the original Plymouth High School – but Sincock warned that might not be such a great selling point, since it might not be feasible.

"I wouldn't say, 'Save Plymouth High School' until you do an assessment of the building," Sincock said. "In the end, it may come down."

Central's fate, obviously, is being discussed within the district. District administrators, led by Superintendent Dr. Michael Meissen, plan to provide a report to the Board of Education detailing a variety of data, including outstanding leases connected to the property, revenue sources from current users of the property, any bond money impacts and other legalities before the property can be sold, in October. Before the board makes a decision, likely in January, trustees and administrators plan on listening to the people.

"The board respects what the community thinks," Meissen said. "The idea is to be very open, very transparent and follow a decision-making model where the board has an opportunity to do their homework, develop some ideas and then talk with the public about it."

Schoolcraft College, in conjunction with the Schoolcraft College Foundation and Student Activities Office, offered a distracted and drunken driving education program for students on the Livonia campus Thursday as part of School Daze Fall Festival.

UNITE's Arrive Alive program uses a high-tech simulator, impact video and a number of other resources to educate students about the dangers of drunken driving and texting while driving. The simulator allows students to experience, in a controlled environment, the potential consequences of drunken and distracted driving.

One of the most commonly recognized driving distractions is cellphone use. About 89 percent of all Americans have a cellphone, according to CTIA-The Wireless Association. Drivers under 20 years old have the highest proportion of distraction-related fatal crashes, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The Arrive Alive Tour from UNITE brings health and wellness programs to high school and college campuses across the nation.

Schoolcraft receives grant for training program

Livonia-based Schoolcraft College has received a piece of the $474.5 million in U.S. government grants to expand demand-driven skills training and strengthen employer partnerships. Schoolcraft College will get more than $1 million as part of a consortium of eight Michigan community colleges that together received nearly $25 million.

The Michigan colleges will focus on improvements in advanced manufacturing and will help students with job skill readiness, basic skill development, pathways to certificates and degrees, employer involvement, online/hybrid courses, education plans, prior learning assessments and career services.

The grants are part of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Community College and Career Training grant program. This is a multi-year $2 billion initiative to expand targeted training programs for unemployed workers, especially those impacted by foreign trade.

Plymouth eater among Tater Tot winners

Local restaurant stages contest to set world record

Nathan's Famous Frankfurters in Coney Island, N.Y., has its annual world hot dog eating championship.

Now Bar Louie in Livonia has an annual "Rock the Tot" tater tot eating contest.

The event took place at 8 p.m. Thursday simultaneously with Bar Louie locations across the country. Bar Louie seeks to set the world record for most tater tots eaten simultaneously across all locations.

The local event was judged by Livonia Chamber of Commerce President Dan West and Livonia Treasurer Dennis Wright.

"It was an experience," West said. "You never know what you're getting into with something like this. You can definitely tell there was lots of energy and competitive juices flowing at this event."

The pressure builds for the last man on the team, Jared Exel of Farmington Hills (right). It will be his turn to stuff in the tater tots when Jason Beiger of Wayne finished his basket of golden death. That turn never came because Jason blew his tots all over the floor, immediately disqualifying the team. BILL BRESLER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

The winning Livonia team consisted of Jack Gundersen of Walled Lake, Jonathan Treece of Livonia, Josh Treece of Westland and Brandon Zanski of Flat Rock. They each won a "Rock the Tot" champions T-shirt and free tots for a year at Bar Louie.

The other team was disqualified when one of the team members threw up.

Matthew Holowicki of Plymouth was the winner of the solo challenge to eat as many tater tots as possible in three minutes. He consumed two pounds of tater tots under the deadline. His prize was a $250 Bar Louie gift card, champion trophy, T-shirt and free tater tots for one year.

The top five local winners from across the country will be awarded airfare and hotel accommodations to Cleveland to attend the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame and compete Oct. 5 at Bar Louie Cleveland for the title of "Rock the Tot" national champion. The grand prize winner will receive a $500 cash prize, free tater tots for life and hold the world record for most eaten tots in three minutes.

Almost 250,000 tater tots were consumed nationwide during last year's competition. The 2012 national champion, Jamie McDonald, consumed five pounds, four ounces of tater tots in six minutes.

The contest is in its sixth year nationally. For more information, visit www.rockthetot.com and facebook.com/barlouie.

Colbeck give special tribute to World War II veteran

State Sen. Patrick Colbeck awarded a special tribute during session Wednesday — Constitution Day — to James Palermo, a World War II veteran who served in the Pacific theater of combat. Many of Palermo's family watched from the Senate gallery as he was recognized on the Senate floor for his sacrifices to the nation.

Palermo registered for the draft on his 18th birthday, Jan. 18, 1944. He was sworn in to active duty April 5, 1944, at the Federal Building in Detroit and was soon assigned to the USS Thorn, a Navy destroyer.

"The decision Mr. Palermo made at the age of 18 is a sacrifice that few of us will make in our entire lives. He chose to put others before himself and to help defend this country in a time of need," said Colbeck, R-Canton. "Mr. Palermo served in some of the largest battles in the Pacific and his dedication to his country in its time of need will not soon be forgotten."

The USS Thorn was involved in six planned land attacks where it shot down two enemy planes, sunk one enemy ship and one submarine. It was involved in the Battle of Surigao Strait in the Philippines, the last battle-ship-versus-battleship engagement in history, and survived three typhoons.

The defeat of the Japanese at Surigao Strait played a significant role in winning the Battle of Leyte Gulf and, in so doing, helped to secure the beachheads of the U.S. Sixth Army on Leyte against a Japanese attack from the sea. Overall, Palermo traveled more than 225,000 miles on the ship in the Pacific Ocean.

"As we celebrate Constitution Day today, we recognize one of the members of our greatest generation who made great sacrifices so that all of us could continue to enjoy the freedoms he fought to protect," Colbeck said. "Mr. Palermo represents so many brave men and women who have answered the call to serve. Today's tribute is but one small way to send them our thanks."

Following World War II, Palermo worked for Ford Motor Co. until his retirement in 1986. He currently lives in Trenton and winters in Naples, Fla. He has four children, nine grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

SUPPORT HOSE

Swollen ankles are a common problem; the most likely cause is not heart failure or bad kidneys, but poor veins. The features of ankle swelling that lets a person know the problem comes from poor veins are:

- one ankle may be more swollen than the other, or one ankle swells but the other does not;
- at night, while in bed, the swelling goes down and the ankles are nearly normal on arising in the morning;

The reason for these features is that the body's veins are excellent conduits of blood from the feet to the heart, but the veins lack rigidity and over time lose their ability to keep their pipe like structure intact. The result is that blood pools in the ankles and feet. Women are more likely to experience poor veins because of childbirth and the attendant strain the enlarged uterus placed on the deep abdominal veins.

Support hose come into play as way of countering this pooling of venous blood. The individual hose fits from the toes to just below the knee giving a firm compression completely around the leg; this even compressive force brings the leg veins back to their pipe-like form, and allows the venous blood to return unhampered to the heart. If support hose are to do their job a person using them, must put them on in the morning before arising from bed. If legs swing over the bed and are in the down position, blood will pool immediately and the stockings will be rendered ineffective. An error in this procedure is the most common reason why support hose fail.

Come clean, file past income tax returns now

Q: Dear Rick: I have not filed tax returns in about 10 years. I used to file returns and then I had some personal issues and didn't file returns. My significant other has told me it's time to come clean and that I should file my back returns. We are not married and she does file her return. I'm not sure what I should do. I have never been contacted by the IRS or the state of Michigan. I am concerned what coming clean will cost.

If I do decide to file past returns, what am I looking at with regards to penalties? In addition, if I decide not to file my returns and I eventually do get caught, what is the worst that could happen to me?

A: I strongly recommend that you file your back tax returns. The issue is not whether the IRS will eventually catch you, which likely it will, but the law requires you to file tax returns. We should all strive to obey the law.

Rick Bloom
MONEY MATTERS

With regard to interest, penalties and other fees, that is difficult to determine at this point. The key is how much you owe in outstanding taxes. What some people find is that when they have not filed returns for years, they don't owe nearly as much as they think they do. I have seen situations where someone has filed past tax returns and find that they were entitled to a refund. Particularly for people who are W-2 employees and who have taxes withheld. They may find that by filing a return, they are entitled to get money back. When someone owes back taxes, the IRS always assesses interest on the amount owed. The interest rate the IRS charges varies with time and, typically, the IRS does not waive interest. The IRS has much more discretion when it comes to penalties. When returns are late, the IRS has the authority to issue a variety of penalties. Your past dealings with the IRS determine, in part, what penalties you will be assessed. While it is difficult to get the IRS to waive interest, it is much easier to get it to waive penalties, particularly when an individual comes forward and voluntarily reports his or her taxes.

