Fire captain set to move up ranks

By Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

It's not signed, sealed and delivered just yet, but Plymouth Community Fire Department Capt. Dan Phillips is set to succeed his boss, Chief Mark Wendel, when Wendel retires later this year.

Phillips, a platoon commander out of Station 1 on Haggerty, scored highest on a series of assessments administered late last month, according to Plymouth Township officials. Lt. Dan Atkins was the only other firefighter to take the tests; the results were certified Wednesday morning by the PCFD's civil service commission.

"I'm happy, I'm excited. It's a dream of mine my whole life," Phillips, 43, said of the pending appointment. Phillips is a 22-year PCFD veteran and a Farmington Hills resident. Before joining the department, he was an on-call firefighter in Rochester Hills for two years.

"From all indications, he (Phillips) will be the next fire chief," Wendel said Friday. The township must still develop a compensation package and formally offer Phillips the job, the chief said.

Typically, Wendel told civil service commission members

Wednesday, the supervisor would recommend the appointment and the Board of Trustees would vote on it.

"I think Dan will do a fine job. He's very knowledgeable. He's an outstanding officer. He goes above and beyond routinely," Wendel said. "I think he'll be a very good fire chief for this department, this community."

Wendel, a 35-year fire department veteran, plans to retire late this year, with a tentative last day of Dec. 26.

'Big transition'

Phillips indicated Wednesday he was optimistic about the department's future: staffing is up, with the help of a federal grant used to hire six firefighters, after layoffs a few years ago; a new radio system has just been introduced; new ambulances are on order; and other equipment

MARCHER MADNESS

With Rose Bowl parade coming, P-CEP band eyes new season

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

Plymouth High School senior Brad Exell was among the Plymouth-Canton marching band members who got to march in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade in New York a few years ago.

So when Exell, one of Plymouth-Canton's drum majors, heard last week's announcement that the band had been chosen to march in the Jan. 1, 2016, Rose Bowl parade, he got excited for his band mates.

"It's a great opportunity for everyone involved," Exell said. "It'll be a good time and a great experience to perform for such a huge audience."

Director of Bands David Armbruster said P-CEP was approached by parade organizers after several band directors had recommended P-CEP for the gig. It'll be the first time since 1972-73 the band has been to Pasadena, Calif., to perform.

Armbruster and the band staff put together videos and completed "a very extensive application" before being chosen to walk the 5.1-mile alongside bands of all kinds from all over the world.

"What I like is it's not just bands that compete in Bands of America," said Armbruster, whose band is a regular participant in the BOA Grand Nationals. "You're going to see completely different styles of showmanship. We're excited to be part of it."

Before they can turn their attention to Pasadena, though, P-CEP marchers have to fo-

Police Chief Al Cox makes a case to the Plymouth City Commission for adding a 16th officer to the force. The commission is looking for ways to pay for another officer.

Chief makes case for adding to police force

By Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

With statistics about an increasing number of service calls and stories about the ways his 15-member force is stretched, Police Chief Al Cox laid out a detailed case Monday for adding an officer to the Plymouth Police Department.

Speaking to the Plymouth City Commission, Cox used a slide show to illustrate his call for hiring a new officer in order to beef up police presence around the city and strengthen programs the chief said need more attention, such as drunken-driving enforcement, bicycle and foot patrols and arresting people on outstanding warrants.

Commissioners have made it a goal for this year to find revenue to pay for a 16th officer and have talked about ideas ranging from a federal grant to tapping the Downtown Development Authority budget to asking voters for a public safety millage. They've scheduled a special meeting for 6 p.m. Monday, Oct. 13, to discuss those and other options.

Officials want to dedicate an officer to patrolling establishments that serve alcohol by the glass and handling other alcohol-related enforcement issues in order to free up officers for other duties. Cox stressed that he sees the need throughout Plymouth.

"We need to get officers out citywide," Cox said. "This isn't just completely focused on the bars."

District forum aims at community engagement

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

Everyone – Board of Education members, administrators, teachers and parents – agrees Plymouth-Canton Community Schools need to seek more community input as the district faces construction, budget, achievement and class size issues.

The district took a step in that direction Monday, hosting its first Report to the Community, a 90-minute forum during which Superintendent Dr. Michael Meissen delivered the district's "report card" to residents and parents had a chance to provide their input on key questions administrators want answered as they move forward in facing issues.

Erin MacGregor told parents gathered there were two reasons for the forum, held in the cafeteria at Plymouth High School.

"We wanted to present our report card on how we're doing," MacGregor told the audience. "Secondly, we wanted to create a conversation with you."

It was mostly a feel-good session, where

Superintendent Dr. Michael Meissen delivered Monday his first Report to the Community at Plymouth High School.

Meissen and Dan Colligan, the district's former coordinator for assessment services who recently was appointed an assistant principal at Plymouth High School, talked up the positives in the district, from athletic and academic achievement to positive test scores on state and national testing.

Among the positives:
» The non-homestead

millage recently approved by 61 percent of voters in the August election. The millage will deliver $24.9 million a year in revenue to the cash-strapped district, some 16 percent of the district's budget.

» MEAP scores, where Plymouth-Canton students perform above state and county averages in nearly all testing areas.

Members of the West Middle School choir, under the direction of choir teacher Janine Grady, performed at the forum.

"You see performance consistently above (county and state)," Colligan said. "We're proud of that, but we're not stopping at that."

» ACT scores, which show the percentage of Plymouth-Canton students ready for college. According to Colligan, extrapolating the ACT scores shows 73 percent of the Class of 2015 is college-ready in English, 56 percent in math, 54 percent in reading and 49 percent in science.

» Meissen said roughly 96 percent of P-CCS students go on to some form of post-secondary education.

"Student achievement is at the center of the universe," Meissen said. "These are the characteristics of an effective classroom, an effective school and an effective district."

Discussion of tough issues – budget and the recent transportation problems – weren't discussed at any great length, but district facilitators sat in individual groups with parents to ascertain their feelings on issues and their concerns. Among those:

» High school start times. Parents largely felt that high school students having to get on a bus so early in the morning isn't conducive to educating kids.

"Kids are getting on buses at 6:05 a.m. and that's just not good for the kids," said Plymouth resident Renee McKarge, who has a fourth-grader at Bird Elementary and two kids at Salem High School. "I wanted to hear what (Meissen) had to say. There are a lot of things to be excited about. It was nice to hear him speak about his direction."

» The district's financial situation. Parents largely feel Lansing leaves them with too little money to educate kids.

» Community relationships. Parents felt the district needs to get the community more involved and a more user-friendly website was also cited.

For Mark Horvath, treasurer of the district's Board of Education, the interaction was not only positive, but a long time coming.

"These are our customers," Horvath said of the parents. "It's always good to get your customers engaged. You can't do that unless you can show them you're doing what you said you'd do."

Police task force nabs pair of burglary suspects

By Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

Two cousins face felony home-invasion charges in connection with Sept. 8 burglaries of houses in Plymouth and Canton townships.

Michael Rhodes of Northville Township and Richard Rhodes of Canton were arrested Friday in Farmington Hills by officers from a multi-agency task force that had been tracking their movements, according to a press release from the Plymouth Township Police Department.

Task force officers conducting surveillance had watched the pair as they carried items, including a large television set, out of a Farmington Hills house and put them in a pickup truck and police determined a burglary had occurred at the house, Plymouth Township Lt. Bob Antal said in the release. Joined by Farmington Hills police, officers stopped the pair at a nearby gas station and arrested them without incident, Antal said.

Earlier, the men had been followed to several Oakland County pawn shops, where they tried to sell items believed to have been stolen in area home invasions, police said.

Michael Rhodes, 24, and Richard Rhodes, 19, were arraigned Monday in 35th District Court on two charges each of felony home invasion. Not-guilty pleas were entered for them and Judge Mike Gerou set bond at $100,000 each. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Friday, Sept. 26.

The cousins had already been charged in 47th District Court in the Farmington Hills case and similar charges are expected in Livonia. They were being held Wednesday in the Oakland County Jail.

The Plymouth Township burglary occurred the morning of Sept. 8 at a house on Governor Bradford, just west of Sheldon. The house had been entered through an unlocked window and ransacked. Jewelry and two television sets were reported stolen, police said. A similar burglary occurred the same day in Canton. The western Wayne County Community Response Team that had been tracking the suspects is made up of officers from the Michigan State Police, Livonia, and Plymouth, Canton and Northville townships.

issues are being addressed. "We've just come through some tumultuous times here," he said. Wendel plans to have his replacement work closely with him for a couple of months in order to learn the day-to-day routines of the chief's job. Wendel said he hopes to have Phillips working regularly with him by next month. "It is a big transition," Phillips said. Wendel said the assessments, administered by a panel of three chiefs from other departments, involved getting the applicants' responses to scenarios that touched on a range of tasks a fire chief faces, including staffing and management concerns, budgeting and handling grants and prioritizing and then handling emerging

Phillips is currently the department's only captain, as two captain positions have been unfilled for several years. He said three of the department's six lieutenants would likely be promoted should officials decide to fill the captains' spots. Lt. Scott Gross, currently the only firefighter on the eligibility list for promotion to captain, is likely to replace Phillips.

Service calls
Cox called the police force a "full-service" department, as it handles service calls that some other departments don't, such as responding to vehicle crashes on private property, opening vehicles for drivers who've locked their keys inside and occasionally walking through schools and the Plymouth District Library. Every call for service, Cox said, is handled by an officer. At the same time, he said, some programs have been cut back or dropped altogether. There is no longer a school liaison officer or a business liaison officer, bike patrols – especially useful in certain situations, he said – and foot patrols are less frequent, commercial vehicle code enforcement has lessened and extended drug investigations are handed off to other agencies instead of being pursued locally, he said.

Drunken-driving arrests are down, Cox said, to 60 last year, the lowest number since the department began tracking them in 2007.

"There's a lot more out there. We simply could not get set up to enforce it," he said.

The chief called 2013 "an extremely tough year" and provided numbers he said showed that. With 15 officers, including Cox himself, there were 8,957 calls for service and 1,886 citations written. That compares to 6,208 calls for service and 1,792 citations written in 2003, when there were 17 officers.

'Need is now'

"We will keep doing what we're doing," if another officer isn't funded, he said. "It (another officer) would be very helpful and I think we could do more."

Commissioners had few questions for Cox. The commission had also discussed the issue with Cox at a meeting last month.

"I think the need is now," Mayor Dan Dwyer said. "I think it's overdue, to tell you the truth."

Cox said his bid for a federal grant to hire another officer has not been decided, but that he should hear about it by the end of the month. In the past, however, the chief has said winning such a grant is unlikely, as the city has a low rate of serious crime compared to other communities.

According to numbers provided by the chief, a citywide property tax of one-quarter mill – 25 cents for every $1,000 of a property's taxable value – would raise more than $106,000 a year, greater than the $76,000 it would cost for the training, salary and benefits of a full-time officer.

Flossie Tonda remembered as kids' advocate

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

To hear her daughter tell it, Flossie Tonda had an incredible laugh.

And like the folks in that stock broker commercial so long ago, when Flossie Tonda laughed, people listened. And laughed themselves.

"Her laugh - if you ask people what they remember about Flossie, they'll say her laugh," Tina Servies of South Lyon said Tuesday. "She had a contagious laugh. If you heard her laugh, you couldn't help but start laughing yourself."

Flossie Tonda's laugh was silenced last week. Mrs. Tonda, a former Plymouth-Canton Board of Education member and a lifelong advocate for children, died Sept. 11. A Lyon Township resident when she died, Mrs. Tonda was 88.

