RECALL DEADLINE PASSES, BUT DRIVE CONTINUES

By Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

There won't be a recall election in May, but efforts to oust Plymouth Township's three full-time elected officials, plus a longtime Board of Trustees member, are continuing.

Supervisor Richard Reaume, Clerk Nancy Conzelman, Treasurer Ron Edwards and Trustee Kay Arnold are the targets of the recall effort, which proponents say was started out of frustration with what they call the officials' unwillingness to listen to and share information with the public, particularly on recent recreation projects. Recall targets say they have considered public input and been open and that the recall is being led by a disgruntled minority.

Activists missed a Jan. 30 deadline for a May recall election, but are still gathering voters' signatures on recall petitions against the four. About 3,200 petition signatures are needed, against each of them, in order to force a recall election against all four.

Petition language was approved by the Wayne Elections Commission in early October and the signature drive began Dec. 5.

"We went through the holidays and we went through some tremendous weather situations," said Sandy Groth, a former township deputy clerk, a 2012 board candidate and one of the recall leaders. "We've had a lot of things that've worked against us. But we have of late picked up steam."

November goal

The group is now aiming for a November recall election, Groth said, but only has until some time in April to finish gathering signatures, as recall language expires 180 days after it was approved.

Several petition-signing events are planned for local restaurants in the coming days, Groth said, and people who signed petitions in the

Teen faces May trial in murder conspiracy

By Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

The Plymouth Township teenager accused of conspiring to kill her brother, her sister and their parents faces trial this spring on seven felony charges.

Roksana Sikorski, who will turn 16 next month, "sliced" the neck of her brother, then 12, at their home during the early morning hours of Oct. 17, 2014, according to testimony earlier this month. The boy and his younger sister, 11, were able to alert their parents and Roksana, who fled the scene, was arrested later that day.

The boy, now 13, testified about the attack during a Feb. 5 preliminary hearing in 35th District Court. He is expected to fully recover.

Roksana and her alleged conspirator, Michael Rivera, 23, of Detroit, are each charged with one count of assault with intent to murder, four counts of conspiracy to commit murder, one count of felonious assault and one count of using a computer to commit a crime.

Police and prosecutors say Rivera and Roksana had been text-messaging each other about the attack and transcript of a text conversation

MUSEUM EXPLORES THE CREATIVE DRIVE

Handmade items are featured in exhibit

By Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

Human beings' drive to make things – for their utility, for their beauty or just because – is at the heart of the newest exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum.

Creative Hands, Busy Hands contrasts hand-crafted things of the past – dolls, blown glass, painted china, wooden figurines, quilts, paintings and more – with contemporary handmade items, many of them on loan from area hobbyists, crafters, artists and students.

The exhibit shows that while fashions change and some crafts grow in popularity as others fade, the desire to create is lasting. Sometimes, the old is indistinguishable from the new.

Creative Hands, Busy Hands includes handmade kitchenware, elaborate wooden game boards, cast-metal figures, hand-woven baskets, a student-built robot, handmade clothing, Victorian-era crazy quilts and dolls of all sorts – wooden, crocheted, in needlepoint and in printed cloth. There are toy bear dolls made of old fur coats, ceramic bird figurines, East-

Open houses scheduled for new township high school

New School High, set to open in Plymouth Township for the 2015-16 school year as a teacher-run charter high school, is hosting open houses Sunday and Monday.

The Sunday open house is 2:30-5 p.m. and the Monday open house is 6-8:30 p.m. Visitors can tour the school and meet staff members.

Enrollment for New School's first year will be limited to 125, with up to 25 spots reserved for 10th-grade transfer students and the rest for freshmen.

The New School program, school leader Cynthia Burnstein said, is built around the latest research in educating high school students. There will be individual lesson plans, an emphasis on project-based learning over memorization, health and wellness education for all four years and later start times, among other departures from traditional high schools. There is no tuition, entrance examination or grade prerequisites.

The school's chartering organization is Central Michigan University.

New School High is in the education wing of the Risen Christ Church, 46250 Ann Arbor Road. Visitors should use the McLumpha Road entrance.

Foundation to celebrate 25 years with gala

By Brad Kadrich

For 25 years, the Canton Community Foundation has been handing out grants, scholarships and monetary support to a variety of causes, events and groups in the local community.

For the next six months or so, the foundation will be acknowledging the silver anniversary of all the success, publishing stories on its website acknowledging the many ways foundation programs have helped.

And Saturday, March 7, the foundation will celebrate the whole thing with the Project Give Gala, a fundraising event designed not just to look back, but also to look forward. The event runs 6:30-11:30 p.m. at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn.

"This is a celebration and looking back at the past 25 years," said Beth Meade, the drive's early days are being contacted and invited to sign again.

That's because in order to be valid, recall signatures must be gathered within 60 days of the date they're submitted, meaning people who signed before mid-December can no longer have those signatures counted, even if petitions are turned in this week. Groth said the drive's "momentum has definitely increased substantially" and that residents are taking note of board actions, especially if they're watching board meetings on local cable television. "People are starting to say, 'Wow, I didn't realize what was going on in my township,'" she said.