I have seen situations where someone has filed past tax returns and find that they were entitled to a refund.

It is harder to have penalties waived in a situation where the IRS comes after you. In addition, if the IRS catches you, there is also the possibility that criminal charges can be filed. I recognize doing tax returns for 10 years is a difficult task. Many people may find that they don't have the necessary records needed to file a proper tax return.

That is why in most cases, when it comes to filing past tax returns, I recommend that you deal with a professional who can help you file an accurate return. When you're missing information, a professional can be of great assistance.

There is no doubt that filing your past due tax returns will be a relief for you. Having the fear that every day the IRS is going to come after you is no way to go through life. In addition, it is the law. Therefore, to meet your obligations as a good citizen, if you have not filed past tax returns, now is a great time to get those returns filed.

Good luck.

Freedom House: a beacon for refugees

Detroit institution brings message to Garden City Rotary meeting

By Sue Buck
Staff Writer

Cheryl Willett, retired from Garden City Public Schools since 2002, is anxious to inform others about what she's been up to recently.

For four years, she has worked as a volunteer for Freedom House in Detroit, a temporary shelter for refugees.

Freedom House has assisted refugees and survivors of persecution from around the world for 30 years and helps them gain asylum and a new start on life.

Willett brought Deb Drennan, executive director of Freedom House, and Lucie Nyobe, a refugee from Cameroon in Africa, to Thursday's Garden City Rotary Club meeting.

"I have always been interested in international affairs," Willett said, adding that she has been inspired by the stories told by the refugees about how they overcame immense challenges.

Freedom House is a nonprofit, non-political place that exists to provide shelter for victims of persecution seeking political asylum in the United States and Canada. Persecution means to harass, punish, injure, oppress or otherwise cause someone to suffer physical or psychological harm.

Saving lives

It's believed that through the years, it has saved hundreds of lives and helped many build new lives.

Finances are always a concern because its services are free to the refugees who seek temporary shelter and cannot work. Freedom House recently lost a major grant, so Drennan is worried about the future.

"I can't send people away from Freedom House," Drennan said. "Everyone should be treated with justice and dignity."

People come from all over the world for help. Nyobe, who has been in America for two years, fled her country after she was brutally tortured. She was delivering election ballots perceived to be against the current regime and suffered at the hands of her captors.

"I was raped," she said.

Knowing that the time was coming when she would be killed, she was given a bag containing clothing and a visa. She took it and fled.

She ended up in Atlanta, Ga., where she lived in the streets for six months before coming to Detroit. With the help of Freedom House, she said she is gaining back her "life and dignity" through the kindness of strangers.

According to published reports, political transitions in sub-Saharan Africa have consistently been difficult, in part, because incumbent heads of state have been obsessed with retaining political power for life.

The road has been rough for Nyobe.

"Lucie feels a lot of anxiety," Drennan said.

Prove persecution

Refugees seeking asylum have to be able to prove they have been persecuted. When fleeing for safety, many don't have all the necessary documentation. The U.S. is reportedly tightening down on requests for asylum, making it more difficult.

Freedom House tries to service all the needs by providing a temporary home and transitional housing, once the refugee gets asylum.

"Our services include medical services, mental health care, education, job training, recreation and legal aid," Drennan said.

But asylum cases take a long time - typically eight to 12 months, sometimes years. The refugees are not legally allowed to work while they wait.

"So they help where they can," Drennan said.

For more information about Freedom House, call Drennan at 313-964-4320.

Singing Hot Dog Man: Just say no (to ketchup)

By Jay Grossman
Staff Writer

It was April 12, 1999, the final Opening Day in the old Tiger Stadium and the first day on the job for Charley Marcuse - better known as the Singing Hot Dog Man.

"My dad saw an article in the newspaper that they were looking for vendors," Marcuse said. "I was looking to make a little extra cash and liked the idea of working outdoors - I thought it was perfect."

Indeed, it was perfect. Charley not only sold hot dogs, he built a reputation for his operatic singing during the games. Life was good, until a few weeks ago, when Marcuse was fired by the company that holds the food concession contract at Comerica Park.

Rumor has it he protested too loudly whenever a customer in the stands wanted ketchup on their hot dog.

Marcuse, 33, acknowledges he's definitely a mustard guy - he even started his own line of mustard in 2008 - but he's coy on the topic of whether he was fired for dissing ketchup.

Marcuse, who's also a full-time salesman at The Claymore Shop in Birmingham, talked with the Birmingham Eccentric about his love of baseball, hot dogs and mustard:

Q: Did you really get canned over ketchup?

Marcuse: I don't know that I got canned over ketchup. There's always difficulty sometimes when you have the same schtick over the years.

People complain from time to time, but it's never gone this far.

The important thing is, I've worked the same way for 15 years. So any suggestion that something is new doesn't make a lot of sense.

Q: What's wrong with ketchup?

Marcuse: My first year at ballpark was the first year they had packets for condiments - up to then, the mustard was slapped on with a tongue depressor.

One of the first groups I came to, they were "horrified," so to speak, that I had ketchup packets. They told me there's no place for ketchup on a hot dog.

I took what they said to heart and ever since then I've always encouraged the tradition of putting mustard on the hot dog.

Baseball is a game of tradition. You take your hat off and stand up for the national anthem. You stretch during the seventh inning.

So yeah, I carry ketchup and I've given it out. But I strongly encourage the use of mustard on a hot dog.

Q: How did the singing start?

Marcuse: That same first season, they had The Three Tenors at the stadium and I decided to have fun with it.

I put a bow tie and tailcoat over my uniform and started singing opera to sell hot dogs. Whole sections sang along, whole sections applauded.

Q: What are you going to miss most about the job?

Marcuse: Really the fans - that's what I keep coming back for. It started out as a summer job, but it really turned into a passion of mine. I built great relationships.

I have lots of regular customers who come and find me to get a hot dog. I'm going to a wedding next weekend of a customer I've befriended.

Q: You don't think the organization jinxed the team by dismissing you so abruptly?

Marcuse: I don't think so, not at all. I think we have a very talented team and I'm cheering for them as much as everyone else.

Q: Is anyone trying to help you win back your job?

Marcuse: There's been a lot of fan support. I'm also a member of a union and we've filed a grievance, so that's going through the appeal process.

I would very happily go back and there would be no hard feelings - certainly not on my end. I just try to do the best I can to create a special experience. The feedback I get is overwhelmingly positive.

Again, I sell a lot of hot dogs.

Q: What's next for you?

Marcuse: The season is close to done.

Hopefully I'll be able to work some playoff games - certainly I'll be watching them.

If this really is the end, I'll have to regroup and take on something new.

Some people have said I'm only talking to the media to make a name for myself.

But you called me, I didn't call you. I'm a hot dog vendor, for goodness sake.

I'm not doing it for the money and glory.

Paddlers needed for first Rouge River canoe race

By Kurt Kuban
Staff Writer

Attention, all canoeing enthusiasts. If you are looking for a challenge and want to paddle some relatively unknown water – not to mention have a chance to win some cash – I've got the perfect opportunity for you.

The main feature of the Rouge-A-Palooza festival Oct. 12 in downtown Wayne is the inaugural Logjam Classic Canoe Race. Organizers of the event, of which I am one, wanted to do something to celebrate the progress local communities have made in cleaning up the Rouge River in recent years. The city of Wayne has been at the forefront of this movement.

The canoe race covers a three-mile course through the Wayne County-owned Lower Rouge Parkway, which is a green ribbon of forest where trees tower overhead and wildlife makes its home. It is an oasis of nature in an otherwise urban landscape.

Friends of the Rouge has organized a group canoe trip on the Lower Branch of the Rouge each October for several years now and its popularity has continued to grow, with more than 50 people taking part last year.

To raise more awareness to this budding recreational opportunity, we decided to organize the race this year for those looking for a new challenge.

Here are the basics. Our hope is to get up to 30 canoes in the race. Each canoe must have two partners. Due to the limited size of the river, teams will be sent every five minutes and will be timed. The team with the best time will be awarded cash (the total will depend on the number of competitors) and trophies phies cut from an actual Rouge River logjam.

The beginning of the race is just east of John Hix Road on Commerce Court behind the Wayne County Department of Environment office, while the completion is at Goudy Park behind Wayne City Hall, where Rouge-A-Palooza will be taking place.