Story to tell

To call Mrs. Tonda a "former member of the Board of Education," though, hardly tells the story of her influence on the community. Her involvement began simply enough, as a member of the district's safety committee. But by the time she was done influencing lives, Tonda had served for a decade on the district's Board of Education, had founded the district's clothing bank and had earned enough respect to have an elementary school named in her honor.

Mrs. Tonda, active at the First Congregational Church in Ypsilanti, moved with her family to the Plymouth-Canton area in 1969. A member of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, church was where her dedication to helping others began.

Mrs. Tonda shared her interest in education by participating in school organizations. Her first district-wide involvement was as a representative on the school district's Safety Committee; she eventually became its president.

She fought to make her community safer, her first victory becoming the skywalk across Joy Road.

"The biggest thing was she was a real advocate for the kids," Servies said. "She always fought for the kids. She wanted to be their voice. She saw things that weren't getting done and nobody was willing to fight for them. She just wanted to make sure everything was good for the kids."

Kids were key

In 1974, she became president of the district's

Community Council, then was appointed to fill a vacancy on the school board. She continued her involvement with her children's school, Campfire Girls, the safety committee and the Canton Planning Commission.

In 1976, Mrs. Tonda was elected for the first time to the school board. It was the same year she opened the school district's clothing bank to help children and families.

Ken Jacobs, the retired assistant superintendent for operations whose career spanned four decades, said he didn't work closely with the school board at the time, but that Mrs. Tonda was "community centered."

"Obviously, she did a lot for the district, because they named a school after her," Jacobs said. "She was nice and she was concerned."

Mrs. Tonda's other community involvement included being president of the Canton County Festival, founder of the Canton Republican Club in 1980 and being a very active participant with the Dion Nursing home, recruiting volunteers in Wayne, Oakland and Livingston counties.

Mrs. Tonda also served on the Canton Advisory Committee for Oakwood Hospital and served as president of the Wayne County School Board Association. In 1982, she was named Woman of the Year for Canton. In 1994, the Flossie B. Tonda Elementary School opened in Canton.

Not worthy?

Mrs. Tonda was living in Florida at that point and Servies remembers her mother being stunned by the news a school had been named after her. She knew others who'd had such an honor and didn't think she measured up.

"She was absolutely blown away ... she couldn't believe it," her daughter said. "She knew a lot of the people the district had named their schools after and she felt undeserving compared to them."

Mrs. Tonda had one experience many board members have said is one of the best things about the job. When daughter Toni crossed the commencement stage to receive her high school diploma, it was her mother who handed it to her.

"One of the biggest joys of her life was giving my sister her diploma," Servies said. "That always meant a lot to her."

Mrs. Tonda is survived by daughters Tina (Mark) Servies and Toni (Frank Noverr) Tonda; stepdaughter Pamela Tonda; sisters Ginny (Don) Anglin and Donna Tonda; grandchildren Tammy (Matthew) Trasky, Kurt (Tina) Servies, Tracy (Alex) MacDonald, Andrew Space and Tyler Space; and great-grandchildren Teagan, Grace and Emma.

She was preceded in death by her parents, her husband, her twin sister Florence Floury, her brother Jack Self and her sisters Dorothy Jahnke, Ada Pickering and Catherine Self.

'Family fun day' planned along Interstate 96 this Sunday

By David Veselenak
Staff Writer

It looks like area residents will have a chance to have some fun on a reconstructed Interstate 96 after all.

Michigan Department of Transportation engineer Jeff Horne said the agency is planning to have a "family fun day" on the westbound portion of I-96 between Newburgh and Stark.

The event, taking place 2-4 p.m. Sunday, will give area residents the chance to run, walk, bicycle, skateboard and traverse the freeway with no fast-paced vehicles for the first time in more than the 40 years since the freeway first opened.

"We have everything pretty much finalized," Horne said. "It's a really unique opportunity to go down on the freeway while it's closed off."

Those interested in coming down to the freeway can drive to Madonna University and park their vehicles on the far west end of the parking lot on the south side of campus, Horne said. Police officers will be on hand to help people cross Schoolcraft so they can enter the freeway by going down an exit ramp between Levan and Newburgh, Horne said.

Police presence

Police officers will also be at either end of the 1.75 mile-stretch of the freeway open to pedestrians to make sure no one enters construction zones.

Also planned for the event are some driverless cars that will be down on the freeway. Horne said some automotive companies are expected to bring the vehicles down, although he was unsure what type of activity they would be involved in.

"I would assume they will be in motion at some point of time," he said.

Horne, who said last week there was a chance no celebration could take place, said the event was finalized Tuesday afternoon between MDOT and Dan's Excavating. There was initial liability concern of having people on the freeway, but Horne said a deal was made to allow for the event to happen.

The freeway has been closed to traffic since early April as contractors and inspectors work to rebuild the seven miles between Telegraph in Redford to Newburgh in Livonia. The freeway is currently scheduled to open sometime around Sept. 30, although Horne said it could open before then.

Canton bank robber ordered to prison

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Canton bank robber Nathan Michael Kuhn has been sentenced to prison for 29 months to 15 years after police say he implied he had a gun and demanded money from a Comerica branch worker inside the Kroger store near Canton Center and Ford roads.

Kuhn, 29, was ordered imprisoned Sept. 9 by Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Skutt after Kuhn abandoned an earlier motion to withdraw his no-contest plea to a single charge of bank robbery.

His sentencing came 11 months after Canton Detective Sgt. Chad Baugh said Kuhn was accused of passing a note to a bank teller, implying he had a gun and demanding cash.

Kuhn's plea deal averted what could have been a lengthier sentence, potentially up to life in prison. In a roller-coaster series of events, he pleaded no contest in June, then sought to withdraw it before renewing his plea in August, court records show.

Kuhn had earlier sought to have himself declared incompetent to stand trial, claiming through an attorney he was mentally unable to assist in his own defense.

Kuhn

However, Skutt ruled against that motion based on a medical evaluation.

Kuhn had remained jailed with a $50,000 bond as he awaited his sentencing. Police had described him as a drifter who had lived in Livonia and Westland before he was charged in Canton.

Canton police arrested Kuhn in a Wayne motel room after tracking him down based on a tip by a witness. He had been paroled just 11 months prior to his arrest for crimes involving uttering and publishing, or forging a check or other financial document.

CANTON CRIME WATCH

A Canton woman who filed for divorce told police her estranged husband threatened to post naked pictures of her on Craigslist along with her address unless she returns property to him that she insisted she doesn't have, a police report said.

The 27-year-old woman said she filed for divorce after the 37-year-old suspect became abusive after only three months of marriage, a police report said. The woman notified police Saturday afternoon. She lives on Suffolk Court, near Sheldon and Sheldon Center.

The woman told police she has received dozens of text messages every day demanding property, insulting her and threatening to post the pictures online. She told police she has returned all the property.

Police notified the man, warned him to stop harassing the woman and said he would be prosecuted if he posts the pictures online or has further contact with the victim. Police advised the couple to find a third party through whom they can communicate during the divorce.

Property vandalism

A 59-year-old man notified Canton police after his Ford pickup and his landscaping had been vandalized in the 45200 block of Rector, near Palmer and Canton Center. He said the incident happened between 9:30 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday.

The man told police he found the gas cap hanging down from the side of his vehicle as though someone had tampered with the gas tank, though the truck seemed to drive without problems. He also said several tall plants had been ripped out of the ground on the west side of his house.

The man told police he has had an ongoing dispute with neighbors. He said he has found various damage to his property over the years, including a dented tailgate to his truck and paint damage to the rims.

Fraudulent charges

A 71-year-old man notified Canton police to report fraudulent charges had been made on his credit union account.

The man, who lives on Cherry Hill east of Ridge, contacted police Sept. 9 after noticing fraudulent charges had been made for $99.47 and $4.95 – both of them from locations in Texas. He said his account has been frozen, but he wanted to document the fraudulent activity.

Minor injury

A Canton police officer escaped serious injury when a vehicle rolled over his foot while he was helping a man push a vehicle at The Crossings, an apartment complex southeast of Joy and I-275, a police report said.

Police had gone to the complex the afternoon of Sept. 9 to find a man who was sought on a warrant out of Oakland County for a child support issue. He was spotted in the parking lot suffering medical problems from what a police report called detoxification from alcohol.

The man then told police his vehicle had run out of gas. While an officer was helping him push the vehicle toward a parking spot, the vehicle accidentally ran over the officer's right foot, a police report said. Medical attention wasn't required.

Larceny from car

A 27-year-old woman told police several items were stolen from her vehicle while it was parked in the 51300 block of Federal, near Ridge and Proctor, between 7 p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Saturday.

The woman told police items missing from her 2013 Ford Edge included a school book, a Nike backpack, a wheel lock and an iPhone charger. She said the items were taken while the vehicle was parked in a driveway.

Missing girl found after massive search

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

The 12-year-old Canton girl missing since early Tuesday morning was found some 17 hours later.

Canton Police said in a release late Tuesday evening that Miranda Lynn Freiburg was found around 11 p.m. in the area of Rotunda and Greenfield in Dearborn.

Police said no further details were available.

A massive search had begun after the girl was last seen at 7:05 a.m. Tuesday in the area of Cherry Hill and Lotz roads in Canton.

Canton Deputy Police Chief Debra Newsome said Miranda called herself in absent at school Tuesday morning, leading officials to remain hopeful through the day she had gone somewhere on her own accord.

Newsome said a search for Miranda covered some 200 acres in eastern Canton as police, joined by others, looked for the girl.

PLYMOUTH CRIME WATCH

Teen arrested, ticketed

A 17-year-old Canton Township boy, arrested in Plymouth Township on two Canton warrants, was cited for possession of drug paraphernalia after two pipes and a grinder commonly used to process marijuana were found among his belongings, police say.

The teen was arrested about 2:30 p.m. Sept. 10 after a patrolling officer spotted him at the Red Roof Inn on Ann Arbor Road, according to a Plymouth Township Police Department report. The officer was aware of the outstanding warrants, which were for larceny and possessing tobacco, the report said.

When the officer asked the teen if there was any contraband in a bag he had with him, the teen replied there was, the report said. The officer searched the bag and found the pipes and grinder.

The suspect was turned over to police in Canton after being issued a citation for possessing narcotics paraphernalia.

Missing instruments

Three bass clarinets worth a total of about $5,600 were reported stolen Friday from Pioneer Middle School on Ann Arbor Road.

The instruments had come up missing during the summer at a time when an addition was being put onto the building and a lot of people were on the property, the complainant told police. They were not immediately reported stolen, a police report said, because things had been moved to other areas of the building during construction and it was thought they might be among those things and turn up later.

cus, because their 2014 competition season starts Saturday in Novi. This week, the 190-member band (plus some 20 character actors being incorporated into this year's show) has been fine-tuning its competition show.

The show, titled "Don't Bother, They're Here," is a take-off of Steven Sondheim's Send in the Clowns. Incorporating the music of Sondheim, Sergei Rachmaninoff and Joan Tower, this year's show will also feature mimes as part of the action.

"They play a big role in the show," Armbruster said of the mimes. "It's unique. It's something no one has ever done. That's part of the joy of what we do here in Plymouth-Canton."

The show was an idea brought to the table by the band's design team. Talk started back in November and kids started working on it in April. The last time the band did a similar show was historic: It won the Grand Nationals in 1990 with it.

Armbruster said that gives the show a historic connection to band alumni. This year's band has reached out to that year's band, directed by Glen Adsit, to "grab onto" the show.

"This is one that's tied to history," Armbruster said. "We're extremely excited. We have a great group of kids and a fantastic staff. Everyone is gelling and it's an energetic group."