Groth would not say how many signatures have been gathered. Reaume, contacted Wednesday, declined to comment on the continuing recall effort. "I'm elected to be the supervisor and that's what I do," Reaume said. "I show up every day and do my job."

CCF's marketing and events manager. "But it's really looking toward the future and where we plan to go in the next 25 years."

Over the years, the CCF has supported a variety of programs and groups, including (but not limited to) the Plymouth Veterans Memorial Park, the Miracle League of Plymouth, First Step, the Plymouth-Canton Clothing Bank, Kelly's Kidz and the Cady-Boyer Barn.

The gala is scheduled for the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, tying it together with the Canton Partnership for the Arts & Humanities, which is renovating a Henry Ford-built factory in Canton's Cherry Hill Village.

The partnership, which will get a portion of the proceeds from the March 7 gala, is hoping to turn the factory into an arts complex.

The annual scholarship program is one of the programs the Canton Community Foundation funds every year.

"We're very excited about the (factory) project," said Jill Engel, executive director of the partnership. "It's very generous of the Canton Community Foundation and we are grateful for their support."

The foundation has a variety of sponsorships available for purchase, ranging from a $1,200 table to a $10,000 presenting partner level. More information on those is available on the foundation's website (www.cantonfoundation.org).

The gala will feature a performance from the Michigan Philharmonic, along with a meal prepared by the Henry Ford's chefs. The meal will include Michigan-made wines, beers and desserts.

"The Henry Ford factory, the Henry Ford Museum, the Canton Partnership for the Arts ... all of those are local attractions," Meade said. "It was important for us to keep everything for the evening as Michigan made as possible."

Tickets for the gala are $175 per person or $1,200 for a table of eight. To get tickets, go to the foundation's website at www.cantonfoundation.org or contact Meade at 734-495-1200 or by email at bmeade@cantonfoundation.org.

er eggs decorated in the Ukrainian tradition (called pysanky) and embroidered samplers from the 19th century.

The show, exhibits coordinator Mary Thackston noted, was a way of getting the community more invested in the museum, as artists and students answered a call for contemporary work.

"We wanted to draw the community in, to have them feel involved and see their work here," she said.

Something borrowed ...

Several items were borrowed from local children, either through their schools or the Plymouth Community Arts Council, which offers a range of arts and crafts classes.

"It's exciting for the kids. We've had a lot of field trips come through already," Thackston said.

The exhibit also borrows from the museum's permanent collection, from staff members and the collectors and artists staffers know and even from the museum's largely volunteer maintenance staff, who have a section of their own with woodwork and intricate miniatures on display, including a finely detailed model battleship, all handmade in wood.

"There are a lot of talented people who volunteer here," said Thackston, who has several pieces in the exhibit.

Two creative traditions seen in the show have all but disappeared - ivory-carving and "make-do" crafting, which put broken items to new uses, turning the stem of a broken goblet, for example, into a stand for a pincushion. Others, like china-painting and wood-block printing, have waned in popularity, but still remain. "It's pretty amazing what human beings can do," Thackston said.

Creative Hands, Busy Hands opened late last month and runs through Sunday, June 14. The museum is at 155 S. Main; hours are 1-4 p.m. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Closed holidays.

City Year members get career tips

By Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

Young people who are spending this school year mentoring at-risk students in the Detroit area took time out to refocus on their own career paths Friday at Comcast's regional headquarters in Plymouth Township.

Friday was Comcast's annual career day for City Year Detroit participants, who spent the better part of the event talking to executives and human resources professionals from the communications giant about resume writing, job interview preparation, networking, building a personal brand and other skills that will help them in future job searches. About 60 City Year workers met with members of the Comcast team, both in group and one-on-one settings.

"Comcast is committed to investing in the communities we serve and supporting community programs like the City Year career day are investments in Michigan's future," Jason Gumbs, vice president of sales and marketing at Comcast, said in a prepared statement. "We were able to give these young adults the tools they need to pursue a career right here in the state, so that they are highly prepared, polished and stand out among other candidates."

Comcast is a national City Year partner, while Gumbs is a City Year Detroit board member.

City Year, founded in 1988, places college-age people, many of them college students or recent graduates, in cities around the country to partner with middle schools and high schools to mentor students who are at risk of dropping out.

City Year members spend four days a week in their partner schools during the academic year; one day a week, they work at hands-on service projects, such as park cleanups, or take

Father's trial set on child abuse charges

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

She was only eight weeks old when she arrived at a hospital after police say she was physically abused. Her young bones had been fractured — three ribs, the femur in her right leg.

Her alleged assailant was a 33-year-old man who authorities say should have been her protector — her father, Vincent Joel French II.