The festival will feature five bands (local favorite Tyrone Hamilton, folksinger Alan Cayn, bluegrass trio Troublesome Creek, alt-country band Corn-daddy, and the bluesy rockers Big Fatty), a beer tent featuring Michigan brew, a kayak raffle, rubber duck race, build your own miniature boat race for the kids, environmental educational booths, civic group booths, children's activities and a corn hole tournament. There will also be food vendors (Mean Weenie food truck, Las Cazuelas Grill, Avenue American Bistro, US-12 and Papa Romano's).

In addition, Friends of the Rouge will also be organizing its annual paddle trip, which will begin at the conclusion of the canoe race. For more information about how to joining the trip, visit its website at www.therouge.org or contact the group at 313-792-9900. There will be canoe rentals available through Friends of the Rouge.

For me, however, the race is the main event of the festival. In a day and age with extreme competitions like the Tough Mudder being so popular, the Logjam Classic should be appealing to paddlers who are looking for a tough physical challenge. Despite the name, there won't be any impassable obstructions in the river, but the Lower Rouge is a fairly technical course. There are logjams to maneuver around (and under, in some cases), riffle areas that must be navigated and lots of bends and turns to the river.

For this reason, we are only allowing experienced canoeists in the race. And you must be in good physical condition to participate.

Our rules are pretty basic: there must be two people in a canoe and any canoe can be used. Unlike the famous AuSable Canoe Marathon, the Logjam Classic is more of a sprint. Winning teams should finish in less than an hour.

Although Michigan Avenue and Ford Motor Co.'s massive Michigan Assembly complex are nearby, competitors in the race will never know it as the river traverses its way through a scenic terrain of large cottonwoods, maples, willows and sycamore trees.

LOGJAM CLASSIC RULES/REGISTRATION

The race takes place Oct. 12 in Wayne. Registration begins at 9 a.m. at 3600 Commerce Court in Wayne.

Here are the rules:

- » Two contestants for each canoe. They must remain as a team for the duration of the race, in the same canoe as started with.
- » Any canoe may be used.
- » Competitors must be at least 18 years old.

» Contestants must have a U.S. Coast Guard-approved P.F.D. (personal floatation device).

» Commonly accepted rules of sportsmanship will prevail. Intentional capsizing or damaging an opponent's canoe will mean disqualification.

» Preregistration is a must due to limited spots. Contact Kurt Kuban at 734-716-0783.

The whole point of the race is to draw more attention to the Lower Rouge and all the efforts that have been made to turn it back into a recreational resource for communities like Wayne, Canton Township, Westland and even Inkster and Dearborn further downstream. In fact, plans are currently under way to have the Lower Rouge designated a national water trail. Water quality of the river has improved dramatically in recent years, as local communities continue to make changes to clean it up.

The best thing about the Rouge River is the fact it's in our backyard. People who live in the Detroit area usually have to drive an hour or more to paddle a Michigan river. Our goal is to provide that opportunity closer to home.

If you think you have what it takes, preregister by contacting me at 734-716-0783 or kkuuban@hometownlife.com. We are only allowing 30 canoes in the race. Cost is $30 per boat. Each competitor will get a Rouge-A-Palooza T-shirt. If you don't have a canoe, but would like to compete, you can rent one for $35 through Heavener's Canoe & Kayak Rentals by contacting Jeff Valender at 248-798-7434.

If you don't want to compete in the race or participate in the group paddle, but are interested in efforts to clean up the river, head over Oct. 12 to Rouge-A-Palooza as we celebrate our river.

Kurt Kuban is the environmental reporter for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, community editor of the Northville Record and a Rouge River cleanup volunteer. He welcomes your feedback at kkuban@hometownlife.com or 734-716-0783.

REMARKABLE MEDICINE. REMARKABLE CARE.

Bats are nocturnal animals that are very beneficial to humans, according to Rob Mies, executive director of the Organization for Bat Conservation.

Scientist shares his love of bats

Great Lakes Bat Festival on tap

By Sandra Armbruster
Staff Writer

SOUTHFIELD — Rob Mies can thank his dad for his interest in bats. At least, that's how the whole thing started, he says.

"My dad took us camping every year," said Mies, who, as executive director of the Organization for Bat Conservation, could be called the original Bat Man. "I loved night time. I would walk through the fields with a flashlight."

Bats, as everyone knows, are nocturnal. Eastern Michigan University professor Alan Kurda really shined the light on Mies' future career.

"It was really by happenstance," Mies said. He was already studying ecosystems at EMU when he started working with Kurda. "I said, 'Hey, this bat thing is pretty good,'" he said.

Now, Mies has learned a lot more — like that there are 950 species of bats all over the world and that they have both an ecological and economic benefit.

So Mies — with his organization, which is headquartered in Cranbrook, where there is a bat center — spends his time spreading the word about all things related to bats.

And just in time for Halloween, Mies is bringing the 12th annual Great Lakes Bat Festival on Sept. 28 to the Southfield Pavilion, on Evergreen Road south of 11 Mile.

The event will include everything from a large tent outfitted like a bat cave to presentations and chances for hands-on activities. The real bats will be handled by the pros, though.

What can you learn by

going? Well, there will be a chance to buy Mies' new book, hear a talk by the first person to survive a rabies attack and learn things like a single bat must eat 2,000-5,000 insects every day.

Visitors also will have a chance to make bat houses out of old Chevy Volt battery covers. Bat houses, Mies said, are especially important in older neighborhoods by providing shelter for bats who might otherwise want to live behind house shutters.

The Organization for Bat Conservation sponsors 2,000 programs each year, Mies said, keeping him busy traveling all over to teach about bats and help organize other bat festivals and organizations.

But Mies says he is a field biologist at heart and still does some research. Finding that he has "a bit of a knack for education," however, changed his career.

Unlike overly cautious adults, "kids just totally dig it," Mies said of bat education.

"That's awesome. (They) will learn about bats in a safe and fun, engaging way."

The "cool thing," Mies tells the youngsters, when they ask a question he can't answer, is that science changes and that they can discover the answers themselves.

PREP FOOTBALL - WEEK 4

Franklin stuns Plymouth, 24-21

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Livonia Franklin put on its bullet-proof vests Friday night.

After building a 24-7 lead, the Patriots took state-ranked Plymouth's best shots during the final quarter and walked out of the Wildcats' den with an eye-opening 24-21 KLASA South Division football victory.

The loss snapped a two-game losing streak for Franklin, which now stands 2-2 overall and 1-1 in the South.

"We've had a real rough two weeks," Franklin coach Chris Kelbert said. "There was a lot of doubt in their minds. And I think that first quarter kind of brought it to a head, then all the sudden they saw they could compete. They saw they were a good football team. This is hopefully going to be our springboard."

Franklin junior Dan Huber was certainly a catalyst offensively as he ran for a hard-earned 137 yards on 29 carries and three touchdowns.

"We came into practice off a two-game losing streak and we just came ready to play," Huber said. "Just our focus was better than anything."

After leading 10-7 at half-time, the Patriots extended their advantage to 10 with 6:52 left in the third quarter on a 7-yard TD run by the 5-foot-11, 190-pound Huber.

Franklin then got the ball back just 1:34 later, when Tony Vella hit Plymouth quarterback A.J. Convertino, jarred the ball loose and Zach Buda recovered at the Wildcats' 9 setting up a 9-yard Huber touchdown run to make it 24-7 following Alejandro Castillo's PAT.

But Plymouth would not quit, pulling to within 24-21 as D.J. Rossell (15 carries, 98 yards) scored on a 33-yard TD run with 45.4 left in the third, then Convertino threw a 22-yard scoring pass to Connor Stella followed by the two-point conversion pass to Josh Morris with only 2:48 left.

But with the Wildcats out of timeouts, Franklin killed the clock as Huber rushed for a pair of key first downs to seal the win.

"I just knew we had to carry the ball and not let them get it back," Huber said.

Rockets, rain can't dampen Canton's homecoming

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

The prediction of heavy thunderstorms Friday night did not come to pass, but the Canton Chiefs rained down points instead.

Canton also made its homecoming game one to remember as the Chiefs pelted Westland John Glenn 55-14 in a KLASA South Division football tilt.

Scoring almost at will in the first half to go up 35-0 by the time the homecoming king and queen were crowned, the Chiefs (4-0 overall, 2-0 in the KLASA South) had such a grip on the victory that the second half was played with a running clock.

"This is a fun group. They're practicing their butts off and it's a game of momentum," Canton head coach Tim Baechler said. "It's a little bit of a surprise that we're doing it so well."

"We really haven't had many close games other than the first one. But I'm not going to complain."

Baechler credited a total team effort on defense for the lopsided outcome.

Apparently, in addition to watching the Weather Channel, the Chiefs spent some time studying film of John Glenn running back Devon Spalding — who ran for about 220 yards the previous week against Livonia

Spalding could not get untracked against Canton, winding up with 11 all-purpose yards.