VFW post hosts area veterans at annual dinner

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

It wasn't hard to see the excitement in Michele Anderson's eyes as she listened to Orville Roberts' roundabout journey from the United States to Burma during World War II.

As a member of the U.S. Army Air Force, the Westland resident helped to build the Ledo Road that allowed western Allies to get supplies to the Chinese and construct an airfield for the planes.

"We worked in shifts through the jungle, cutting down trees in areas we found out the Japanese had just left the day before," Roberts said. "We named what we were doing as Building for Victory."

"I'm so excited to make this connection," Anderson said. "My step-grandfather flew a B-25 out of your airfield. He flew the Burma Hump."

Anderson, a John Glenn High School history teacher, met with Roberts at a veterans dinner Saturday at the Bova VFW Post 9885, where she served as the mistress of ceremonies for a dinner honoring veterans from World War II and the Korean and Vietnam wars.

Anderson and her students have made a name for themselves with an oral history project and USO-style dance they have done for World War II and Korean War veterans the past two years. This year, they will be interviewing Vietnam veterans.

This is the third year the post has hosted a veterans dinner. The first year it was held in the post bar, but has since been moved to the post hall. This year, the veterans came from American Legion and VFW posts in Redford, Farmington Hills and Westland.

Original uniform

Many wore their veterans' hats and jackets, but Elmer Hannynen came dressed in his original Army uniform.

"I've lost a little weight, so it still fits," the Canton resident said.

Drafted in 1942, Hannynen saw action in Africa, southern France, Germany and Austria before being discharged at age 23.

"The worst place was the Anzio beach head; it was a terrible place," he said. "We were stuck there for four months with the Germans shelling us. From there, we went to southern France and met up with boys from Normandy."

Harry Copely prides himself in being the first Vietnam veteran to serve as commander of VFW Post 345 in Redford. But his service to his country spanned three wars, starting with World War II.

"I enlisted in the Army. I didn't have nothing special to do out there, so I stayed in and saw places you read about in books," he said. "I enlisted because it was a chance to participate and take part in preserving freedom."

His extended road trip took him to Japan, Austria, Korea and Vietnam. He made three trips to Korea and was there when the cease-fire was signed. He also was stationed in Beinh Hoa in Vietnam in 1966-67, before being discharged Oct. 31, 1967. He joined the VFW on Dec. 7, 1967.

"I had a 15,000-mile cruise paid for by the U.S. government," Copely said. "I cruised from Japan to Hawaii and through the Panama Canal to the Philadelphia shipyard, where the ship was decommissioned."

Fellow Redford resident William Patterson served in the South Pacific during World War II. His brother was already in the Army when Patterson enlisted. He had just turned 17 and graduated from high school.

"If you were out of high school, you could join; if you were over 17, you could join," he said.

The worst thing he saw, he said, was the sinking of an enemy submarine — "we blew it up" — and the shooting of three kamikaze planes out of the sky.

"I'm glad to see the young people appreciate what we old-timers went through making the world a better place for them," he said.

Oldest guest

At age 97, Joseph Nafe of Farmington Hills may have been the oldest veteran at the dinner. He was there with several other members of the American Legion Post 346, including his son Skip, a Vietnam veteran.

"I got drafted because of the boss at the shop I worked at," Nafe said. "Everytime I went to enlist, they'd pull me out of line and send me back. They wanted me working. I decided to ask my boss for a raise and he said he had been keeping me out of the service. I told him I'd tried to enlist three times. I forget what year I joined, but I was surprised I was in the Army."

Nafe was only in the service eight months and never left the country. He was on a train when he was pulled off and sent home because his mother had died.

Nafe and his son have been coming to the dinners for three years and Skip has been taking a photo of the group each year.

"They had the original doughnut girls here the first year," Skip said.

Roberts, who also saw service in the Korean War and earned his marksmanship badge in a sandstorm, recalled that they had to build runways made of cement for the bigger airplanes, which was no simple task in Burma, where temperatures reached 115 degrees in the shade. Of course, they also coped with three months of monsoon weather when no work could be done.

"We worked with the cement on a flat-bed truck with the bed raised," he said. "The drivers would do bumps so the cement would slide down and stay wet. They bumped one time and I rolled down and off the truck."

Saying that some veterans noticed a traditional military fare was missing from the lunch prepared by the post's Ladies Auxiliary, Post Commander Mike Rokita assured them it would be served next year.

"I've heard you guys saying that you miss the s--- on a shingle. The girls say we'll have it next year," he said.

"We'll have that at our post on Veterans Day," Copely said. "This is great. Lord willing, I'll be back next year."

Interior designer opens Plymouth shop

By Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

Ann Arbor-based Esquire Interiors recently opened a showroom in Plymouth to better serve a strong local market.

But the new location downtown – which Ted Barron, one of the principals of the family owned company, raves about – isn't going to end a time-tested Esquire business practice: the house call.

Esquire, which specializes in window treatments, floor coverings and bathroom remodeling and sells high-end upholstered furniture, has its designers visit homes to make sure customers shopping for drapes or shades, for example, are seeing the products in their intended environment. The lighting, the wall color and other features of the house, Barron said, could make samples look very different than they do in the showroom.

"It's important they see the fabric in their space before they make the final selection," Barron said Tuesday in his store on Ann Arbor Trail. "We pick the best of the best and come out to the house."

House calls, however, don't diminish the importance of the new Plymouth store, Esquire's second location. Barron said opening it was one of the best moves he's ever made.

"It's fun. It's fun to work here," he said. "Plymouth is alive – it's a great town and people are nice here." Esquire has long done well in the Plymouth and Northville area, he said.

"The demographic of Plymouth is right for us. That's my client," he said.

Barron described the Ann Arbor Trail showroom, which is about 1,500 square feet, as a place for customers to browse samples and meet designers and explore ideas with them. The new location is getting a lot of walk-in traffic, he said.

Business history

Esquire began in 1952 as a dry-cleaning business run by Barron's father, Norm, and his late mother, Wanda. Around 1960, with the advent of wash-and-wear clothing, the company expanded into making drapes, which were familiar because Esquire cleaned a lot of them.

The company still has its own drapery workshop for making custom drapes, valences, pillows and bedspreads, work Barron says is often outsourced by other interior designers. "We're still really hands-on," he said.

Barron and his sister, Pam Cripe, the other principal at Esquire, have long worked in the business. "I was setting blinds in window sills when I was 8 years old, for my dad," he said.

Esquire has 15 employees between the two stores; Barron's son Josh manages the Plymouth store. Some installation work, including all window-treatment installation, is done in-house, while some is subcon-tracted. There are no sales commissions, which, Barron said, means employees cooperate with each other instead of competing.

Blinds and shades are from Hunter Douglas – Esquire is the largest Hunter Douglas retailer in Michigan – and furniture is exclusively from Norwalk Furniture, a 112-year-old company in Norwalk, Ohio. The Ann Arbor store has a 5,000-square-foot furniture showroom.

Barron said he still relies on business advice from his father: Help customers first and the money will be there.

"Helping people is fun – not selling them things," he said. "It's more fun to do that if you're not looking for the almighty buck."

IT'S YOUR BUSINESS Q&A

Yoga studio brings owner back to her roots

Observer: Tell us about your business, including the types of services and/or products you feature.

West End: West End Yoga teachers specialize in yoga therapy, incorporating postures, breathing exercises and relaxation techniques to suit individual needs. Yoga therapy is rising in popularity among the medical community, as many patients are referred to yoga as an effective complementary therapy for several common ailments. The challenges may be an illness, a temporary condition like pregnancy or childbirth or a chronic condition associated with lifestyle.

With classes called "strength," "chill" and "relax," West End Yoga uses simple, clear descriptions so that even those who cannot touch their toes and have never done yoga before can easily navigate their way to the right class for them at an affordable price. West End Yoga features a room for child care during classes and provides discounts to those who work in Canton to serve community and country. They channel a portion of profits to charities, such as the Pancreatic Cancer Action Network (www.pan-cancer.org) and The Down Syndrome Guild of Southeast Michigan.

WEST END YOGA

Owner Leah Slagenwhite brings her love for yoga back to Canton, opening the West End Yoga Co.

Observer: How did you first decide to open your business?

West End: Even having practiced yoga for 13 years, I, like so many others, felt intimidated to do yoga, especially while going through treatment for advanced cancer.

When I was going through chemotherapy, I was introduced to a different type of yoga by my teacher, Stacey Coffey. She taught me, using a subtle approach, energy medicine principles. The yoga postures that we see in magazines and the Internet are one thing, but to practice simple postures that are 6,000 years old, awakens and aligns things between our body, mind and spirit that we don't even understand. I would be giving my children a bath and realize that I was naturally working an energy line in a yoga pose and just feel great.

Although there are not cures for every disease, ache or pain out there, everyone can find healing and now I want to bring this aspect of yoga to the community. Once we start taking care of ourselves consistently, we're able to give more to our families, employers and everyone around us.

Observer: Why did you choose Canton?

West End: I was raised in the area and after surviving Stage IV Hodgkin's lymphoma last year, at age 29. I now want to bring the healing I've found through yoga back to my roots, giving the community a haven for creating a balanced, healthy, sustainable lifestyle. The intention of starting a business in my hometown is to bring the tremendous healing that I've found by teaching yoga in a non-intimidating, welcoming, personalized way and, also, provide balance by addressing the challenges of our fast-paced, stressed out, "push through it" world.

Observer: What makes your business unique?

West End: The West End Yoga teachers are trained to guide people of all body types into poses that focus on integration, because yoga is not merely a physical workout. The classes are designed to bring out what the body does best, which is balance itself and integrate the mind and spirit as well. More strenuous classes may not provide this level of integration, which could cause further health issues.

Observer: How has it changed since you opened?

West End: I was teaching private and semi-private classes and, now, we're ready to teach to bigger groups and offer more healing.

Observer: Do you have a funny tidbit or story to share with our readers about your experience so far as a small business owner?

thing people are so afraid of when they try yoga for the first time is passing gas! It's a valid fear, because it does happen occasionally, but it's nothing to be ashamed of. We all do it, it's a natural, cleansing bodily function.

Observer: How has the recent economy affected your business?

West End: It's blown up. The smaller classes started to pack, so I became inspired and want to grow.

Observer: Any advice for other business owners?

West End: You, and only you, have the power to choose what you believe. People will tell you that you will struggle, that others don't want the service, that you won't make any money. And they can believe that, but you do not have to. You must protect your energy and your mindset as you move forward in business.

Observer: What's in store for the future of your business?

West End: Spreading healing, love, peace and yoga.

Angela Hospice walk full of 'uplifting spirit'

Judy Halpert remembers being encouraged to walk in the Angela Hospice Walk of Remembrance by a friend back in 2009.

She hasn't missed once since. The Plymouth Township resident will again be on the grounds Saturday of the Felician Sisters in Livonia for the seventh annual walk, hosted by Angela Hospice to benefit its free community outreach programs for grieving children and adults.

The reason so many walkers — organizers are expecting some 1,000 people this year — walk the 2.3-mile path: To honor and celebrate the loved ones they've lost. "It gives you an opportunity to take some time and recall the good times," said Halpert, who lost both her parents within 10 months of each other in 2008. "The whole idea of walking was appealing to me. That communal spirit of a big crowd ... it was very uplifting."

The walk begins at Madonna University and continues through the peaceful, idyllic property of the Felician Sisters, including Ladywood High School, the Sisters' Central Convent, and concluding at the beautiful Angela Hospice grounds.

"The Walk of Remembrance continues to grow each year and it's a testament to how powerful this event is," said Bob Alexander, Angela Hospice Business Development manager. "Many people return year after year to take part in it and it has even become a tradition for these families." That sort of "communitary" spirit is one of the things that attracts Halpert. She said the event gives walkers a chance to see and be part of the cycle of life.