French, jailed after his

Barring a plea deal, French, 33, will have his day in court May 11, when his jury trial has been set in Wayne County Circuit arrest in October with a $500,000 cash bond, has pleaded not guilty to the felony charges.

However, he already has disposed of misdemeanor charges in 35th District Court. A clerk said French received the maximum 93 days in jail, plus $125 in fines, after he pleaded guilty to domestic violence. An additional count of fourth-degree child abuse was dismissed.

The misdemeanor charges arose from an incident involving French's 7-year-old stepdaughter. None of the charges involve his 9-year-old stepson, Canton police Lt. Chad Baugh has said.

French's felony case is pending in Wayne County Circuit Judge Ulysses Boykin's courtroom. He was charged after his baby daughter was taken to a hospital for injuries that police say already had begun to heal.

Canton police Lt. Chad

Baugh said the incident happened at The Crossings, an apartment complex on Canton's far north side, near I-275 and Joy Road.

Police learned of the alleged abuse from Child Protective Services, which had been notified by the hospital.

PLYMOUTH CRIME WATCH

Semi-trailer stolen

A white semi-trailer with a Maine license plate was reported stolen Friday from a lot on Eckles, north of Plymouth Road.

The theft occurred Jan. 26 or Jan. 27, according to the complainant, but it wasn't reported right away, a Plymouth Township Police Department report said. The trailer was worth more than $14,000.

Up on blocks

The wheels and tires were stolen from a Lincoln MKS late Friday or early Saturday while the car was parked on Greenview Place, in the area of Ann Arbor Trail and I-275.

The Lincoln had been left sitting on two landscaping blocks, a police report said, and appeared to have been damaged. Lugnuts and a wrench that apparently had been used to removed them were found nearby.

The incident occurred between 7 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Saturday.

Vandalism or weather?

Police were called to the Comerica Bank branch on Ann Arbor Road in the township Saturday afternoon when a customer using the automatic teller machine there reported a broken picture window.

The window, about 3 feet by 6 feet, had been broken, police said, but there was nothing indicating something had been thrown at. The event may have been due to the extreme cold and wind, a police report said.

A bank employee also responded to the scene and found nothing amiss inside the branch, police said.

Plate swiped

The license plate was stolen from a Ford Focus recently as the car sat in the driveway of a home on Turtlehead Court, in the area of Canton Center Road and Ann Arbor Road, a police report said.

The theft was reported Saturday.

Credit card fraud

A township resident reported Friday that his credit card had been used to make a fraudulent Netflix purchase Dec. 29. The man still had possession of the card, but the number had been stolen.

Police asked the man to examine his bills for any other fraudulent purchases; the credit card was canceled.

CANTON CRIME WATCH

Canton woman calls stabbing an accident

Canton police found a woman standing in her kitchen with a knife sticking out of the right side of her abdomen after receiving a call for help about 6 p.m. Friday.

The 44-year-old woman told police she accidentally injured herself after emptying her dishwasher, a police report said. She said she had placed items, including the knife, on the counter top and accidentally stabbed herself when she leaned forward, the report said.

The incident happened in the 300 block of Willard, near Sheldon and Cherry Hill.

Police asked the woman if she had intentionally stabbed herself and she denied it, indicating she wouldn't injure herself because she has children. The woman was taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ypsilanti for treatment.

Retail fraud

A 25-year-old woman accused of concealing stolen clothing in her sweatpants and urinating on the merchandise was arrested by Canton police at the Walmart on Ford Road, east of Lotz.

A police report said the woman also had stuffed merchandise inside her purse during an incident that unfolded shortly after 10 p.m. Saturday.

Store employees began watching the woman after she placed numerous items such as skirts, pants and T-shirts in a store cart before going into a restroom and apparently concealing it.

Police arrived at the Walmart store and found the suspect sitting on a bench in the office area, with her sweatpants pulled down around her shins and merchandise all around her. Police noticed the strong odor of intoxicants and urine.

A police report indicated the suspect began cursing. She was taken into custody for retail fraud and, at the police station, it was learned she had a blood-alcohol content of 0.22, nearly three times the legal limit.

Harassing calls, texts

A 27-year-old Canton woman notified police after she said she began receiving harassing phone calls and texts from her ex-boyfriend's sister, a police report said.

The incidents happened Sunday and Monday. The woman told police she had recently broken up with her boyfriend and had removed all her belongings from his residence, where she had been living.

She said the ex-boyfriend's sister began contacting her and trying to obtain her new address. She conceded she owed money to the sister.

The woman said she intended to mail what she owed to the sister by certified mail, but she told police the sister wanted to meet in person to get the money.

Police contacted the sister and advised her not to repeatedly call and text for the money.

Lurking man

Police made an arrest after responding to reports of a suspicious man walking near residents' windows outside Crystal Creek, an assisted living center on Lilley, south of Joy.

Police received the call about 10 p.m. Friday. Officers arrived and trailed footprints from Crystal Creek to a nearby greenhouse, where they found an 18-year-old Novi man.