Plymouth resident Dan Martin, 67, recently scored a hole-in-one at Bushwood Golf Club in Northville. Martin aced the 128-yard, No. 3 hole using an 8-iron. He finished with a 31 for the day. It was his second hole-in-one.

Schoolcraft grounds jets

Romario Georgis figured in all four second-half goals Wednesday to propel the Schoolcraft College men's soccer team to a 4-0 victory over Jackson Community College.

The Ocelots, who snapped a modest two-match losing streak, improved to 3-4 overall and 2-3 in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association.

Joshua Hayer scored what proved to be the game-winning goal in the 48th minute off an assist from Georgis.

Georgis then scored an unassisted goal 1:34 later, his sixth of the season, to make it 2-0.

Goals by Victor Ammons and Mustapha Raychouni in the 55th and 57th minutes, respectively, sealed the win as Georgis assisted on both tallies.

Schoolcraft starting goalkeeper Sean Simney played the first 62:54 and made four saves before giving way to Ryan Tikey, who completed the shutout.

KLAA VOLLEYBALL

Wildcats rally, win first ever at Churchill

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Already trailing 2-0 in sets Thursday at Livonia Churchill, all Plymouth needed was an energetic play to shake off the rust.

And that big spike kill by Wildcats' junior middle hitter Olivia Beyer turned out to be the start of something good — and historic — against the Chargers.

Plymouth roared back to win that third set by a 25-23 score and went on to post 25-13 and 15-12 wins to clinch the KLASA South Division varsity girls volleyball match in five.

It was the first time in Plymouth history that the Wildcats defeated the state-ranked Chargers at Churchill, coach Sarah Marody said.

"We couldn't get anything going," said Marody, about the opening 13-25 and 12-25 losses. "We were sitting back on our heels and being reactive instead of proactive."

"After Olivia Beyer's kill on the 10-foot line in the third game we decided to wake up and play our game."

All of a sudden, the Wildcats' thumpers were thumping and the defense was shutting down the Chargers.

"Nothing was going to hit the floor and our blocking game was finally turning around," Marody said. "And the atmosphere was electric. The girls were ready to leave it all on the court."

Key contributors were many for Plymouth, now 9-4 overall and 2-1 in the KLASA South. (Churchill's fell to 14-5-1, 2-1.)

Beyer spearheaded the Wildcats with 17 kills along with 11 blocks and 17 digs in an outstanding all-around performance.

GIRLS CROSS COUNTRY

Salem squad back on track with two victories

Salem's varsity girls cross country team looked to rebound from a couple of tough tournaments and did just that Tuesday.

The Rocks took both ends of a double dual meet against South Lyon and South Lyon East at Island Lake Park (15-50 for each matchup).

Salem (2-0 in dual meets) put eight runners in front of the first South Lyon and South Lyon East runners.

"The girls bounced back with a dominant performance after a rough weekend," Salem girls cross country coach Dave Gerlach said. "A beautiful day brought out some good performances. We turned things around today and got back on track."

Kayla Kavulich led the Salem assault with a first-place finish of 19 minutes, 56 seconds.

The next seven finishers also were from Salem. Those included (in order): Lauren Arquette, 20:23; Anya Cho, 20:29; Natasha Stevenson, 20:49; Kayla Hughes, 20:55; Elizabeth Tripp, 21:07; Emily Marcero, 21:21; Sierra Bowden, 21:31.

Salem will look to keep the momentum going with a dual meet Tuesday, Sept. 24, against No. 1-ranked Northville at Willow Metropark.

Whalers' Jones ready to bust out

Rochester native looks to emerge as OHL defenseman

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Mitch Jones figures the 2013-14 season could be when he really breaks out for the Plymouth Whalers.

If he does, the Rochester native figures he will really give his hometown family and friends even more reason to cheer this winter.

"It's great because my family comes more often, I get to see my family," said the 18-year old Jones, a 5-11, 190-pound defenseman. "I'm a little more fortunate than some of these other players that we have on our team, coming from everywhere.

"So it's great, I have friends and relatives coming out. It's nice, just being from the local area."

Jones, who graduated in 2012 from Stoney Creek High School, already is pumped about taking another big step for the Ontario Hockey League Whalers.

"You know, I got into quite a few games last year, the experience was great," Jones said. "It's a high-tempo game, quick speed, it really helps develop you into the next year and every year you keep getting into the season.

"Playing for the Whalers,

Plymouth Whalers' defenseman Mitch Jones (No. 6) is a native of Rochester and graduate of Stoney Creek High School. RENA LAVERTY | PLYMOUTH WHALERS

you just get better and better."

Last year might have been that breakout season for Jones if not for a mid-season knee injury that limited him to 35 games.

That ordeal thankfully is behind him and Jones is optimistic he will reap the benefits as a result — both individually (he will look to improve upon last year's output of five assists) and with the Whalers.

"Training camp went well, we played three Blue-White scrimmages, played very well as a team," Jones said. "We have a lot of potential, a lot of young guys coming in, a lot of rookies.

"I think we should be pretty good this year and I'm looking forward to the season. I'm excited."

Jones said he was hopeful family and friends would be in attendance Saturday night at Compuware Arena for Plymouth's home opener against Erie.

But he doesn't mind sharing the spotlight with his younger brother Max, who is playing on

WHALERS DROP OPENER

The Plymouth Whalers opened up the 2013-14 Ontario Hockey League season with Friday night's 3-0 loss to the host London Knights.

Kyle Platzer got the Knights on the board on a power play with 7:33 left in the first period, sending a shot past Plymouth goaltender Alex Nedeljkovic (37 saves). Platzer then made it 2-0 at 16:08 of the middle period before Dakota Mermis closed out the scoring on a shorthanded tally with just 1:02 remaining in the second.

The Whalers (0-1) were unable to solve the goalkeeping of Anthony Stolarz, who stopped all 30 shots he saw, including 15 in the third period.

Just over 9,000 were in attendance at Budweiser Gardens to watch the contest.

the Honeybaked 98 Midget-Major team based out of Hazel Park.

"Max is coming into his OHL draft year," Jones said. "I'm sure I'll have some family out here, but it's Max's time now, too."

Yet it very well could also be Mitch's time to shine.

"I need to put up a few more points, maybe a couple more fights," he said with a laugh.

PREP FOOTBALL

Rocks tumble, fall 42-21 to Northville

Salem is still looking for that elusive first victory of the 2013 football season.

The Rocks traveled to Northville Friday, but it wasn't a fun trip as the Mustangs rolled to a 42-21 KLAAs Central Division victory.

Six turnovers cost Salem (0-4 overall, 0-2 in the KLAAs Central) as Northville (3-1, 2-0) broke out to a 34-7 halftime lead and could not recover.

Bright spots for the Rocks included a strong night by Drake Jordan, who rushed 16 times for 172 yards and scored on touchdown runs of three and 74 yards along with a touchdown pass from quarterback Alex Nicholson to wide-out Michael Hoover (2-33).

Nicholson connected on only four of 17 passing attempts for 92 yards. But he did rush for 86 yards as he tried to jump-start Salem's offense.

Salem will try to finally get a win 7 p.m. Friday against South Lyon on homecoming night at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

SOUTH LYON 24, STEVENSON 21: Vince Candella's 30-yard field goal with only 1:42 remaining proved to be the game-winner as the Lions (2-2, 1-1) pulled out the KLAAs Central Division triumph Friday at Livonia Stevenson (2-2, 1-1).

The Spartans led 7-0 after one quarter thanks to an 8-yard touchdown run by senior quarterback C.J. Weiss followed by Chris Bladbeck's extra point.

In the second quarter, South Lyon evened the count at 7-all on Anton Scupin's 4-yard TD run followed by Candella's PAT.

Weiss added his second TD of the same quarter on a 64-yard run, but Trevor Tank pulled the Lions even again at 14-14 on a 7-yard scoring run.

In the third quarter, sophomore Austin Petrie scored on a 65-yard run, but Tank answered with his second TD of the night with a 5-yard run.

Petrie was Stevenson's leading ball carrier with 100 yards on eight carries, while Weiss was 4-of-15 passing for 28 yards and one interception.

Stevenson's top tacklers included Rob Schneider (five solo, nine assists), Devin Kelly (five solo, three assists), and Dom Ferrera (one solo, six assists). Kelly also had a fumble recovery.

OAK CHRISTIAN 24, LUTH. WESTLAND 22: In a Michigan Independent Athletic Conference game Friday, host Auburn Hills Oakland Christian (2-2, 1-1) kept Lutheran High Westland (0-4, 0-2) winless.