"When you're in a group of people all walking together, it's a comforting thing," Halpert said. "Despite the losses, these people are still living their lives. The spirit is so uplifting."

Individuals and families of all ages are encouraged to attend the event, which also includes live music, a hot dog lunch and rock-painting activity.

Some families are even forming fundraising teams to pay tribute to their loved ones, while helping to support Angela Hospice's charitable work.

Angela Hospice's grief support services include general and special topic grief support groups; individual and family counseling; and holiday workshops for children, teens and adults.

Registration for the Walk of Remembrance includes a T-shirt and is $25 in advance for adults (increases to $35 on day of event), $15 for children ages 6-12, and free for 5 and under.

Walkers can register online and get more information about Angela Hospice's programs by visiting www.AskForAngela.com or calling 734-464-7810.

A move forward

Amphitheater reversal could jump-start better relationship

Say what you will about the motives behind the Plymouth Township board's move last week to delay plans for the $350,000 amphitheater until after the township does its recreation study next year.

Whatever their motives, trustees did the right thing.

The township's Board of Trustees last week approved a resolution to make the amphitheater proposal part of the 2015 recreation plan review. It was a major turnaround — coming just three weeks after voting down a similar resolution to delay the project while seeking public input — and skeptics are free to wonder about the timing.

Supervisor Richard Reaume proposed the resolution delaying the project in the middle of an effort by a concerned citizens group to recall four trustees over a variety of issues. Reaume, himself a target of the recall, got five other trustees to vote with him, including the other three recall targets — Clerk Nancy Conzelman, Treasurer Ron Edwards and Trustee Kay Arnold, all of whom have been staunchly in favor of the amphitheater.

Critics of the board were quick to say this move was made in an effort to avoid a recall, but they don't get to have it both ways. They've said from the beginning of the effort the amphitheater played little to no role in their decision to recall the four trustees who backed it, so they don't now get to claim that's why board members have reversed themselves.

They are, of course, free to question the motives, but we ask: Does it really matter? They got what they wanted. The controversial project won't be taken back up until after the recreation survey, which isn't scheduled until late next year. Reaume has promised a series of community forum-style meetings to discuss citizens' desires, during which the amphitheater plan will be discussed.

Trustee Bob Doroshewitz, who ironically has been one of the loudest voices calling for public input on the amphitheater, voted against Reaume's motion because it does nothing to protect money set aside for the project. The township borrowed $1.9 million for Plymouth Township Park improvements through a bond sale; the rest of the money is to come from grants and money already budgeted for capital improvements.

Doroshewitz called Reaume's move "a total smoke-screen" (proving the olive branch didn't smooth over everything) and said he fears the amphitheater money will be spent on something else. Reaume said any spending of the $350,000 would be restricted to parks and recreation improvement projects.

It would be nice to protect that money in case the amphitheater project is resurrected next year. We don't think it will be; we believe residents have seen the last of the amphitheater plan.

Reaume explained his turnaround by saying he decided it's important to get public input, a statement that drew snorts of derision from his critics. The fact is, he's been wavering on this topic for some time now and finally decided to present his motion. Question his motives if you like, but at least he moved off a previously intractable position.

They may have done it grudgingly, but trustees did agree to listen to the people on the amphitheater issue. The move doesn't buy them much in the way of good will unless they begin listening to residents on other issues that come up, as well. The board has created the impression for some time now that at least some of the trustees aren't interested in hearing from the people they serve.

Whether it was intended to be or not, this can be a good start toward reversing that impression.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tree strategy

Most Plymouth residents have by now seen the "Tree City" signage around town, calling attention to how Plymouth deems its trees merit citywide signage. Plymouth residents might be interested to find out that the city currently has minimal ordinance provisions in place to ensure Plymouth stays a Tree City. They are probably unaware that the city currently does not have a comprehensive municipal management strategy that addresses how to manage existing and future trees.

Many adjacent cities do have ordinances to preserve, maintain and encourage a viable population of living trees. Cities like Northville, Farmington Hills and Novi all have ordinances in place that control the population of living trees, as well as guidelines for replacement, maintenance, tree protection during construction, tree replacement/relocation during construction, emergency tree removal, etc.

Plymouth has very limited ordinance regarding these myriad considerations. Local ordinances, however, are limited in effectiveness and often result in a band-aid approach that often gets in the way of a comprehensive management strategy.

A recent example involves three mature maple "street trees" adjacent to a new home construction site. The ordinances in place to protect or maintain Plymouth's many "street trees" — trees that property owners cannot remove without city permission — are very limited and do not provide for any strategies for management.

In this case, the foundation excavation infringed into the drip lines of the trees to within 6-8 feet of the trunk center lines — which is too close. No attempts were made by the property owner or builder to protect the soils within tree drip line from heavy wheeled equipment compressing the soil (which has occurred), which can suffocate roots and kill the tree. The trees began to shed leaves the day after the excavation, indicating that they were stressed.

A call to the city's Grounds Maintenance Department resulted in a big shrug, where I was told that there is nothing they can do, or would do, to protect or even investigate what was happening to these "street trees," but if the trees died, the city would remove them. This is an ineffective management strategy for a Tree City?

I would ask, is this the level of protection Plymouth wishes for its many trees? Ordinances are no substitute for a well-considered city tree management plan. <http://www.isa-arbor.com/tree-ord/> is a great resource from which to develop management strategies that result in sensible ordinances that not only benefit the city and property values, but will also be agreeable to property owners.

Also, the recently established Plymouth City Tree Board may already be looking into this, but there is nothing on the city's website or any indication that this is indeed an active or populated board. I believe a tree management strategy should be explored and considered by the city council. It's time Plymouth live up to its Tree City image.

Groundswell of anger

Stop the Amphitheater is just the tip of the iceberg. Some of our council members have stated we are a "crowd" or a disgruntled few. That may have been true in the past, but the groundswell of anger is just beginning to take shape.

More residents are taking note of all the issues (not just the amphitheater). The Concerned Citizens group is growing. The trust has been broken and we aren't going to take it anymore.

I urge everyone who lives in the township to attend the next board meeting and see for yourself what is taking place in our township.

Impressive work gets I-96 ready for early opening

Drivers about as tired of construction barrels as they can be should start saying goodbye now to the service drive, Five Mile Road, Plymouth Road or any other detours they've been using to get around the Interstate 96 construction.

Apparently, they aren't going to have to wait until the middle of October for the expressway, closed since early April, to reopen. The countdown clock on 96fix.com shifted last week from Oct. 11 (the original target date) to Sept. 30 after project leaders announced plans to reopen the freeway were ahead of schedule.

That's good news for drivers who've shown a good deal of patience dealing with the closure of the heavily traveled connecting route between western Wayne County and downtown Detroit.

But it's even more impressive for the Michigan Department of Transportation and, especially, the companies and crews doing the work. It hasn't been easy.

There have been a few issues, starting with some cold temperatures and even some snowfall in the project's early stages. Crews had to work around — or recover from — the storm that blew through here a month ago and dropped what seemed like an ocean of water on the area. Then there was the truck fire which, luckily, did no damage and caused no injuries.

FILE PHOTO

Michigan Department of Transportation officials say I-96 through Redford and Livonia could reopen by Sept. 30, several days ahead of schedule.

Problems like those — especially the torrential rainfall — can cause major problems on a construction project, but never derailed this one. Work crews should be commended for that.

Work certainly isn't done on the seven-mile, $148 million project. And MDOT representatives have said there would also be some other work taking place in the coming weeks along the freeway when it's open to traffic — patching between Haggerty and Newburgh, concrete removal on the west side of the project.

MDOT officials are so happy, they've decided to reverse their original opinion on whether to host an on-the-road celebration before the freeway actually reopens to traffic. While MDOT initially said there are "no immediate plans" for such a celebration on the freeway, they've now scheduled one for 2 p.m. Sunday, opening I-96 from Levan to Newburgh to pedestrian traffic.

There are legitimate safety concerns with letting people walk down onto the expressway. And, of course, MDOT's goal of reopening the freeway remains the top priority of the contractor, so its initial reticence was understandable.

Still, it's nice of them to throw a little party not only for local residents, but for the members of the work crews.

They've earned it.

GUEST COLUMN

Legislature has to act fast to avert trial court crisis

Legislation introduced at the Capitol last week will fix a funding crisis in Michigan's local courts. Without prompt action on and passage of House Bill 5785, Michigan's trial-level courts, which handle almost three million criminal and traffic cases a year, will lack the resources they need to properly administer justice in the state.

Like a summer thunderstorm, this crisis brewed suddenly. In June, the Michigan Supreme Court ruled in People vs. Cunningham that trial courts could not impose against defendants some of the costs they have passed on for about a decade.

Without these "user fees," circuit and district courts across Michigan would be short millions of dollars.

A survey of counties by the Michigan Association of Counties in the aftermath of the June case found, for example, that Grand Traverse County would lose as much as $500,000 a year. Clinton County's estimate is a whopping $1.9 million.

The remedy to this dilemma is simple common sense: Restore in law the authority local courts have exercised for years, while taking the opportunity to improve practices by increasing transparency of court costs applied to defendants.

Jon Campbell

Quick action is needed, because local courts have been restricted in their work since the June ruling and the two alternatives to a restoration of "user fees" are, in a word, unwise.

The state could, for example, decide to create a new revenue stream — read tax — to properly fund lower courts. In an election year, that's as unlikely as it is inadvisable.

Of greater concern is a lack of action, which would leave it to Michigan's 83 counties to find new dollars to divert to courts.

Michigan counties already provide about half of the $1 billion-plus used by local courts each year. About $1 in every $10 in general funds in Grand Traverse County goes to local courts now. In Newaygo County, almost 40 percent of the general fund budget goes to the court system. In Saginaw County, 25 percent goes to courts. In Cass County, the figure is 30 percent; in Marquette County, 22 percent.

So to come up with more money for courts would certainly mean cuts to other key services, such as road patrols, jails, health initiatives, foster care and animal control.

Since the Supreme Court decision, a coalition of public servants and interests, led by MAC, has been educating legislators on the issues at play. This effort boils down to three points: "user fees" have worked as a fair method to fund court operations; courts already are the single largest unfunded mandate imposed by the state on the counties; and the state itself is unlikely to identify the necessary dollars in the face of other policy demands, such as road funding.

If legislative action isn't taken to reverse the Cunningham ruling's effects, these percentages only will soar. And counties, trying to recover from years of underfunding by the state, are in no position to absorb a huge new burden.

It's also important to note that

Strategies to help senior citizens repay student loan debt

The numbers are startling and keep growing. I'm not talking about the federal deficit. I'm talking about student loans. The amount of outstanding student loans is more than either charge card debt or auto loan debt.

And when most people think about student loans, they immediately think about the student getting ready to go to college or someone who graduated and is burdened by student debt. However, there's another group whose outstanding student debt continues to rise - senior citizens.

You wouldn't think that seniors would have a problem with student debt; you would be wrong. Outstanding student loans owed by seniors have skyrocketed to more than $18 billion, up 600 percent in the last decade.

Most of the outstanding student debt held by seniors, about 80 percent, is for their own education (continuing education, grad school or even undergrad). The remaining 20 percent is the amount owed by seniors for loans they took for either a child's or grandchild's college education.

Repaying student loans has become a severe burden for many seniors. The default rate for seniors on student loans is substantially higher than for other recipients. As a result, seniors are subject to more aggressive collection techniques and are finding that creditors are beginning to garnish Social Security benefits.

Rick Bloom

Since student debt has become such a problem for seniors, it is important they have a repayment strategy. Bankruptcy is not an option because most student loans are not dischargeable in a bankruptcy proceeding.