Police took him into custody after learning he had warrants for his arrest out of Canton for possession of marijuana and failing to appear in court.

Hit and run

A 20-year-old New Boston woman told Canton police she was driving east on Ford Road, near Lilley, when another motorist in a blue Chevrolet Impala struck the driver's side of her vehicle, a police report said.

The incident happened about 1 p.m. Friday.

The victim told police the other car stopped and a male suspect got out, picked up his bumper, which had fallen off his car, spoke to her and then drove off. She wasn't able to get a license plate number from the suspect's vehicle.

B-R-R-R: CANTON RESIDENTS, WORKERS BRAVE BRUTAL FEBRUARY

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Bundled up as the mercury hovered in the teens, Canton resident Tricia Lafata walked her three shih tzus – Rambo, Adrian and Champ – along a shoveled pathway in snow-covered Heritage Park.

"They just cleared it, so I'm happy I can walk here," she said Tuesday morning, arriving from her condominium.

The shih tzu trio, dressed in matching red-and-black dog coats, shivered just a bit during their brief outing, yet they occasionally wagged their tails as they walked in an otherwise deserted park. They appeared to cope better than their owner with the bitter cold.

"I'm not coping with it," Lafata said. "I hate it, hate it, hate it. It's too cold."

Across town, Solé Construction Co. worker Gaspare Campo was among a small crew working outside to begin preparing land for the second phase of The Corners at Cherry Hill Village on Canton's west side.

"It's not fun," Campo said, but the cold weather didn't stop him from doing his job.

Arctic temperatures have made the construction equipment sluggish to start in the morning.

"It's hard on the guys. It's hard on the equipment," Campo said.

Fortunately, one of the excavating rigs the workers used Tuesday was heated. Looking ahead to spring, Campo said a new season will bring its share of challenges.

Sue Goodchild wears a fairly light jacket, no matter how cold the weather.

"In the spring, you get the mud," he said.

Over at the Canton Historical Museum, on Canton Center south of Cherry Hill, Canton Historical Society volunteers Sue Goodchild and Ronni Curtis didn't let the wintry blast keep them from opening the one-room schoolhouse to visitors.

Curtis said she has found a way to cope with the weather, except when she has to go outside.

"I stay in the house," she said.

Goodchild shrugged off the chills, saying she's warm by nature.

"I like this weather," she said. "My husband is always asking me if I turned the furnace down. The older I get, the warmer I get."

As of Tuesday afternoon, Canton Township officials had few reported problems because of the weather. Municipal Services Director Tim Faas said one water main break had occurred on Canton Center, between Palmer and Geddes.

The children's section of the Canton Public Library had to close to patrons Monday after a sprinkler head burst, flooding the area. Employees retrieved books and other items for patrons.

By Tuesday, the section with books and materials had reopened, said Laurie Golden, the library's community relations department head, but the computer section remained closed off.

"All of our programs are continuing as usual," Golden said.

Canton officials issue advice for staying safe in the cold

Canton fire officials are warning residents to use caution during extremely cold weather and to stay indoors, if possible.

Meanwhile, Canton is providing a warming station during business hours at Summit on the Park, 46000 Summit Parkway. Visitors should check in at the front desk.

Summit hours are 5:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday, 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday. Local officials warn residents to wear protective gear if they must venture outdoors, saying the colder the temperatures, the more quickly heat leaves the body.

Also, residents are reminded that indoor heating sources should be used in accordance with manufacturer's recommendations. Poorly operating or damaged heating units can release odorless carbon monoxide gas, therefore use of carbon monoxide detectors is highly recommended.

"During times of extreme cold, the fire department experiences an increase in both accidental fires and medical emergencies," Fire Chief Josh Meier said. "Working a little additional caution into your daily routine can prevent an emergency from occurring."

For example, he said, if using a space heater, don't leave it unattended.

He also underscored the need to check on elderly and at-risk family, friends and neighbors.

Pets should be watched closely and kept indoors, as animals can suffer from hypothermia, frostbite and other cold weather injuries just the same as humans.

Canton's Fire Prevention Unit is available to answer questions on alternate heating sources and carbon monoxide, or CO, detectors. Call 734-394-5456.

Knit, purl: Lessons offer fun and learning for all

By Julie Brown
Staff Writer

Dori Mefford of Plymouth Township heard from people who'd grown up knitting, "Oh, I forgot how to cast on." She's now giving lessons 1-2 p.m. the third Tuesday of each month at the Friendship Station Senior Center on Schoolcraft in Plymouth Township.

"This is basically very much in the beginning stages," Mefford said of the lessons. "They have fun when they come here." She finds those who learned to knit or crochet as children often have the skills come back to them.

"I always have yarn and stuff with me," said Mefford, who can provide attendees with straight needles. "I have enough to start them out. I have taught them as young as 7."

She recalled teaching a grade school girl the slip knot. "She went home and showed her mother how to do it," said Mefford, who also teaches through Plymouth-Canton Community Education. She's patient in her teaching and explains things in varied ways to get her message across.