(2-2, 1-1 in the KLAAs South) could not gain much traction almost from the start of the game.

Weather had nothing to do with that, but rather the heady performance of the Rockets' opponent, he emphasized.

"They (Chiefs) played great football today," Hardin said. "They're very well-coached, I don't think that with our guys effort was an issue.

"I don't think the weather helped, and just the momentum. We couldn't get the momentum on our side at all and that hurt us."

Like a well-oiled machine, the Chiefs moved down the field for touchdowns on all five first-half possessions. At the half, Canton had out-gained John Glenn by approximately 200-60 and finished with a healthy margin of 441-218.

But things might have been a little different had the Rockets come up with a big stop on Canton's first drive.

With about eight minutes to go in the first and the Chiefs facing a fourth-and-three at the Rockets' 12-yard line, Canton junior quarterback Greg Williams (5-of-5 passing, 101 yards, all in the first half) rolled right and fired a touchdown pass to senior Jake Boucher.

"Our first series on defense, we played well," Hardin said. "And really, we had them shut down. And then they hit a pass over our guy's head.

"But they scored and came right back and scored again and at that point it's hard to keep the momentum. We just didn't play as inspired as they did today."

Trickery works

Canton's second TD came with 11:55 left in the first half, when Williams scored on a 5-yard run around the right edge. Helping set up the play was a nifty fake into the line by running back Robert Daoud.

"Good fakes, that's part of our offense," Williams said. "We trick guys and fool them and it works."

On the Chiefs' next series, a zig-zagging 43-yarder by Daoud set up Williams' 13-yard TD burst through the middle of the defense.

Williams connected on a 53-yard pass to Charles Turfe to start off Canton's subsequent possession. Three plays later, senior Westen Price took it in from 12 yards out to put the Chiefs up 28-0.

Before the intermission, extra effort by Turfe resulted in a 4-yard score to build the 35-point halftime bulge.

Brian Newton and Turfe scored on runs of 1 and 8 yards, respectively, to make it 49-0 before the Rockets finally got on the scoreboard. Adding his sixth and seventh extra points of the night was Canton kicker Andrew Loehnis.

Quarterback Chris Scheffer (5-of-8 passing, 104 yards) teamed up with Jaron Flourony on a beautiful, 80-yard catch-and-run with 2:34 left in the third.

Scoring Canton's final touchdown of the game was Dallas Garvey, on a 1-yard plunge.

John Glenn added an 83-yard touchdown run by Kimari Johnson, who walked the tightrope down the right sideline for the final 30 yards of the play.

Sharing the load

The Chiefs had 11 players gain at least 1 yard rushing. Leading the way with 73 yards in seven carries was Ty Jasmin, with Williams (seven carries, 59 yards), Turfe (11 carries, 50 yards, two TDs), Daoud (three rushes, 48 yards), Wainwright (five rushes, 44 yards) and Price (seven carries, 34 yards, one TD) not far behind.

"The run game was going good and the outside (run) was really working good," Williams said. "The line did great. They were pinching in for the inside game, but we got them on the outside."

Before the opening kickoff, Baechler said the team wanted to get right to business not knowing what the weather might hold.

"Yeah, earlier today we were worried about it (the forecast)," Baechler said. "And once we got out here, we knew we had an open window of a couple hours where we could get it in."

The Rockets might have wished that those rains indeed had come, the way it turned out for them.

"Personally this is great because this is my first year of varsity football and I haven't run the ball since my freshman year and I got three touchdowns today, which is great. But I couldn't have done it without my offensive line."

Despite two holding calls, including one that nullified an 86-yard Rossell TD run, the Wildcats were able to march 89 yards in 10 plays capped by Rossell's 6-yard scoring run with 6:47 left in the first quarter to take a 7-0 lead.

The Patriots then answered with a Castillo 33-yard field goal with 1:42 left in the first quarter to cut the deficit to 7-3.

On the ensuing kickoff, Plymouth's Cameron Stella found a seam up the middle and raced 99 yards for a TD, but the play was called back by a holding call. Franklin was also penalized for a personal foul, putting the ball on the Patriots' 34.

But the Wildcats were stalled as Viet Nguyen missed a 38-yard field-goal attempt with 10:10 left in the second quarter.

The Patriots dodged another bullet when they were stopped on fourth-and-five at the Plymouth 47, when Caleb Finamore intercepted a Plymouth pass, wrestling the ball away from Connor Stella at the Franklin 20.

Franklin then got a pair of big passing plays from Kyle Riley to Charles Keith of 23 and 21 yards to set up Dan Huber's 21-yard TD run with 3:44 left in the half. Castillo's PAT made it 10-7 for the Patriots.

The Wildcats had another long gain — a 70-yard run by Rossell — wiped out by another holding call. "I can't wait to see the film because I didn't see it, but maybe it was," Plymouth coach Mike Sawchuk said of the holding calls. "But bottom line that was the most undisciplined game I've ever been a part of while I've been here. I guess that's what you get with young kids. I'm furious at them right now after I told them about keeping their composure. You can't expect to pull out games every week at the end. You're going to run out and that's what I kept telling them. You put yourself in bad situations ..."

In the final quarter, Franklin made a key stop on fourth-and-two at its own 9 and also got an interception from Caleb Finamore with 5:43 left after the ball was tipped by teammate Dan Cline.

"From an offensive standpoint, our guys up front did really good job opening a lot of holes," Kelbert said. "Huber ran really, really hard and our defense was opportunistic. They got turnovers when they needed to.

"The first half, the offense moved the ball. Second half, we didn't move it quite as well, but the defense stepped up when down inside the nine — that was huge."

And there was no "Cardiac 'Cats' comeback this time for Plymouth, which was coming off a pair of one-point victories. The loss drops the Wildcats to 3-1 and 1-1.

"Hey, they're a tough team and coach Kelbert always brings a tough team out on the field," Sawchuk said. "I give credit to them. I thought we self-implored a lot. I thought we blew a lot of assignments. And credit to them, they kicked our tails."

Eagles put hammer down on Warriors

PCA comes out strong after defeat to Lancers

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

There would not be a repeat of Tuesday night for Plymouth Christian Academy's varsity volleyball team and the Lutheran Westland Warriors paid for it.

The Eagles on Thursday night hammered visiting Lutheran Westland in three sets, making sure they did not again let a victory slip away — as they had done two nights earlier against Oakland Christian.

PCA took advantage of some late miscues in the opening set by the Warriors to win 25-18 and pulled away with 25-17 and 25-13 victories in the subsequent sets to sweep the Michigan Independent Athletics Conference - Blue Division match.

"We came out really aggressive and ready to make up for that (Oakland Christian) game," said PCA senior middle blocker/setter Jen Malcolm. "We got to get a good pass to set our offense up and once we do that we're pretty much good."

Eagles' head coach Katie Decker said the team (6-3-2 overall, 1-2 in the MIAC Blue) talked about finishing the job against the Warriors, and she wasn't disappointed.

"We were just focused on maintaining our confidence," Decker said. "Even though we had such a tough loss (against the Lancers), I just kept emphasizing confidence and that we were going to play all the way through the game."

"We weren't going to stop after the second game. They came out and they definitely played well. There were a lot of things they did much better tonight."

According to Warriors head coach Kevin Wade, whose team dropped to 2-6-1 overall and 1-1 in the division, Thursday's contest was a bit of a letdown after the team's victory over Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest.

"We had a really tough match on Tuesday, a real emotional high, and today was definitely a hangover. Not taking anything away from Plymouth Christian, they played very well."

"But compounding it with our mistakes makes for a short night."

Mounting miscues

The tone was set early, according to Wade.

"In the first set we were right there, (but then) eight straight errors and they win the game," Wade said. "Second set we picked up right where we left off and tried to chase to come back, but too little, too late.

"Sometimes it's just one of those nights. They kept putting the pressure on us and we kept making mistakes."

PCA senior outside hitter Rachael Fuller (13 kills, 10 digs) and freshman outside hitter Olivia Mady (15 kills, eight digs) did much of the damage against the Warriors.

"She (Fuller) was on fire tonight," Decker said. "She couldn't do anything wrong. She was digging, she was hitting, she was all over the place."

For the Warriors, senior libero Julia Nancy had a strong night with 20 digs.

Senior Leah Refenes contributed five kills and five assists.

Juniors Sabrina Morrison

(nine digs) and Alexandria Lange each went 9-for-9 from the stripe.

In the second set, Malcolm's six-point service run (with Malcolm setting up slams by Mady for two of the points) gave PCA a commanding 18-8 advantage.

It was more of the same in the third set, with Malcolm serving four points in a row, helping build a double-digit lead (18-7).