If you are a senior with an outstanding student loan, know your interest rate. After all, if you're paying 7 percent on a student loan and you're getting less than 1 percent on a CD, it may make sense to use the CD to pay down the student loan.

In addition, those with equity in a home can take out a home equity loan or even refinance in order to pay off the student debt. I'm not a big fan of seniors taking on more debt. In this situation, it's restructuring the debt.

For seniors who derive the majority of their income from Social Security, there may be a strategy to reduce or even eliminate student loan payment and at the same time not be in default.

All federal student loans are eligible for an income-based repayment program. There are three programs that allow borrowers to pay off their loans as a share of their income. The plans have slightly different terms for repayment, but one of the income-based programs may be a fit.

The government doesn't make it easy and you have to be proactive. However, you may find that these programs can substantially improve your cash flow.

I am not saying that seniors should not repay their student loans, because they should. However, just like everyone else, seniors should take advantage of all options that are available.

the Michigan Supreme Court didn't rule that court costs were fundamentally improper. Rather, the Cunningham decision stated that courts only could impose costs identified in statute. If laws are changed to restore the authority that trial courts have exercised for nearly a decade, a major crisis is averted for courts and counties.

Legislators have plenty to do in September, but passage of court funding legislation has to be at the top of the list.

Interests of all

I thought the PARC project was a great idea uniting everyone in both the city and township with benefits for everyone. Imagine my surprise at the what the trustees of Plymouth Township did by stopping it and in essence promoting a kind of civil war.

Now this recall is called frivolous and I want to state why it is anything but frivolous. First of all, I believe that if you do not get involved in wrongs, you deserve what you get. Look at history.

Well, let's do that with the trustees. They sold the DeHoCo land and now problems occurred. The citizens are paying for that. They told Lifetime Fitness to build and then delayed them 10 years. Now Lifetime is suing us and the citizens are paying.

The trustees shut down the PARC project, saying "we will have nothing to do" with the city of Plymouth for two years. Then they lied about that to the state in order to borrow money.

The fire department monstrosity left a home burned down and now our equipment is over 10 years old and nothing is being done about it. Yes, we saved money so that we could go out and borrow almost $2 million. And without any input from all the citizens, through a survey, these trustees decided to build an amphitheater and an accompanying state of the art pavilion.

This pavilion started with a request for a drinking fountain near the ball diamonds. It has ballooned to $650,000 and rising. OK, the trustees finally postponed the amphitheater, but are not giving the money back. Instead, they are holding it in reserve. Oh, and by the way, it is estimated that the pavilion that could eventually hold a convention will cost $1 million. Where will that extra money come from, I wonder? We, the people, are still paying.

I have been told that the citizens are complacent and will not care and just go along with the trustees. But when it constantly affects pocketbooks and not everyone living here is rich, my mind believes that smart citizens will get involved and get these people recalled. I hope that that we can recall these self-serving people and elect ones who will look out for the interests of all the people - not a select few with deep pockets.

Feeling it already

While watching TV last night, Rick Snyder appeared on the screen. At first I thought he must have some breaking state news. But, sorry to say, it was just another paid commercial.

I have to admit it was a very well-done production with the scenery and patriotic music. Unfortunately, the message was the same old crap warmed over.

One line that stuck out was "You might not feel it yet, but you will." He was referring to how we have fared under the "new" Republican reign in Lansing.

Well, Mr. Snyder, after comparing my 2011 state tax form with the past two years, I found I am already "feeling it" to the tune of costing me $750 per year. I imagine the majority of our people have been hit harder than that.

I would urge all but the wealthiest of Michiganders to pull out those tax forms and you can tell Snyder that you, too, already "feel it." I excluded the rich, because they have made out spectacularly under this regime.

Remember these forms when you vote Nov. 4, because if Snyder and crew are not defeated, it will only get worse for the majority of us.

Albrecht's OT magic helps Eagles garner 3-3 tie

PCA comes back to earn draw after losing early lead

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

For much of the first half Tuesday, although Plymouth Christian Academy enjoyed a 2-0 lead against Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest, the Eagles missed some premium chances to blow the MIAC boys soccer game wide open.

Ultimately, those missed chances gave the Crusaders a fighting chance in the second half and they scored two late goals to force two 10-minute overtimes.

Lutheran Northwest went up by a goal in the first extra session, but PCA senior forward Lucas Albrecht — who had a goal and an assist in the first 40 minutes, but also missed the net on some top-drawer opportunities — had the chance to come through in the nick of time.

And Albrecht wasn't about to miss again. He took a nifty feed from sophomore forward Austin Andres (who teamed up with him on the goals in the first half), then moved into the 18-yard box in the Crusaders' end.

Next, Albrecht twirled and booted the ball inside the far post past junior goalkeeper Soloman Spangler with 4:58 in the second overtime. That made it a 3-3 tie, which is how the match concluded.

"Austin had the ball in the middle, he got the ball from Brian (Schleintz)," Albrecht said. "It had happened a couple times and I missed the shot earlier, in the first half.

"So I knew it was coming, I shielded a guy off me, on my back, I just put it to my left and I put it far post, where I knew the goalie wouldn't be."

He lamented missing similar chances earlier, however.

"Unfortunately, I waited too long to score that," Albrecht said. "Maybe if I had done it earlier it would have been a different outcome. But we came out with a tie, so it's not

Canton bests Plymouth in battle of KLAA South powers

Mohamad Miri saw an opportunity and seized it.

The Canton sophomore forward, up from the junior varsity, pounced on a ball that rolled away from sliding Plymouth goalkeeper James Gibbs and rolled it into the net with merely 16:06 left in the second half Tuesday night.

That proved to be the first and only goal of the KLAA South boys soccer showdown between two campus rivals which entered the match undefeated in the division.

With the 1-0 win, the Chiefs improved to 9-0-1 overall and 5-0-0 in the KLAA South, while Plymouth dropped to 7-3-2, 4-1-0.

"It feels amazing," said Miri, who also scored a varsity goal when called up earlier this season. "I expected to do something spectacular this game. ... I helped the team out by getting a goal, so it's very good."

Miri added, with a smile, that the ball "barely went in, but it was a goal."

Drawing the assist on the play was junior midfielder Jason Ren. The Chiefs threw a defensive blanket over the Wildcats down the stretch to close out the key victory.

"On that play specifically, Jason Ren played a beautiful through ball to Mohamad and he worked extremely hard to win the ball, beat the goalie," Canton head coach Mark Zemanski said. "He (Miri) showed really good composure by putting it back on net, an excellent job."

CROSS COUNTRY

'Cats, Rocks capture invites

Big weekend for Plymouth, Salem

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Both Plymouth's and Salem's varsity girls cross country teams tasted sweet victory over the weekend.

The Wildcats prevailed Saturday at the ultra-competitive Autumn Classic in Stoney Creek, nipping favored Grosse Pointe North by two points.

Leading the way was sophomore medalist Annie Bonds, with a career best time of 19:54 to nip North's Lauren Sickmiller by nine seconds.

"We are moving in the right direction with new girls taking off chunks of time each race and veteran runners pushing the pace from the top," Wildcats assistant coach Alice Ahearn said. "The girls are putting in great work at practice and are seeing the fruits of their labor at the races."

And Salem was victorious at Saturday's Holly Invitational at Springfield Oaks County Park, topping a 15-team field with 66 points.

"Today was a great learning experience for our athletes on how to compete in adverse conditions with the cold, wind, rain and muddy course," said Dave Gerlach, head coach of the Rocks. "The JV was dominant in their race today and the varsity overcame tough course conditions for the victory."

"Kayla Hughes ran a season best (20:20, 12th overall) to help this unit in the win. We had a very poor start after another team cut us off and really fought to get back into position."

As for Plymouth's victory at the Autumn Classic, Bonds was helped out by juniors Charlotte Clark, Emma Radke and Marianne DeBrito, who Ahearn said "used their pack running skills to cross the line while only allowing one additional North athlete to cross."

That trio came in 18th,

Quick-striking Ocelots slip past Surge, 2-0

By Tim Smith

Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team didn't just face rival Cincinnati State on Saturday afternoon.

The host Ocelots also dealt with wind, mud puddles and cool temperatures.

But they came out storming the Surge right from the start, scored twice before the NJCAA Region XII contest was three minutes old and captured a 2-0 victory to improve to 5-0-0 overall and 4-0-0 in the region.

One of the Schoolcraft players who forced the issue on offense was freshman midfielder/forward and Canton alum Nathan Bergeson.

"The conditions, we got used to it right away," Bergeson said. "We used the slippery, wet grounds to our advantage. We got the second goal with a slide across the box, even the first goal, helped to slide in to get the cross in."

"But it was pretty slippery and getting pretty muddy."

Bergeson added that "it was

Black out: Steelers pummel Patriots

By Ed Wright
Staff Writer

In a game that featured the debut of its all-black uniforms, the Plymouth-Canton Steelers varsity football team thrashed visiting Birmingham, 37-0, Saturday afternoon at Central Middle School in downtown Plymouth.

The victory improved the Steelers' record to 2-0 heading into Saturday's 4 p.m. home game against West Bloomfield.

Ian Gozdor sparked the winners' onslaught with an opening-drive touchdown run that was fueled by strong blocks from James Hansen and Jason Perko. Seth Troszak ripped the two-point conversion kick through the uprights to make it 8-0.

A short time later, Carson Miller rumbled into the end zone for the first of his two TDs and another Troszak two-pointer made it 16-0.

Quarterback Ben Wright added to the Patriots' misery early in the second quarter when he took a keeper to the house from 40 yards out. Nick Downs and Miller paved Wright's way with crunching blocks.

Alex Smith added an exclamation point to the Steelers' rout when he scored a third-quarter TD before tacking on the extra point.

the season were defensive gladiators Troszak, Miller and Dean Kaye.

JV Steelers rally

A huge second-half surge led the junior varsity Steelers to a 21-12 victory over the Patriots. Both teams owned 1-1 records after the stirring showdown.

Trailing 12-0 at the intermission, the Steelers rebounded with 21 unanswered points as Cooper Donlin scored a pair of touchdowns thanks to steam-roller blocking from Nicholas Koski, Brendan Jankowski, Andrew Uhlian, Tyler Overaitis, Zach Sweet, Nolan Mathew and Zach Kubacki.

Logan Walkley was instrumental in the comeback, scoring a TD and intercepting a Patriots pass in the end zone. Ethan Rotell unleashed a couple of huge yardage-consuming runs late in the game.

Defensively, Nate Cain, Adam Janack, Mason Hackney, Drew Poet, Aidan Tafalski and Aiden Garbarino all turned in stellar efforts.

Freshmen excel

The freshmen Steelers dominated time of possession throughout the game against the Patriots, powered by a ball-control offense that was led by key blocking from Preston Houser and Dylan Fuciarelli. Quarterback Rick Williams scored the Steelers' first touchdown of the game on a 2-yard run in the second half.

huge" to get on the scoreboard so quickly, especially as the Ocelots really wanted to end Cincinnati State's four-game winning streak against them dating back a couple of seasons.

Both times, Schoolcraft freshman forward Costa Wells was in the mix, setting up teammates deep in Surge territory.

With just 1:09 elapsed, freshman midfielder Victor Contreras sent a perfect cross from Wells and made no mistake with his shot. It was the fifth goal of the season for Contreras.

Schoolcraft then made it 2-0 at 2:52. Once again, Wells made a nice feed and the ensuing shot taken by freshman defender Adam Antosh (Troy Athens) wound up behind Cincinnati State goalkeeper Quentin Perez.

Starting to jell

The Ocelots did not score the rest of the way, although Bergeson did have a goal in the second half called back due to a foul.