Faye Lindsay of Plymouth, on a recent Tuesday, said, "About four months. Dori just taught me" of her crocheting. "Dori is very patient."

Next to her was Sharon Lomske of Plymouth, showing a part of a sleeping mat for the homeless made from plastic bags. "It's nice and soft," Lomske said, with the instructor pointing out its utility for people who must sleep outdoors on the ground.

"I'm learning to knit, but I do crochet," Lomske added.

Linda Robertson of Plymouth Township said, "I'm just a very beginner. I saw the ad in the Observer, so I don't know what I'm going to do. I see there are a lot of options."

Cheryl Zepp of Plymouth Township, also hard at work, said, "My husband found this for me. He's our social director."

Zepp learned some basic skills from a neighbor at age 9 and grew up doing macrame and crocheting afghans and vests. "It's a creative thing you can do," Zepp said, noting newer equipment helps with things like projects not unraveling.

Debra Tucker of Westland said, "Right now, I'm working on a hat with a scarf attached to it." Tucker also made some fingerless gloves.

"They're just decorative," she said. "Mostly they're just an accessory." Tucker had done knitting as a teen and is now on a project with five needles and a complex pattern. She'll do some crocheting so it will lay better.

Her sister, Janis Cross of Plymouth, joined her at the Friendship Station. Cross did more macrame growing up and the recent Tuesday found her working on a mat to practice. Her goal is to make tote bags, she said, showing one made by someone else from Meijer bags.

"This is what I want to do," Cross said.

"I've done macrame, I've done embroidery," Mefford said. She's been knitting more than 25 years "and still learning. That's one of the good things."

She attends seminars to learn. "And have fun doing it," said Mefford, who's had male students. "Men are good at it. And they learn fast."

The knitters work on different projects, with Mefford wishing to avoid competition, as some have more time and advance more rapidly. She can help if they're unsure about a project's complexity.

"If somebody has to struggle too hard, they sometimes give up. I don't want them to give up," she said.

Those who wish to attend the Tuesday monthly lessons are asked to first call Bobbie Pummill at 734-453-1234, ext. 236.

Participants at the Friendship Station pay $2 a session. Mefford said they usually start with a scarf. Some use cloth yarn for usable items that are not too difficult, such as dish cloths or potholders.

"I have enjoyed teaching knitting," Mefford said.

Read between the headlines of comings, goings

The trending retail news is the Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing by Radio Shack. The 94-year-old retailer of electronic devices – from computers and cellphone accessories to batteries and solar panels – is a staple of strip centers and shopping malls across the country and it surprised retail analysts by keeping the lights on amid incessant competition from more relevant merchants, plus the growth of Internet selling.

Investment firm Standard General is expected to acquire up to 2,400 of Radio Shack's 4,000 stores and will work with Sprint to open in-store shops for the wireless giant. The remaining stores are expected to go dark.

Red ink, brought about by changing consumer tastes and shopping habits, is plaguing other retailers as well, including better women's apparel brand Cache, which operates 218 boutiques across the country and last week also filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

Ed Nakfoor
GUEST COLUMNIST

Macy's, JC Penney and other merchants, including familiar names and newer entrants to the retail scene – C. Wonder and Kate Spade Saturday – recently announced store closures, corporate restructuring and a cessation of operations.

Let the hand-wringing for retail begin.

Not so fast

This is hardly a period of hand-wringing. In fact, it's a time of opportunity for retail. Quite literally, as one door closes, another opens. And behind that door will be a new concept or another location for a brand savvy enough to capture the spirit of the times.

Retail, like all business, evolves. And retailers of all sizes are opening stores and pleasing Wall Street. Target plans to add 15 stores this year, including its new TargetExpress and CityTarget formats.

In the days leading up to Radio Shack's announcement, there were rumblings Amazon may take over some leases as the e-commerce giant looks to open storefronts (mini warehouses, of sorts) to sell electronics, among other products, and where customers could exchange items or pick up an online order. Amazon operated several seasonal stores during the recent holiday season, blurring the line between online and traditional retail operations.

L Brands, parent company of Victoria's Secret and Bath & Body Works, reported last week an increase in comparable stores sales for January and the fourth quarter. The January figure, 7 percent, was greater than the 1.9 percent predicted by analysts. And popular retailer H&M also announced plans to open hundreds of stores across the globe, many of which will be in the United States.

Locally, "open for business" signs are easy to spot as national specialty merchants, such as furniture store West Elm and jeweler Alex and Ani, opened downtown in the fourth quarter, while the high-end consignment shop Closet NV opened its second location on East Maple several months ago.

Having confidence

This is happening at a time when consumers are more relaxed about opening their wallets. As reported late last month in Women's Wear Daily, the Consumer Confidence Index rose to 102.9 from 93.1 in December, the highest since August 2007.