Wade lamented that whenever the Warriors seemed to have something brewing, they would serve the ball into the net or send the ball out of bounds.

"Against a team this good, you can't give them any extra points," he noted.

Smalls (six kills, 12 digs, 24 assists), Dani Barile (13 assists), Haylee Weber (21 digs) and Katie Stevens (eight digs) all chipped in with solid showings.

"Our seniors and veterans led the turnaround and carried the team," Marody said.

Salem bounces back

After Tuesday's tough loss to Northville, the Salem Rocks needed a pick-me-up and got one Thursday against South Lyon.

Salem scored a 25-17, 25-17, 21-25, 25-20 KLA Central Division volleyball victory to improve to 3-6 overall and 1-2 in the division.

Michelle Dierker was outstanding with 12 kills out of 19 attempts while Tess Ganich added 13 kills, eight aces, six digs and 22 assists.

Also helping Salem's cause were Nicole Jablonski (16 assists), Kelly Whalen (eight kills), Nikki Manser (16 digs) and Kelly Lidzbarski (26 digs).

"Our serve receive was much better and that allowed us to have an attack," Rocks coach Amanda Nies said. "Defensively, we moved well and passed well. Our serving team was a little shaky missing 14 serves. ... but we overcame it."

South Lyon fell to 0-3 in the KLA Central.

Meanwhile, Salem got swept 20-25, 10-25, 22-25 Tuesday by Northville, as the Rocks had trouble finishing off sets.

Lidzbarski and Ganich had 10 and nine digs, respectively while Taylor Jaaska collected six assists.

Chiefs prevail

On Thursday, host KLA South Division leader Canton (7-2, 3-0) downed Wayne Memorial (0-12-3, 0-3) in three sets, 25-8, 25-22, 25-15.

BOYS SOCCER

Rocks, Chiefs still undefeated

Salem's juggernaut of a varsity boys soccer team did plenty of damage Thursday against South Lyon East, winning 9-1.

For the host Rocks (8-0-3 overall, 6-0-0 in the KLA Central), Brady Cole scored three goals and assisted on three others to pace the rout.

Tallying two assists each were Matt DeMoss and David Schroeder.

Registering the shutout was junior Chad Wind.

Other players to score included Connor Cole (from Jacob Kunnath), Luke Nolta (from DeMoss), Max Kummer (from Brady Cole), Jordan

Salhani (from Schroeder/Brady Cole), Nick Massey (from Collin Hewett) and Joe Kunnath (from Brady Cole).

Will Benintende also picked up an assist.

South Lyon East dropped to 2-7-0 overall and 0-6-0 in the KLA Central.

Chiefs win again

Canton also stayed undefeated for the season with Thursday's 5-0 win over host Westland John Glenn.

A four-goal first half got things started for the Chiefs. Scoring two of those markers was Griffin Parks, with single tallies by Mathew Causley and Bailey Riegel.

Drawing assists on those goals were Aiden Shennan, Alex Rej and Sam DeLo.

Finishing off the scoring in the second half was Jason Ren, who was awarded a penalty kick after a skillful run into the box.

Strong defense and sturdy goalkeeping (shared by Brandon Pickert and Andrew Loehnis) helped the Chiefs up their record to 10-0-2 overall and 6-0-0 in the KLA South Division.

John Glenn is 3-7-0 and 1-5-0.

» Carter Schenk set up an early goal by Griffin Parks

Friday night and it held up as visiting Canton earned a 1-0 victory over Walled Lake Northern.

Goalkeepers Brandon Pickert and Jay Krebs each played a half in goal to earn the shutout for Canton (11-0-2, 6-0).

PLYMOUTH 4, WAYNE 0: Danny Butes scored a pair of goals Thursday leading the Wildcats (4-7-1, 4-1-1) to a KLA South Division victory at Wayne Memorial (1-8, 0-6).

Brandon Burger and Michael Bryden also added goals for Plymouth, while goalkeeper Kevin Favero posted the shutout.

LUTH. WESTLAND 3, CALVARY 1: Troy Gotchev tallied a pair of first half goals Thursday as host Lutheran High Westland (6-2, 6-0) downed Ypsilanti Calvary Christian (1-5 MIAC Red).

Gotchev scored in the 15th minute off a cross from Nick Flanery and added a goal in the 35th minute on a free kick from Walter Gembariski.

After Calvary scored in the 39th minute to cut the deficit to 2-1, Gembariski scored midway through the second half on a penalty kick to seal the win.

RUNNING

Hines Park Heroes race good timing for Kurtis

By Brad Emmons
Staff Writer

Doug Kurtis has covered the gamut when it comes to distance running.

But the 61-year-old Livonian, the world record holder for sub 2-hour and 20-minute marathons (76), will prep for his final marathon (Oct. 19 in Detroit) by running the first-ever Wayne County Parks Heroes on Hines half-marathon on Saturday, Oct. 5.

Kurtis, who has completed an astounding 199 of his 202 marathons in under 3 hours, can literally walk out his back door and onto the Hines Park course.

"I've been running Hines since 1968 because I grew up off of Hines," Kurtis said. "That's an area I'm so familiar with, so it's kind of fun to be able to race where I run all the time."

Proceeds from the race, which also includes a 5K run-walk, will go toward the First Responders Memorial currently being erected at the corner of Hines Drive and Haggerty Road.

Kurtis, a six-time Detroit Marathon winner and five-time U.S. Olympic Trials qualifier, is more than happy to support the cause for those firefighters, EMTs and police officers who have lost their lives as first responders.

Back in April, Kurtis' wife

Ann completed the Boston Marathon just minutes after the bomb explosions went off.

"I've seen renderings of the (Hines for Heroes) memorial and it looks fabulous," said Kurtis, a Stevenson High grad who ran at Michigan State.

"This race is special, especially being after what happened in Boston. The risks those people take are amazing. You have to be strong-willed to do that and to be put in harm's way. It's a tough thing to do, especially on a consistent basis."

Kurtis, a Ford Motor Co. retiree who underwent prostate surgery in 2012, has bounced back in 2013 with a series of nice performances.

On May 5, he completed his 199th marathon under 3 hours in Mississauga, Ontario, with a clocking of 2:58:12 (13th overall).

In June, he was gunning for his 200th 26.2-mile run in under 3 hours, but fell short at one of his favorite races, Grandma's in Duluth, Minn., (where he's won twice).

"I was battling some allergies and my training was not good," said Kurtis, who ran 12 sub-2:20s in 1989. "Usually I'm pretty consistent and good at racing, but I probably went out little too hard and ran out of gas with five miles to go. At three (to go) I pretty much knew I wasn't going to hit three (hours), so I bagged it and kind of backed off."

Livonian Doug Kurtis will prep for the Detroit Free Press Marathon by running the Heroes for Hines half-marathon Oct. 5. DAVE MCCAULEY

Coming off his best half-marathon of the season, a 1:24:24 Sunday at the Capitol City River Run in Lansing, Kurtis has been pleased with his 2013 race campaign.

"At the beginning of the year I almost said I'm done with my career," Kurtis said. "But people told me, you're two away from 200 sub 3-hour marathons. If I don't do it now, I'll never do it."

The Free Press Marathon will be Kurtis' final competitive hurrah as he'll concentrate full-time on being director of a pair of highly popular downtown races, the Turkey Trot and Corktown.

He'll continue running and doing races for fun, but the high mileage weeks will subside.

"That's it, if I don't do it, I'm done," Kurtis said of his sub 3-hour goal in Detroit. "I'm running 70 miles per week. It's a lot of work. The Heroes run is really my last race before Detroit, so it kind of fits in perfectly with my schedule. Seventy miles a week is a lot of work, but I don't want to devote that much time to training. I've been doing this for 45 years now. I just said, 'Alright, that's enough.' I'll stay in shape and run races for fun, but I don't want to race at this level anymore."

Meanwhile, the chance to run on familiar turf is something Kurtis couldn't pass up on Oct. 5.

"Like any team you're better off at home," he said. "You just feel more comfortable when you know your surroundings."

The Heroes on Hines half-marathon starts at 8 a.m. followed by the 5K at 8:30 a.m.. The event is sponsored by Running Fit and the Observer and Eccentric Newspapers. The cost is $34 (5K) and $59 (half-marathon) if registered by Oct. 3.

Redford artist takes a prehistoric approach to painting

Tony DeCesco wants visitors to do a little simulated spelunking at his ArtPrize entry in Grand Rapids.

The 80-year-old Redford artist created a concave prehistoric-style painting, "Spirit of the Buffalo," that's designed to imitate a cave drawing.

"The thought came to my mind last November of the buffalo and it grew from that," DeCesco said. "I thought it would be unique, what I had in mind. I made a metal frame on wheels and have metal and cement. It weighs about 160 pounds and it's five feet high and five feet wide."