"We had a good couple chances at the end, especially I got one that was called a foul," Bergeson said. "But it happens. We're getting better as a team. This is just the beginning."

Making the early lead hold up for Schoolcraft was freshman goalie Andres Hernandez, who stopped all eight shots he saw.

Ocelots head coach Rick Larson also lauded the effort turned in by defenders, including Antosh, who preserved the shutout with eight minutes to go in the second half.

The ball got behind Hernandez, but Antosh raced back to clear it out of harm's way before a Cincinnati State player could nudge it in.

"His radar is so set for the defending side of it that it's like, if you get behind our goalkeeper and you don't put something definitive in the net, Adam's going to be there to clean it up," Larson said. "We've been waiting for 13 months to have Adam Antosh on our team, so we're excited for what he's brought to the table."

"That was just an example of the things he does. That wasn't special, that was just Adam."

Larson had plenty of positive things to say about the entire team in how it put the clamps on Cincinnati State (5-2-0, 4-1-0).

"He (Bergeson) was fantastic," Larson said. "We had guys, Jon Quintana, he was fantastic, Moe Chahine was fantastic, Abu (Algabri) was great. Adam (Antosh), our whole back line."

"Billy Werthman (Livonia Stevenson), Nick Dykman, Brandon Schulz (Farmington), those guys ... they were great."

The veteran coach added that it was good to see how his team came out ready to go despite less-than-ideal playing conditions, capping off an eventful week where there was some adversity thrown in.

"I commend the players in the fact they dealt with a lot this week," Larson said. "With having their game canceled on Wednesday, (then) no training, then we go back into the game on Thursday and play against a very tough, stubborn Jackson team and win 2-1."

"And then our preparation for the top team in the region (Cincinnati State) was absolutely fantastic yesterday. And the result showed."

The Ocelots were scheduled to come right back to the Schoolcraft College pitch Sunday afternoon for another tough opponent in Cuyahoga.

But Larson stressed that the reason such challenging back-to-backs are scheduled during the regular season is to help the team get mentally and physically used to the grind that will face it during tournament time.

"We like the back-to-back opportunities," he said. "Because at nationals, you have to play depending on where you're seeded, you have to play against a lesser-than team on a Thursday and then if you that game now it's the national semifinals, so now you have to play against a greater-than team in back-to-back games."

"It's a very difficult environment. First you got to prepare your mind that you're going to be in those situations and then you got to deal with it physically to perform on back-to-back days at a very high level."

COLLEGE WOMEN'S SOCCER

Lady Ocelots slosh their way to 2-0 victory

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

For Schoolcraft College women's soccer coach Deepak Shivraman, his team's 2-0 victory Saturday over Cincinnati State was nice, of course.

But the longtime Lady Ocelots coach could only smile when talking about some of his never-say-die players, such as sophomore midfielder Jessica Parry — who happened to score Schoolcraft's second goal on the cool, windy afternoon.

Shivraman said Parry topped the long list of players who got after it despite the elements and a mud-splattered pitch at Schoolcraft.

"We talked about that (field conditions) at halftime," Shivraman said. "Certain players start to create their own luck and, I think for us, I always use Jessica Parry (as an example), because she creates her own luck."

"She works so hard for every ball, she slides everywhere, whether it's wet, dry, whatever and that's the kind of play that we need from everyone. You can't depend on the circumstances, you have to create your own circumstances."

Shivraman also cited sophomore defender Hannah Hasbrouck and freshman defender Lacey Chanady for having "that same DNA, (they'll) chase anything and everything to win that ball."

The Lady Ocelots (2-0-0, 2-0-0 in NJCAA Region XII) put the pressure on Surge goalkeeper Tressie Lewis (16 saves) right from the start of the contest, which immediately followed the Schoolcraft-Cincinnati State men's match-up (also won 2-0 by Schoolcraft).

Yet the Surge goalie nearly made it to halftime without being scored on.

On target

There was approximately four minutes remaining before the intermission, when Schoolcraft freshman forward and

Ann Arbor Skyline product Cienna Rael-Whitsitt found the mark.

Rael-Whitsitt took a nice pass from sophomore defender Taylor Breault (Northville) and cut into the 18-yard box from the right side before drilling a high shot inside the far post past Lewis.

Cincinnati State (2-3-0, 2-1-0 in Region XII) came close to an equalizer in the sixth minute of the second half, when forward Kelsey Black rushed up the middle of the box only to be met by Schoolcraft freshman goalkeeper Kaitlyn Dangelmaier (Brighton).

The goalie, who only had to stop four shots, slid out and blocked Black's attempt.

Schoolcraft then turned on the jets offensively, with Rael-Whitsitt, Parry and freshman midfielder Kelly Schmidt (Canton) setting the tempo and putting on plenty of pressure.

With about 8:30 to go, freshman midfielder Valeria Cossyleon went up the middle and sent the ball over to the speedy, creative Rael-Whitsitt — who dribbled past defenders right on top of Lewis, only to have her shot tipped away.

Less than a minute later, Parry was rewarded for her constant work with her first goal of the season.

Parry received a pass from Cossyleon, darted in to the top of the box and sent her low shot inside the right post. That made it 2-0 with 7:44 remaining and sealed the victory.

"It was a beautiful pass by Val. I just ran on to it and finished it," Parry said. "It was a great pass. I put it lower right corner, just placed it. That's about it."

She acknowledged that with the ball blowing all over the place, plus plenty of standing water to contend with, it was important to "want to look for the low corners."

Parry's mud-soaked uniform also told the tale about how she and the Lady Ocelots competed all day long.

One of Schoolcraft's stellar performers Saturday, sophomore Jessica Parry (No. 25) battles for the ball against Cincinnati State's Deandre Criddell (No. 12). Parry scored a goal in the Lady Ocelots' 2-0 victory.

"You just got to want it all the time, that's the way I look at it," Parry said, smiling. "You just have to give everything you have. We're doing what we love, we're blessed to be able to go out there and play, so you might as well take advantage of it."

Out on the field for 88 of the 90 minutes was Breault.

"It was tough," Breault said. "It's really competitive out there, so you just have to stick with it and work hard to get what we wanted and it was a win."

Like family

Schmidt, meanwhile, said that although field conditions were rough "we were just working hard. It's a good team (Cincinnati State), their forwards are fast and they knew how to play the ball around us. But we stopped them and we worked together well."

She also is having a blast transitioning from the Kensington Lakes Activities Association, where she was a key player for the Canton Chiefs.

"I love it here. I love the team, I love the atmosphere, I love the connection I have with the girls," Schmidt said. "It's probably one of my favorite teams I've played on."

"Just the way I connected with Jess (Parry) and Rem (Remy Houttekier) and Shae (van Gassen) and Ci (Rael-Whitsitt), it's just a good atmosphere. We truly are a family."

The Lady Ocelots did not have long to savor the big win because they were scheduled to face Muskegon on Sunday, also at Schoolcraft.

"That's what college soccer's about, it's full load for these guys with classes and training and games," Shivraman said. "But I tell them every day, 'Hey, we're not asking you to dig coal in the mines. This is child's play, enjoy it because it goes really fast.'"

all bad."

PCA head coach Kris Warnemuende, whose team leads its division with an 8-1-0 record, said the tying goal demonstrated Albrecht's skills. The diminutive forward has 18 goals already this season and holds the school record for goals with 58, which he broke earlier this season.

"He has a great first touch," Warnemuende said. "He can turn on a dime; it's a lot of fun to watch."

The game was only about five minutes old when Albrecht put PCA on the scoreboard. He powered a 16-yarder inside the right post, again set up by Andres.

Then, with 7:05 to play in the half, Andres rushed into the box and, while being knocked to the ground, nudged the ball into the net for a 2-0 lead.

The Crusaders (4-5-1) made some halftime adjustments and there was a lot less room to roam for the Eagles in the second half.

Lutheran Northwest finally got on the board when senior Eric Drews deposited his own rebound behind PCA junior goalkeeper Nick Andres with 13:56 to play in regulation.

The equalizer came with 5:16 remaining. A ball lofted from the left flank by senior Nick Grunewald flew over Andres and Crusaders freshman Trevor Butler flicked it in, as he stood almost on the goal line.

A hand ball in the box led to Lutheran Northwest's penalty kick goal in the first OT by senior Kahner James.

"We lost our (defensive) shape and we weren't picking the guys up," Warnemuende said. So as they came through for the crosses, they weren't marked.

"It was a good wake-up call. The press, their team, showed great poise on the field and that was good to challenge us to work a little harder in practice and in our next game."

PCA 2, INTER-CITY BAPTIST 1: Over the years, Allen Park Inter-City Baptist has been the kryptonite in stopping PCA's opportunity for a super season.

While it's managed to muster a few ties against its foe from Allen Park, PCA hasn't been victorious since 2007. That is, until the Eagles landed back on the Chargers' field last Friday for a key MIAC battle. Having just beaten the seventh-ranked Grosse Pointe Woods University-Liggett team 24 hours earlier, PCA had to face its third opponent in four days by taking on the fifth-ranked Inter-City team.

Inter-City's speed, especially in the middle of the field, made it difficult for PCA to get its high-powered offense on track. Both teams were possessing a fairly equal amount when senior captain Lucas Albrecht, off a free kick from 25 yards out, buried a knuckling ball past the Inter-City goalie for a 1-0 lead.

Moments later, a PK was called following a Chargers corner kick and junior Garrett Kraatz tied the score. With four minutes remaining in the first half, Albrecht received a great pass from sophomore Ben Fuller; the ball popped out from a slide tackle and Albrecht one-timed it with his left foot for a 2-1 halftime score.

The second half consisted of high drama as Inter-City didn't want to lose on its home field. PCA employs a 3-5-2 formation with three seniors on defense: captain Giuseppe Iacopelli, Joey Fanelli and Torre Crown. They partnered with junior goalie Nick Andres to keep the Chargers at bay. The Eagles (7-1-0) had their fourth straight victory.

Brent Albrecht contributed to this story.

Will to win

An example of how hard the Chiefs clamped down to finish the win was a defensive sequence with under a minute to go by junior forward Sam DeLoy, who refused to give up the ball despite several Wildcats doing their best to get it for a last-ditch scoring bid.

"His play at the end was unbelievable," Zemanski said about DeLoy. "To hold that ball and play three players and take them on and win a corner kick, that shows a lot of heart, a lot of character."

Plymouth head coach Jeff Neschich, whose team will again face the Chiefs on Oct. 2, praised his team for working hard. He cited the inability to finish as a factor in the outcome.

"It was a hard-fought game," Neschich said. "The boys are a little disappointed, but we played well and we created enough opportunities that could have gone our way."

"We played good enough to put a few in the net and we missed the opportunities and left a few goals on the field out there tonight."

Not surprisingly for a game with so much at stake, both squads battled each other with hammer-and-tong intensity. Bodies were flying everywhere, with shifting defenses closing off avenues before dangerous plays could be made in scoring territory.

There were some close calls, however.

In the 24th minute of the first half, Plymouth senior co-captain Jason Liguori sent a corner kick in front to teammate Nathan Harris.

But the subsequent header just missed the Canton net, guarded in the opening 40 minutes by senior Dylan DaSilva (senior Jay Krebs played the second half).

A few minutes later, Canton junior midfielder Josh Posuniak stepped around Plymouth defenders and took a hard shot from close range that Wildcats goalkeeper Damon Favero (who played the first half) blocked.

The ball trickled toward the goalmouth, but Favero reached back to collect it in time.

The defensive pressure ramped up after intermission, even before the lone goal was scored.