For business operators like Samantha Kelman, then, this is good news as she and her mother, Karen Kelman, are opening later this week Cycle & Row, their boutique fitness studio offering group rowing and indoor cycling classes. Kelman, a native Detroit, was living in New York City for four years where she worked in corporate marketing. Always athletically and entrepreneurially minded, and wanting to open a business with her mother, Samantha and her fiancé relocated to Birmingham last August. She said they're excited to be a part of such an energetic community, especially one with such a collaborative and assured attitude.

When we spoke, she also remarked – as did I – on the crowded restaurants and busy stores around town, signs that such sour phrases as "tough economy" or "wary consumers" will, I hope, be mothballed.

Samantha is certain Cycle & Row will offer her clients a workout they can't live without. And business in metro Detroit is that much stronger with such confident entrepreneurs and, more importantly, the patrons to support them.

TranquiliTea to host benefit Feb. 28 for veterans group

By Julie Brown
Staff Writer

An event Saturday, Feb. 28, at TranquiliTea will benefit Stiggy's Dogs, a Howell-based charity which pairs veterans with post-traumatic stress disorder with rescue dogs.

"It makes a great partnership," TranquiliTea owner Colleen Cannon said. "It helps the veterans recover from those emotional problems they come back with."

Dogs also gain a companion, she added. The nonprofit's website notes veterans receive the dogs at no charge.

The tasting will be from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 28, at TranquiliTea, on Ann Arbor Trail between Harvey and Main, in downtown Plymouth. American tea products will be featured, including a blueberry caffeine-free tea.

Ten percent of sales that day will support Stiggy's Dogs. A representative of Novi-based company Grandma Johns' Kitchen will serve cookies. Cannon is working on getting a restaurant partnership with a Plymouth eatery lined up for that day.

There will be giveaways, including a coffee basket from downtown Plymouth's Espresso Elevado at Wing and Main. Cannon had recently done a tea basket for that business.

Stiggy's Dogs is online at stiggysdogs.org. The website notes it was founded to carry on the compassion toward animals and life work of Marine Benjamin "Doc Stiggy" Castiglione, who gave his life while caring for his soldiers as a corpsman in Afghanistan in September 2009.

"We're hoping to get a good attendance," Cannon said of Feb. 28 at TranquiliTea.

Van Buren DDA taps Brown, Foster for board

Foster Brown

The Van Buren Township Downtown Development Authority has announced that two new members have been added to its volunteer board. Chris Brown and Helen Foster were recently sworn in by township Clerk Leon Wright.

Brown is the president and CEO of Verdeterre Contracting, which is headquartered in Van Buren Township. Verdeterre is a full-service site development company that also offers site utility installation and trenchless pipe installation. Brown's experience in infrastructure development will be a valuable asset to the DDA's realization of its master planned district, according to officials.

Foster brings extensive public service experience to the DDA board. As a 30-year veteran of public service at both the local and regional level, she will add a wealth of knowledge regarding social well-being to the board, a press release stated.

The two new board members will be working to develop continued improvements to the DDA district. Last year, the board initiated upgrades to Belleville Road, Van Buren Township's "Main Street," that establish operations in Van Buren Township.

"We're extremely excited to be taking these next steps toward even greater economic expansion," said Lisa Lothringer, assistant executive director of the Van Buren Township DDA. "We have a lot of projects planned to bring businesses in contact with Van Buren Township and everything it has to offer."

The initiative to attract more business not only anticipates the continued economic growth of the area, but also the achievement of the DDA's master-planned district community. Its vision for expanded green space, public community amenities and improved local infrastructure is possible with the help of this new initiative and VantagePort combined. "We want Van Buren Township to continue being a family- and business-friendly community. Our goal is to bring jobs to the area while continuing to keep this a wonderful place to live," said Susan Ireland, the DDA's executive director.

Strive for balance in your life

Here's something to ponder on this chilly evening: the difference between "stability" and "balance."

Sometimes phrases like "I need stability in my life" get tossed around as if stability is a state we can achieve. When in reality, life equals change and therefore in our lives, stability simply doesn't exist. So instead of seeking stability, strive for balance.

Even amidst instability, we can achieve balance. I once heard Dr. Ed Catmull, president and co-founder of Pixar Animation Studios, talk about the vital importance of embracing change in order to achieve success.

Catmull cautioned us against resisting change or being afraid to let go of what we have, because changing and letting go are necessary elements of progress. He said, "When we grab onto what we have, that is when we fail."

Let's make the most of the changes this week brings — and have a sunny day!

P-CCS staffers, students explore diversity with training

By Julie Brown
Staff Writer

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district is becoming more diverse day by day and educators are responding with training to address that.

"It's absolutely not a one-shot kind of training," said Julie Woodhams, P-CCS executive director of equity and specialized instruction, referencing training for teachers and administrators the week of Feb. 9 at Geneva Presbyterian Church in Canton. "We really have not stopped since we started."