The result is a moveable hunk of cement that gives viewers the feel of a cavern wall without the hassle of having to crawl through a cave. DeCesco fashioned handmade tools to "paint" the dry powder dye onto the wet surface of his cement canvas.

"It's the way I thought it would turn out. I'm quite happy with it."

"Spirit of the Buffalo" is on exhibit indoors at the Harris Building, 111 S. Division.

Metal meets fur in outdoor panda bear sculpture

Melissa Machnee of Canton combined two unlikely materials for her ArtPrize entry, "Yoga Bear." The 67-inch panda wears faux fur over its aluminum frame as it sits atop a lotus flower.

Melissa Machnee of Canton created this happy panda, "Yoga Bear" for ArtPrize in Grand Rapids.

"I've used it in the past on my other sculptures and it works well outside," she said, adding that if it rains, the fur "just has to be fluffed up."

Machnee, a third generation welder who teaches her craft at Schoolcraft College and Wayne County Community College, entered ArtPrize for the first time four years ago on the urging of friends.

"They said it was a great experience, you should do it. It has been an amazing experience. It's getting bigger every year. I really enjoy it."

"Yoga Bear" is on display outside the Gerold R. Ford Federal Building U.S. Courthouse, 110 Michigan Street NW. It's the same location Machnee displayed her submission last year.

"It's the perfect spot, right in front of the Calder piece," she said, referring to the Alexander Calder sculpture, "La Grande Vitesse," a Grand Rapids landmark that anchors a plaza at the Ford Building.

Machnee has a dozen other pieces on display outdoors in the Irish Hills where she created a sculpture park at her family's cottage.

She used scrap aluminum in "Yoga Bear" to keep costs down and create a lighter sculpture than her previous steel ArtPrize entries.

"It made it a lot easier to install this year."

Read the book, see the play and wear Livonia artist's jewelry at ArtPrize Samantha Lewis designed her ArtPrize entry – some 40 pieces of jewelry – with its exhibit venue in mind.

The Livonia woman's collection of earrings, bracelets, necklaces and rings are on display at the Grand Rapids Civic Theatre, which will present the drama, The Giver, next month. The play is based on a Newbery Award-winning book by Lois Lowry about a rigidly-controlled utopian society and the two individuals who remember what the world was like when it had color and variety.

"I've never been in an art competition before. Last year I went to ArtPrize without a plan and just walked around to see what I could see. As I was walking around I thought, I think I could do this."

"Initially I thought I would do something on an under-the-sea theme, but when I started learning more about the Civic Theatre I said I wanted to do something themed around a show. I wanted to do The Giver."

That was last June when Lewis began working on the components of her entry, "Spectrum of Thought." It's on display in a window at the theater, 30 N. Division Ave.

The pieces are meant to show a progression from monotone "sameness" to color and personality.

It's the first time that Lewis, 24, who is a self-taught jewelry maker, has created a collection to suit a particular theme and venue.

Samantha Lewis says she wears her handmade rings before selling them to make sure they are comfortable.

While completing her ArtPrize entry over the summer, Lewis also was busy filling orders for weddings, launching a website (samanthaoriginals.com) and making pieces for exhibit at Merri-Craft Florist in Livonia.

She also works as a Mary Kay Cosmetics consultant, a job that helped pay her way through general business classes and welding instruction at Schoolcraft College, along with the retail merchandising management program at Madonna University.

She started making her own jewelry about 10 years ago after getting her ears pierced.

"All of the earrings I got were uncomfortable. I started working with lighter materials and making them myself. I'm always balancing the industrial elements, the metallics and chains, with natural elements."

She strives to make pieces that are "outrageous, fun and unforgettable." That includes 7-inch-long earrings and stone-studded wires that are twisted into abstract shapes on simple finger rings.

She tests out her creations to make sure they feel comfortable and stand up to everyday wear.

Lewis said she has enjoyed the ArtPrize process, from application to exhibit.

"I know there's a big focus on winning, but it's been more of a journey for me. I've never done a (jewelry) line with so much thought. It's stretching the boundaries for me."

Fabric images recall trip to northern Michigan for Westland painter

Joanna Tlok of Westland captures movement, smooth texture and the weightlessness of silky scarves in her oil paintings.

But there's more to her still life compositions than realistic images. Every fold, every draped and flowing swatch of fabric evokes a memory or emotion.

Tlok's ArtPrize entry, "Indian Summer," recalls a warm late summer/early autumn day with its orange and gold hues.

"It was a trip to Indian River in northern Michigan," Tlok recalled the setting that inspired her work. "The atmosphere was amazing. There was fog, like a veil. It was so beautiful. I remember the situation and after a few months when I had the time to paint it, I just confirmed what was in my mind."

"I don't take photos. I don't sketch. My process is completely different than other artists."

Although her work is on display at galleries in Birmingham, Pittsburgh, Pa., and soon in Ann Arbor, "Indian Summer" is Tlok's first entry into ArtPrize. A friend suggested that she submit a painting for the event.

"I sent an image and they accepted. I am so happy to see the huge focus on art and the joy of what you can see and do there (at ArtPrize)," Tlok said. She plans to see her work on display at The Jon Hartman Photography Co. & 87 Orange Photography, 105 S. Division Ave., in Grand Rapids this weekend.

Tlok, who is married

and has two grown daughters, began dabbling in art as a young child in her native Poland.

"I always knew I wanted to do it, be creative and live in an artistic world."

She attended art school in Wroclaw, Poland and then took education classes, enabling her to teach at the elementary level. When her family moved to Michigan 22 years ago, Tlok decided to paint while also raising her daughters.

"My husband asked me what I was going to do here (in the U.S.) and I also questioned myself. My English is not perfect. I didn't want to be involved with another school. I realized I had to do what I had to do and what I love to do and that is art."

At first she started painting images of glass that she had collected while in Poland. She painted a series and found a gallery owner in Birmingham who was "crazy about glass" and willing to display her work.

"I remember at this time I painted a lot of glass, but at some point the fabric became number one for me. Fabric is something different. I have to use my imagination and it is more difficult."

Tlok hopes "Indian Summer" at ArtPrize will help expand the audience for her work and enable her to meet other artists.

Local girls act on the professional stage in 'Macbeth'

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Sara Borsodi's only 12, but the Redford girl has performed in Shakespeare's Macbeth on two different stages.

"My first play at Motor City Youth Theatre was Macbeth, it was a condensed version," said Sara, a seventh grader at Pierce Middle School. She played multiple roles, including King Duncan, a murderer, messenger and servant in that production.

She and Natalie Wilson, 9, who's also a Motor City Youth Theatre member and a fourth grader at Cass Elementary in Livonia, play children in the current production at The Hillberry Theatre on the Wayne State University campus in Detroit.

Motor City Youth Theatre director, Nancy Florkowski, got the girls the gigs.

"I'm in the show also," said Florkowski, who plays Lady Macbeth's gentlewoman. "The director asked me for kids, because I have connections."

Although two undergrad students are cast as youths in the play, the director, also wanted smaller actors for two of the child roles. That's when Florkowski suggested Sara and Natalie for the parts.

"Sara and Natalie were my leads in A Little Princess (last year). Natalie played the princess and Sara was Miss Minchin, which is a huge grown-up role."

Florkowski said she knew the two girls could handle the show which includes several matinee performances this fall and in spring 2014.

"They do have lines. The lines normally belong to one kid, but they are sharing them. They do get murdered in this play. It's a horrible scene but so well done."

Choreographing a scene

Sara, who hopes to pursue theater in college, said she learned a lot about stage fighting and choreography through the production, particularly for her death scene.

"I get killed by the murderer, choking me. I'm yelling and screaming. He grabs me on the shoulder and turns me, but doesn't hurt me," she said, describing the staging technique. "I put my hands on the front of my neck, because my back is to the audience and I grab onto the rope. When he pulls the rope down I start making choking noises."

Sara, daughter of Rebecca and Dan Borsodi, said her favorite part of the play is performing the death scene.

"There aren't many times in life you can scream and continue screaming and have everyone be okay with it," she explained.

Having fun

Natalie, daughter of Jan and Earl Wilson, also performed in Les Miserables at Meadow Brook Theatre in Rochester Hills, in addition to shows at Motor City Youth Theatre. She says acting in Macbeth has been fun, even though technical week rehearsals were long and rigorous.

"In the green room you have a speaker so you can listen to them on stage," she said. "It's really fun. I think I'm going to be doing plays and acting all my life."

Florkowski said the adults in Macbeth have enjoyed working with the girls.

"They love talking to the kids," she said "Sara and Natalie fit right in and make themselves at home."