"I was really pleased with my defense," Zemanski said. "After giving up a couple goals against (Livonia) Franklin, we played two of the top teams in the division (Livonia Churchill, Plymouth) and we shut them out both times."

"I thought we worked really hard. I thought Kyle Mettlich in the middle and Sam Belcher were exceptional."

Neschich said his team plans on bouncing back from the tough loss.

"We've got a real strong team and a great attitude out of the boys, so we're not going to give up," he said. "We're right there with the top teams and we need to keep working hard and keep getting better."

SALEM 2, NOVI 2: On Tuesday at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park's varsity turf field, the Rocks tied the game on Jay Lee's goal with five minutes left in overtime, off an assist from Max Kummer.

Salem (3-5-1, 2-2-1) also received a goal from Kummer, who buried a direct free kick midway through the second half.

Wildcats win again!

PLYMOUTH TENNIS

Plymouth's varsity boys tennis team continued its winning ways with Saturday's Canton Invitational championship. Plymouth (5-0, 4-0 in the KLAAs) won its third consecutive invitational title after finishing ahead of Milford, Hartland and tourney host Canton (by one point). "My team stepped it up," Wildcats head coach Tom Kimball said. "We were short four of our top varsity players due to ACT testing, but our JV guys filled in nicely and were able to get the job done."

PREP VOLLEYBALL

Veterans, newbies meshing nicely for Wildcats

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Most followers of KLAAs varsity volleyball know all about Plymouth veterans such as senior middle hitter Olivia Beyer and outside hitter Lauren Clemons, among others.

But they also are quickly finding out that the Wildcats' talent cupboard is stocked with up-and-coming talents as the team looks to gain traction in the KLAAs South Division — particularly to take on campus rival Canton and perennial stalwart Livonia Churchill.

Consider junior libero Charley Irvin, who Plymouth head coach Sarah Marody noted "has instantly found her niche" with the squad.

"He ability to read the ball off the hand of the hitters and take charge on the left side complements the efforts of our senior middle backs. She has stepped in immediately and has already made an impact," Marody said about Irvin. "We are really looking to be defensive-minded this year and build our system around the connection between Charley and our seniors."

Other juniors who already are making their presence known include setters Brianna Risi and Alex Barry, defensive specialist Taylor Smith and outside hitter MacKenzie Cashero.

The Wildcats also are getting a boost from sophomore right-side hitter Jordyn Kuchka and sophomore middle hitter Lydia Bell, who the coach said "have already shown that they are here to make an impact. They have given us key contributions in our first games and are ready to be the big future of our program."

One returnee who is part of that future is sophomore outside hitter/middle hitter Jordan Schamp, who Marody said "played middle for us as a freshman, but has made a seamless switch to the outside."

Schamp is cut out of the same cloth as Clemons (one of the captains, along with Beyer and senior defensive specialist Katie Stevens), as both "are explosive, athletic and can play multiple positions. Their versatility and positive team attitude create depth for us."

Veterans set tone

Of course, most teams can't go wrong with outstanding seniors, the kind Plymouth has in Louisiana State University-bound Beyer and several others.

"Her leadership is unmatched, she's a class act," Marody said. "Olivia's quick offense and ability to place the ball from anywhere on the court from any type of set is nicely complemented by her strong defense and her ability to read the opposition's offense and place herself squarely behind the ball."

"There's no limit to this young lady's talent and work ethic and leadership."

Also providing offensive punch are senior right-side hitters Jenny Gunther and Lauren Conley.

"They have made tremendous improvements in their overall game and are ready to step up as blocking leaders and offensive threats," Marody said. "Each girl brings a different set of strengths to the court, only increasing the depth we have at each position."

And don't forget about defensive dynamos such as Stevens and seniors Aleah Rogalski and Payton Petruski.

Stevens and Rogalski "will be setting our defensive standard by providing speed on our serve-serve and quality first touches. They have a huge responsibility setting the tone for how our offensive game is going to run on any given night."

Meanwhile, Marody credited the way Petruski has "stepped up to lead this team. She is working hard to connect with her hitters again and take advantage of our strengths as well as learn how to expose the other team's weakness."

Salem spikers edge Northville in five

Rocks rebound to capture deciding set

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Salem's varsity volleyball team won a see-saw match against KLAAs Central Division rival Northville thanks to a clutch performance in the fifth and deciding set.

According to Salem head coach Amanda Nies, her team had been leading 2-1 before dropping the fourth set by a 25-17 score to even things up. But in the fifth set, the Rocks prevailed 15-10 to win their first division match.

"The girls knew they needed to come out fast and strong and loud (in the final set)," Nies said. "The girls did just that. Cassidy Hewett had a great serving run that really got us a great lead."

"I am so proud of my girls. They really deserved it and never gave up."

Top performers included junior outside hitter Tess

Ganich (23 kills), senior libero Kelly Lidzbarski (22 digs), junior setter Sara Soltis (33 assists), junior outside hitter Emma Merlington (seven digs) and junior outside hitter Kendall Gillen (six kills).

Salem improved to 5-5 overall and 1-1 in the division.

The Rocks started slowly, falling 25-16 in the first set against the defensively scrappy Mustangs.

"Tipping was not an option, because they were fast and picked everything up," Nies said. "In order to attack, our passing and setting had to be consistent."

Things improved in the second and third sets, which Salem won by the same score of 25-23. In the second, the Rocks were down 23-16 and rallied behind a clutch service string from Gillen.

19th and 21st, respectively, to give the Wildcats the winning edge.

"There were many other season and career best times throughout the rest of the team, with everyone contributing to the success of the team," Ahearn said.

Salem had little of a challenge at the Holly Invite, finishing well ahead of runners-up Ann Arbor Pioneer (111 points) and third-place Oxford (136).

Finishing strong for the Rocks were seniors Lauren Arquette (third, 19:27) and Anya Cho (sixth, 19:42).

Placing 18th with a time of 20:39 was senior Shekinah Johnson.

Other Salem medal-winners included sophomore Erin McCann (27th, 21:05) and senior Elizabeth Tripp (33rd, 21:15), while Sierra Bowden came in 42nd (21:35).

The Plymouth girls cross country team celebrates after finishing first at the Autumn Classic.

PLYMOUTH WILDCATS

SALEM BOYS HARRIERS: On Saturday at the highly competitive Holly Invitational, Salem's varsity boys cross country team finished 11th out of 19 teams. Winning the meet was Lakeland.

For the Rocks, junior Chaz Jeffress was individual champion with a personal best of 16:02.

Jeffress now is the fourth-fastest junior and eighth-fastest runner in Salem school history. "This meet sets Chaz up very well to continue to improve throughout the course of the season," Salem head coach Steve Aspinall said. "He looked very smooth in running 16:02 and will continue to drop time as the season progresses." Other Salem performers of note included seniors

Nabil Ahmed and Noah Engerer (who finished second and third among team members). "These guys did a fantastic job moving up throughout the race, but need to get out a bit quicker to position themselves better for the finish," Aspinall said.

OUTLOOK IMPROVING FOR COMMERCIAL REAL ESTATE

The strong rebound in economic growth during the second quarter and ongoing job creation are gradually improving the outlook for all of the major commercial real estate sectors, according to the National Association of Realtors quarterly commercial real estate forecast.

Lawrence Yun, NAR chief economist, says after many false starts, the economy finally appears to be turning a corner to firmer ground. "The job market has been the bright spot of the economy this year as employers are feeling more confident about their growth prospects and adding to their payrolls," he said. "This gradual turnaround from being overly cautious to more optimistic should slightly boost the demand for leasing and purchase activity as well as new construction projects in the upcoming year."

Yun added, "The economy can handle the inevitable rise in interest rates as long as commercial rents steadily rise to generate investor returns."

National office vacancy rates are forecast to remain unchanged over the coming year, mostly due to added inventory entering the market. Rising exports and a shrinking trade deficit should lead to a declining vacancy rate for industrial space (0.4 percent), while retail space is forecast to decline 0.2 percent behind favorable gains in personal income and consumer spending.

"New construction for multifamily housing has picked up in recent months and looks to be alleviating the short supply," said Yun. "However, the demand for rental housing continues to show strength. As a result, rent growth will outpace broad consumer inflation in upcoming years."

NAR's latest Commercial Real Estate Outlook offers overall projections for four major commercial sectors and analyzes quarterly data in the office, industrial, retail and multifamily markets. Historic data for metro areas were provided by REIS Inc., a source of commercial real estate performance information.

Office markets

Office vacancy rates are forecast to remain unchanged at 15.7 percent through the third quarter of 2015.

Currently, the markets with the lowest office vacancy rates in the third quarter are Washington, D.C., at 9.3 percent; New York City, 9.6 percent; Little Rock, Ark., 11.5 percent; San Francisco, 12.4 percent; and New Orleans, at 12.7 percent.

Office rents are projected to increase 2.6 percent in 2014 and 3.2 percent next year. Net absorption of office space in the U.S., which includes the leasing of new space coming on the market as well as space in existing properties, is likely to total 36.2 million square feet this year and 50.7 million in 2015.

Industrial markets

Industrial vacancy rates are expected to fall from 8.9 percent in the third quarter to 8.5 percent in the third quarter of 2015.

The areas with the lowest industrial vacancy rates currently are Orange County, Calif., with a vacancy rate of 3.5 percent; Los Angeles, 3.8 percent; Seattle, 5.9 percent; Miami, 6.1; and Palm Beach, Fla., at 6.6 percent.

Annual industrial rents should rise 2.4 percent this year and 2.8 percent in 2015. Net absorption of industrial space nationally is seen at 107.6 million square feet in 2014 and 104.9 million next year.

Retail markets

Vacancy rates in the retail market are expected to decline from 9.8 percent currently to 9.6 percent in the third quarter of 2015.

ter of 2015.

Currently, the markets with the lowest retail vacancy rates include San Francisco, at 3.5 percent; Fairfield County, Conn., 3.9 percent; San Jose, Calif., 4.6 percent; Long Island, N.Y., 5.2 percent; and Orange County, Calif., at 5.3 percent.

Average retail rents are forecast to rise 2.0 percent in 2014 and 2.4 percent next year. Net absorption of retail space is likely to total 11.2 million square feet this year and 19.3 million in 2015.

Multifamily markets

The apartment rental market – multifamily housing – should see vacancy rates slightly decline from 4.1 percent currently to 4.0 percent in the third quarter of 2015. Vacancy rates below 5 percent are generally considered a landlord's market, with demand justifying higher rent.

Areas with the lowest multifamily vacancy rates currently are Orange County, Calif., Providence, R.I., and Sacramento, Calif., at 2.2 percent; and two Connecticut cities (New Haven and Hartford) at 2.5 percent.

Average apartment rents are projected to rise 4.0 this year and in 2015. Multifamily net absorption is expected to total 223,400 units in 2014 and 171,000 next year.

The Commercial Real Estate Outlook is published by the NAR Research Division. NAR's Commercial Division, formed in 1990, provides targeted products and services to meet the needs of the commercial market and constituency within NAR.

The NAR commercial community includes commercial members; commercial real estate boards; commercial committees, subcommittees and forums; and the NAR commercial affiliate organizations – CCIM Institute, Institute of Real Estate Management, Realtors Land Institute, Society of Industrial and Office Realtors, and Counselors of Real Estate.

Approximately 70,000 NAR and institute affiliate members specialize in commercial brokerage and related services, and an additional 283,000 members offer commercial real estate services as a secondary business.

Check income tax implications on short sale

Q: We entered into a short sale of our property. Do you think that we have any income tax liability for the amount that we saved?