Last week's effort saw each district building send a four-person team, including an administrator, to Geneva to focus on culturally proficient instruction. The emphasis, Woodhams said, is on high achievement among students, instructional support with making learning deeper and more complex and embracing who

GENEVA CHURCH

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools educators met the week of Feb. 9 for diversity training at Geneva Presbyterian Church. Such training is ongoing.

students are. "These statistics show the diversity of our families," she said, adding that more than 100 languages are spoken by P-CCS students. English as a second language instruction is offered.

The district's 2013-14 report to the community showed 10.5 percent of students were Asian, Far Eastern, Indian or Pakistani. Almost 10 percent that year were black, 72 percent white, European or Middle Eastern and 5.5 percent multi-racial.

Woodhams anticipates the diversity has grown since that report.

"We have an achievement gap in our district. We knew that this work was critical," she said.

Different facilities have been used throughout the years for such training, explained Mary Holaly, communications coordinator for P-CCS. "Geneva Church was kind enough to let us use their space," Holaly said.

Woodhams said formal efforts at staff training in diversity began six or seven years ago with Courageous Conversations training of the Pacific Educational Group. "It provided us with tools to be able to dialogue about equity and cultural differences," said Woodhams, with the district for 16 years.

"We knew the next step for us was to get this into the classroom," she added. "We're really excited about this aspect of this work. Our student population, our community is changing, much more diverse than in the past."

She said test scores are a concern, but also the culture and climate of the buildings, welcoming, respecting and including all.

As part of the diversity training, 80 high school students met the week of Feb. 9 at Plymouth Salem High School for training on diversity similar to that of educators.

The work is based on the belief that equity and social justice work must be generated at the building level and must be developed by principals, teachers and informed by students, Woodhams said. "The student voice element is critical to this work. We must provide them a space to share their experiences and inform our work."

Feb. 12-13 at Geneva Church were the first two of four days for staff, to be followed up March 25-26 by staff teams coming back to finish the series. Gary Howard, a Corwin trainer with a background in equity, social justice and civil rights, spoke to the staff at Geneva.

The ongoing training is modeled along "Train the Trainer," to encourage sharing of knowledge with colleagues, Woodhams said. "They begin to build the capacity of the staff in their building to support this work."

The high school students will also reconvene in March, April and May. "The students' work is very much embedded in the arts," including music and poetry, Woodhams said. A May performance is in the works.

The school district has an Equity Leadership Team and those interested in serving should contact Woodhams at julie.woodhams@pccsk12.com.

"It certainly needs to be connected to the community as well," she said. She and colleagues are this school year including an element of assessment, with staff self-reflection on their skills.

Next school year, that will expand to student achievement data related to diversity and the training.

"We really will be spending some time on assessment as well," Woodhams said.

Opening Roth IRA for grandchild can turn into a teachable event

At a recent meeting, one of my clients asked how he can help his grandchildren. The first thing I recommended was a 529 Plan to save for their college education.

His grandchildren are ages 15 and 16. He explained that college was not an issue, because their parents are taking care of that. I then asked him if his grandchildren work. He said both had part-time jobs, so I recommended that he consider a Roth IRA for the grandchildren.

Many people are under the mistaken belief that children cannot have IRAs. To open an IRA is an issue of earned income, not age. Earned income is income from your labor. Typically, if you receive a W-2, you have earned income. Therefore, since both his grandchildren have worked, they are eligible for a Roth IRA.

I believe a Roth IRA is a great way to help grandchildren. First, the money grows tax-free.

Rick Bloom
MONEY MATTERS

Just think how much that money can be worth 50 years down the road. Remember, it's not timing the market, it's time in the market that will make you successful.

Another advantage of opening a Roth IRA for a grandchild is that hopefully it will teach the importance of investing money.

I told my client it's not sufficient to just open the account. He also has to take some time to educate his grandchildren. I suggested he have his grandchildren get involved in selecting the investments and teach him the importance of investing.

For those thinking about doing something for a grandchild, if that grandchild worked in 2014 it is not too late to open a Roth IRA for 2014. In fact, anyone can still open a Roth IRA for 2014. You have until April 15 to do so.

For 2014, the Roth IRA limit is $5,500. As long as the grandchild has earned at least $5,500, you can put the full amount away. However, if your grandchild earned less than that, then that would be the maximum contribution. In other words, if through a part-time job your grandchild earned $3,000, the maximum Roth IRA contribution would be $3,000.

Not all IRA custodians will open an IRA for a child, but many will. Companies like T. Rowe Price, Vanguard, TD Ameritrade and Charles Schwab all allow you to open an IRA for a minor.

Opening a Roth IRA for a grandchild is a good way to teach the importance of investing. Good luck.

Wayne council votes to close pool

At the end of business Sunday, the Wayne Community Center pool will be closing.

As the city grapples with a deficit in the current fiscal year and a significant shortfall in 2015-16, the council voted Tuesday to close the pool for a savings of about $70,000. The ice arena is already closed at the community center, which operates at significant financial losses — well in excess of $200,000 annually.