Macbeth opened Friday, Sept. 20 and runs at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 25 and Saturday, Oct. 5; and 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 26-28 and Oct. 4-5 at the Hillberry Theatre, 4743 Cass Ave., Detroit; (313) 577-2972. Tickets range from $25-$30 for adults and are $20 for seniors and students. Visit cfpca.wayne.edu/theatreanddance/ for tickets.

Her work has appeared in peer-reviewed journals as co-author. Her research interests include interventional and non-interventional spine, sports medicine, and community health.

Rothman has worked with the University of Michigan women's basketball team and Eastern Michigan University's football team. She also has given free health care to the homeless as a volunteer at the Rainbow Clinic and the REST Clinic in Illinois. A marathon runner, Rothman has also served as a volunteer for the New York City Marathon Medical Team.

Battling the Butterflies

The Start of a New School Year Can Be Traumatic

Whether their summer was jam-packed with activities or filled with complaints of boredom and nothing to do, kids often have a tough time making the transition back to school. Dr. Phil O'Dwyer, Clinical Director at the Garden City Hospital Center for Counseling, explains why and gives us a few expert tips on reducing the drama.

Dr. O'Dwyer
Psychology

As with any new or potentially unsettling situation, like starting school for the first time or entering a new grade or new school, your children need time to adjust. Remind them everyone feels a little nervous about going back to school, and soon, it will all become an everyday routine.

Emphasize the positive things about going back to school, such as seeing old friends and making new ones, learning new and exciting things, buying new clothes or cool school supplies, or getting involved in sports and other activities.

It's also important to talk to your child about what worries them and offer reassurance. Are they afraid they won't make new friends or get along with their teachers? Is the thought of schoolwork stressing them out? Are they worried about the bully from last year?

Consider adjusting your own schedule to make the transition smoother. If possible, it's especially beneficial for parents to be home at the end of the school day for the first week. But many working moms and dads just don't have that flexibility. Instead, try to arrange your evenings so you can give them as much time as they need during those first few days.

To help ease back-to-school butterflies, try to transition kids into a nightly routine. Also make sure that they:

- Get plenty of sleep: establish a reasonable bedtime so they will be well rested and ready to learn in the morning
- Eat a nutritious breakfast: they're more alert and do better in school if they eat a good breakfast every day
- Write it down: this will help them remember important information such as their locker combination, what time classes and lunch start and end, their homeroom and classroom numbers, teachers' and/or bus drivers' names, etc.
- Get organized the night before: homework and books should be put in their backpacks by the door and clothes should be laid out in their bedrooms

Although it's normal to be anxious in any new situation, a few kids develop real physical symptoms, such as headaches or stomachaches, associated with the start of school. If you're concerned your child's worries go beyond the normal back-to-school jitters, speak with your child's doctor, teacher, school counselor or consider seeing someone like me.

If you would like to make an appointment at the GCH Center for Counseling, call 734.421.3374.

Join Garden City Hospital every month at Westland Mall, for our lunch and lecture series. At 1 p.m. on the second Saturday of each month, a GCH Health Expert will provide helpful and in depth information on a variety of issues. Save the date: October 12, "Love Your Breasts".

Companies hiring for the holidays

16 companies hiring seasonal workers

Debra Auerbach
CareerBuilder Writer

While snow may not yet be falling and decorations may still be in storage, it's time to start thinking about the holidays. Sure, it might be a little too early to adorn your house with tinsel and lights, but if you're a job seeker, it's not too early to begin your seasonal job search.

Some job seekers slow down their job hunt at the end of the year, but by doing so, they might be missing out on seasonal employment opportunities. Many companies add temporary positions during the holidays, openings that they're starting to fill now.

Seasonal workers are needed across many industries and for a variety of job functions, and the positions have benefits beyond just a paycheck. Judi Perkins, a career coach with 22 years of recruitment experience and founder of Find the Perfect Job, shares some of those advantages:

A holiday job can help fill a resume gap and give you experience that you can reference during an interview.

It's a connection that can prove to be beneficial after the holidays, either immediately or in the future. Take it as an opportunity to make yourself invaluable and build relationships.

You might learn something new. Whether the employer is shorthanded and asks you to undertake a new task, or you volunteer to help with a big project, not only will the company remember you, but you'll have new skills to market to other potential employers.

Another plus to working during the holidays? A seasonal job can become a long-term career, because some companies end up permanently hiring temporary workers. According to CareerBuilder's recent hiring forecast, 23 percent of employers are planning to transition some contract or temporary staff into full-time employees in Q4.

To kick off your holiday job search, here's a list of 16 employers that currently have seasonal openings:

SUDOKU

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

	4		1	7			2
	1	3				6		4

Level: Beginner

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

GM Enjoys Surge in Large-SUV Sales – and Strives for More

By Dale Buss

Led by General Motors products, full-size SUVs rather suddenly are notching some of the biggest sales increases in the sizzling U.S. market these days, at least on a percentage basis.

And with Americans' growing sense of "energy security" because of burgeoning domestic gasoline supplies, and prices that are moderating somewhat, this trend might be just a harbinger of a further comeback for the automotive behemoths that many believed would be permanently relegated to the sidelines by $4-a-gallon gas and worries about "peak oil."

Consider these year-to-date sales figures through August for some of the biggest (and oldest) SUVs in the U.S. market:

- Chevrolet Tahoe, up 22 percent to 54,794 units
- Dodge Durango, up 47 percent to 39,686 units
- Ford Explorer, up 22 percent to 122,192 units
- GMC Yukon XL, up 54 percent to 20,626 units
- Honda Pilot, up 21 percent to 90,696 units
- Toyota Highlander, up 8 percent to 85,700 units
- Toyota Sequoia, up 9 percent to 9,045 units

Such figures surely produced some of the confidence behind GM's recent announcement that it is betting hugely on a continuation of the big-SUV snapback: Unembarrassed, it unveiled the 2015 Chevrolet

Suburban and Tahoe, along with their platform mates, the GMC Yukon and Yukon XL.

It was only in 2009, as gasoline prices spiked past $4 a gallon, that GM executives had considered abandoning the big-SUV market altogether. And while sales volumes for the models have been halved since 2005, GM certainly seems to be bullish enough about their future to invest in new, more aerodynamic designs for the vehicles, which are staged on the same platform as the company's recently launched, overhauled pickup trucks.

The new big-SUV versions have more room and improved interiors as well, a quieter ride, more power and better fuel economy.

What's going on? Surely the general rise in auto sales and the stubborn improvement in the U.S. economy, as well as reliable ol' "pent-up demand," are boosting sales even of these aged nameplates just as surely as for the rest of the market. Also, moderating gasoline prices could be considered especially helpful in creating more demand for vehicles that get the worst mileage.

But on that score, there might be even more afoot — and a factor that could come into greater play for large SUVs, especially over the long term. Thanks to horizontal drilling and hydraulic fracturing, or "fracking," the auto industry is at a turning point with energy that could be similar in magnitude to the oil-price shocks of the Seventies. Notwithstanding some environmental concerns, newly accessible oil and natural-gas resources are being loosed across the United States at such a rate that the nation essentially now is awash in them.

During the Seventies, tremendous anxieties about the source and price of gasoline reshaped the auto industry and traumatized American consumers. We internalized the idea of a dangerous vulnerability to "foreign oil imports," which in turn helped determine everything from the auto industry's vehicle downsizing to the U.S. military focus on the Middle East, for decades to come.

Could it be that the accelerating turnabout in U.S. oil and gas production and proved reserves — making America flush in domestic supplies for as far ahead as anyone can foresee — could influence some sort of reversal in perspective, or at least a change in direction? This phenomenon already has practically vanquished talk of peak oil and nearly rolled back worries about where our next tank of gasoline is going to come from.

To be sure, the Obama administration's mandate is still in place for each automaker to reach Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) of 54.5 mpg by 2025, and the auto industry globally is headed relentlessly in the direction of continuing to boost fuel efficiency across the board and in every way. Meanwhile, Americans continue to be concerned about greenhouse-gas emissions.

There clearly is a long-term future for electric vehicles in an increasingly urbanized nation, even though — notwithstanding the one-off success of Tesla — rank-and-file Americans don't yet feel compelled to go out and buy an EV. Natural gas is moving quickly into view as a mainstream vehicle fuel, perhaps in the very near term.

But it's looking increasingly possible that moderating gasoline prices, a sense of energy "security" and a predictable increase in family formation by Millennials will cause today's consumer enthusiasm for small vehicles to fade somewhat.

And, just maybe, these factors may fuel even more interest in full-size SUVs. The Chevy Suburban may not be a complete dinosaur after all.