A: For federal income tax purposes, such as a cancellation of the debt is generally considered ordinary income. Many distressed homeowners face the risk of not only losing their homes, but also thousands of dollars in income taxes. Fortunately, homeowners using waivers of deficiencies face a very difficult choice. 1) They can declare bankruptcy costing a few thousand dollars in attorney fees and discharge personal liability or 2) they can settle with their lender and face many more thousands of dollars of tax liability from cancellation of debt (COD) at ordinary income rates. Again, you should consult with an experienced real estate and tax consultant with respect to the ramifications of this undertaking.

Q: I am thinking about buying a new condo in New Buffalo, Mich. Has the market picked up?

A: Most assuredly, the market has picked up and the homes and/or cottages-condos have increased approximately 20 percent over the last year. There are still a number properties for sale, however, and negotiations may result in a good opportunity for you during the winter months, but learn as much about the subdivision or condominium project as you can before you are bound by a purchase agreement.

BUCKHAVE, JENS C.

Rita Moreno, actress, dancer, singer, to greet fans at Redford Theatre

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Some films need to be shown, larger than life, on the big screen.

And if you haven't seen the 1961 Robert Wise/Jerome Robbins musical drama, West Side Story at a movie theater, you're missing out.

"Oh, do you want to talk about a classic! It's astonishing and do you know what's wonderful about it? For one thing it has been re-digitized. So, it's in great shape. But aside from that, seeing it on the big screen is just such a different experience," said Rita Moreno, 82, in a recent phone interview. Moreno won an Oscar for her portrayal of "Anita" in West Side Story. "People don't realize what they missed. They've seen it on television on a small screen. They don't realize what they've missed until they see it on the big screen. It's a whole new experience.

"I appreciate it more every time I see it. I'm always amazed at how timely the songs and the choreography are. It's just genius."

She'll watch it again Friday-Sunday, Sept. 26-28, at the Redford Theatre in Detroit. Moreno will meet fans after a red carpet arrival one hour and 15 minutes before each screening. Show times are 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 1 p.m. Sunday, at the theater, 17360 Lahser, Detroit. Tickets are $7. Buy them online at redfordtheatre.com.

Multi-talented

Moreno has earned dozens of awards for her work, including the Grammy, (The Electric Company Album) Tony, (The Ritz) Emmy (The Muppet Show and The Rockford Files) and Oscar awards. She ranks West Side Story as her most significant film and its resulting Oscar as her most prized award. Her favorite dance numbers in the film are I Want to Be in America, in which she figures prominently, and Cool, in which she doesn't appear but describes as "genius" for its tension-filled movements.

Moreno said she was so surprised when her name was announced as an Oscar winner, she couldn't find words for her acceptance speech. She figured Judy Garland would win the honor for her work in Judgment at Nuremberg.

"If you haven't seen the speech, look it up on YouTube. It's hilarious. I said 'I can't believe it. Good Lord. I leave you with that.'"

A month before the audition for West Side Story, she took daily dance lessons to get back into shape after a 10-year dance hiatus.

"I very nearly lost the part because I wasn't up to par for the dancing. I knew there was a lot missing from my style. But I made such a good impression during the audition that Jerry Robbins felt he could get it out of me. But it would require an enormous amount of work ... he worked me like a dog."

Getting started

Moreno began taking Spanish dance lessons after arriving in New York with her mother, who left Puerto Rico for a new life in the U.S. when her daughter was 5 years old. Moreno was 13 when Rita Moreno (center) kicks up her heels in the 1961 musical film, West Side Story. She won an Oscar for her portrayal of Anita in the film.

Rita Moreno, 82, is one of the busiest stars in show business. She's working on an album with Emilio Estefan, voiced the role of Aunt Mimi in the 2014 animated film, Rio 2, won the 50th Screen Actors Guild Life Achievement Award in January, and is set to begin production on a Hallmark made-for-television film.

she landed her first Broadway role as "Angelina" in Skydrift. Film and television parts followed, including appearances in Singin' in the Rain and The King and I, although she often was cast in stereotypical ethnic roles. Even after receiving the Oscar, she was offered — and rejected — roles she considered demeaning.

"I see more and more as I get older and more objective, that I was the one who was there first. I was the one who went through all that awful prejudice in movies and in my profession," she said. "A lot of Hispanics and the black com-

 » "Make your brain work. I'll deliberately write with my left hand to make my brain work. I will jog backwards. Anything to make your brain work. Do crossword puzzles. I play Scrabble on my mini-pad."
 » "Exercise probably is the paramount thing — the kind of exercise where you will get a little bit out of breath or a lot out of breath, depending on what shape you're in. But you've really got to just keep going. I live in the hills in Berkeley, California, and now that I have a little puppy dog, we go walking together, and these are murderous hills. I do them slowly. You don't have to jog, but you have to work your body. In turn, it refreshes your brain. It's true what they say, believe what you read, and get going."
 » "You know what's a wonderful exercise? Put on music you like that has rhythm. Take a pencil and start conducting it. That is such an upper body work out you wouldn't believe. I like marches."

with Mike Nichols' film Carnal Knowledge, and the PBS children's show, The Electric Company. Although colleagues advised her to skip the children's gig, she describes the show as one of her "happiest experiences."

"I met Bill Cosby and Morgan Freeman and worked with them. It was nothing but bliss and joy," she said.

Varied career

Over the years, she has worked steadily on screen, in television and on stage, including in a one-woman show in 2009. She wrote her memoir, Rita Moreno: A Memoir, published by Celebra Books in 2011, and voiced its audio version. She also read the audio version of U.S. Supreme Court Justice Sonia Sotomayor's autobiography. She has sung with symphonies across the U.S. — including in Detroit — and has lectured on diversity, aging and the arts. Moreno, who was married to the late Lenny Gordon, a cardiologist, enjoys spending time with her daughter, Fernanda, and two teenage grandsons.

She currently is working with music producer Emilio Estefan on an album of songs in Spanish.

"I've had an extremely varied career. It has enormous breadth. I was honored recently and as I looked at a (video) clip I said, wow, I have done everything. I do comedy. I do drama, theater, television, film. I sing, I dance, I act. I didn't think of it all until I started getting honored," she said, laughing. "And I have to say, I was impressed."

"Unless I'm on a gurney, I'm going to continue doing what I love to do."

THAI PORK NOODLE BOWL

Prep time: 5 minutes
Cook time: 10 minutes
Marinating time: 30 minutes
Servings: 4

4 boneless ribeye (rib) pork chops, about 1/2- to 1-inch thick
1/4 cup soy sauce
1/2 cup cilantro, chopped or 1 tablespoon dried cilantro
3 cloves garlic, crushed (about 3 tablespoons)
3 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 lime, juiced
Peanut Noodles:
10 ounces pasta, spaghetti, linguini or angel hair
1 lime, juiced
2 cloves garlic, finely minced
1/2 cup creamy peanut butter
1 cup hot water
2 tablespoons soy sauce

Whisk together the soy sauce, cilantro, garlic, brown sugar, vegetable oil and lime juice in a bowl. In a large baking dish, arrange the ribeye pork chops in an even layer. Pour the marinade over the pork chops, reserving about 1/4 cup of the marinade in the refrigerator for later use. Marinate the pork chops for 20 to 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, cook the pasta according to the package directions. Whisk together lime juice, garlic, peanut butter, hot water and soy sauce for the peanut sauce. Drain the pasta once cooked, and toss the pasta with the peanut noodle sauce in a large bowl. Add more soy sauce if desired.

Heat an indoor grill pan or outdoor grill to medium-high heat. Remove pork chops from the marinade, discarding the excess marinade. Place pork chops on the hot grill for 4 minutes on each side, flipping once until the internal temperature of the pork measures between 145 degrees F. (medium rare) and 160 degrees F. (medium) on a meat thermometer. Transfer the grilled pork chops to a cutting board and let rest for 3 minutes before slicing against the grain. Pour the reserved marinade over the sliced pork before serving and serve over the peanut noodles.

SPICY KOREAN PORK SKEWERS

Prep time: 10 minutes
Cook time: 10 minutes
Marinating time: 20 minutes
Servings: 4

2 pounds boneless country-style pork ribs, cut into 1-inch cubes
1/2 cup chili garlic sauce
1/2 cup soy sauce
2 inches fresh ginger root, skins removed and chopped (or substitute 2 teaspoons of ground ginger)
4 tablespoons filtered sake, or dry sherry (optional)
2 tablespoons sesame oil
3 tablespoons brown sugar

In a large bowl combine the chili garlic sauce, soy sauce, ginger, sake, sesame oil and brown sugar and whisk to form a marinade. Add the cubed pork to the marinade and let sit for 20 minutes. Heat an indoor grill pan or outdoor grill to medium-high heat. Thread the marinated cubes of pork on skewers, about 4 to 5 pieces per skewer. Transfer the skewers to the grill and cook, uncovered, turning to brown evenly every 2 to 3 minutes until tender, about 10 minutes. Serve immediately.

MEXICAN CHORIZO HUEVOS RANCHEROS

Prep time: 10 minutes
Cook time: 20 minutes
Servings: 4

12 ounces Mexican chorizo
8 corn tortillas, 5- or 6-inches in diameter
Cooking spray
1 15-ounce can refried black beans, warmed (substitute refried pinto beans or any kind of cooked whole bean you prefer)
Vegetable oil
8 large eggs
1 15-ounce jar roasted tomato salsa
Optional garnish: cilantro, avocado and queso fresco

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Arrange tortillas on 2 baking sheets, making sure they are evenly spaced and not overlapping. Lightly spray the top of each tortilla with cooking spray and then transfer the baking sheets into the oven. Bake for 10 to 12 minutes until crisp, but not brown.

Heat a cast iron skillet over medium-high heat. Once hot, stir in the chorizo, breaking it up with a wooden spoon as it starts to cook. Cook for 8 to 10 minutes or until chorizo is cooked through. Remove the cooked chorizo from the skillet with a slotted spoon to let any excess fat drip off. Place the chorizo in a medium bowl and set aside. Drain any excess fat left behind from the chorizo and, in the same skillet, add 2-3 teaspoons of oil. Carefully crack 3 eggs into the skillet, evenly spaced so they have room to cook, and cook until the egg white is solid, 3 to 4 minutes. Remove the fried eggs to a parchment-lined baking sheet and repeat this process for remaining eggs.

To assemble, smear equal amounts of the refried beans on top of each crisp tortilla, followed by equal parts of the jarred salsa. Sprinkle equal amounts of the cooked chorizo on top of the salsa, followed by one fried egg on top of each tortilla. Serve immediately.

CARIBBEAN PORK SANDWICH

Prep time: 10 minutes
Cook time: 20 minutes
Marinating time: 30 minutes
Servings: 4

4 New York (top loin) pork chops, 1/2-inch thick
1 tablespoon coarse salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper, fresh cracked
1/2 teaspoon cumin
1/2 teaspoon allspice
1/2 cup mayonnaise, or light mayonnaise
1 teaspoon chipotle chile in adobo sauce, minced
1 teaspoon lime zest, grated
4 ciabatta rolls, sliced in half horizontally
Lettuce leaves
Tomato, slices

Combine the salt, pepper, cumin and allspice in a small bowl. Rub onto both sides of the pork chops. Cover and refrigerate at least 20 minutes.

Prepare medium-hot fire in charcoal or preheat gas grill to medium high. Pat chops dry and grill over a medium-hot fire, turning once, until just done, about 8-9 minutes or until internal temperature reaches 145 degrees Fahrenheit.

Transfer chops to a cutting board. Cover loosely with foil; let rest 5 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine mayonnaise, chipotle pepper, lime rind and juice in a small bowl. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Spread 1 to 2 tablespoons mayonnaise mixture on top half of rolls. Cut pork into thin slices and place on rolls. Add lettuce leaf and tomato slices if desired.