A group of community center/pool supporters spoke at the meeting, calling on council to keep the pool open. Some argued that efforts to market the community center could increase paid memberships.

"This conversation has been talked about since I was on council in 2003. We have not solved the problem," Councilwoman Susan Rowe said. "We can't keep a Band-Aid on it. We can't keep looking at it."

On June 30, 2013, the community center reported having 1,212 paid memberships, she said, while the city has a population of slightly more over 17,000. Of those members, 732 are Wayne residents and 527 are from Westland.

"All of us are paying for it. Those numbers don't validate continually putting money into keeping the pool open," Rowe said. "I'm sorry. I was elected to be fiscally responsible and do the best I can with the information in front of me."

The council had voted to close half the community center when the fiscal year started July 1, but later agreed to hold off while options were investigated. That helped increase the city's deficit to more than $600,000 with only four months left in the fiscal year.

With only one full-time parks and recreation employee, council members agreed that there hadn't been enough marketing for the community center.

"We voted to close down part of the recreation center to save it. We need to re-evaluate the rec center," Councilman John Rhaesa said. "I'm not sure an ice arena is the best. Kids can't afford that."

The council also approved a study session at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 17, to discuss options regarding the community center.

Voters should approve Plymouth safety millage

Plymouth voters will decide Feb. 24 whether they want to pay an extra $13 per month for the average household to beef up the city's public safety budget.

The ballot proposal asks approval for a public safety property tax of up to 1.5 mills for a maximum of five years. City officials say they plan on levying less than a 1 mill in the first year, but voters should consider the full 1.5 mills when they head to the polls. An estimated $708,000 would be raised annually if the entire millage is levied.

The bulk of the money would go to the city's police and fire services, but a small portion could also be captured by the city's Downtown Development Authority and Brownfield Re-Development Authority.

Plans call for funding two police officers, buying a new firetruck and using the money to offset legacy costs for public safety.

The crux of the issue is whether residents believe

Plymouth needs more cops and are willing to pay for them. Anyone who has been downtown any Friday or Saturday night quickly realizes the city is no longer so sleepy. It comes alive each weekend as people pack restaurants and pubs looking for a good time.

Merriment isn't always the outcome when people converge on a town. A nice evening with friends can quickly be ruined by the boorish behavior of a few who have had a few too many. Right now, Plymouth offers a nice mix of beautiful neighborhoods and a vibrant downtown. Voluntarily raising taxes should never be taken lightly. In this case, however, the city has done a good job cutting costs and asking only the business community to fund additional public safety wouldn't be fair.

Property values in the neighborhoods and downtown depend on Plymouth being a place that people want to visit. Take that away and Plymouth becomes just another bedroom community in a long list of others nearby.

Voters should support the tax increase Feb. 24 and pay close attention to how the money is spent. City officials should be prepared to set up a clear communication plan that spells out exactly where every penny of the millage is going.

Too often, voter approval is the end of the discussion as local politicians see it as a referendum to do as they wish with the proceeds. But that isn't the case at all. A yes vote Feb. 24 would represent trust in leadership. Trust that the money won't be frittered away, trust that Plymouth won't become a rowdy place and trust that officials won't be coming back for more money in the foreseeable future. If any of those things do happen, voters most assuredly won't be so generous next time.

Plymouth residents should vote yes Feb. 24.

GUEST COLUMN

Public needs to support public safety millage

Thirty years ago, when the city of Plymouth's sidewalks rolled up at 6 p.m., 21 full-time police officers patrolled our neighborhoods and monitored our schools and businesses with the vigilance they deserved. Today, through dedication and very hard work, only 15 full-time officers oversee the security of Plymouth.

We all realize that the texture of our community has changed over the past decade. We are blessed to live in the greatest small town in America, where busy family neighborhoods co-exist with a vibrant downtown. That vibrant downtown, supported by excellent city services, is the engine that drives our success and increases all of our property values. Just take a look around town to see how many new, valuable homes are being built on our streets. People love to live here, they love to work here and they love to eat and be entertained here. All of this growth and activity is putting a strain on our public safety system.

The main reason that we are seeking the police component of this funding mechanism is so that our police force can patrol the neighborhoods and parks as actively as it patrols the downtown commercial area.

The Plymouth City Commission has been exploring ways to ensure the continued safety of our residents and visitors to our great city. Our goal has always been to create and maintain a safe, attractive community. We are also always very careful to be as conservative as possible when it comes to spending the taxpayers' money. We have established a core principle that dictates that we look first to optimize operations without sacrificing outstanding customer service.

A case in point is the city's snow removal services. We think anyone who drives after a major snow event would agree that the city's streets are cleared more quickly and more effectively than other nearby streets.

Our administration is lean and strong. We have held the line on expenses, while protecting the unique reputation that Plymouth has nurtured. Over the past several years, the commission and the administration have worked together to:

- » Reduce staff from 85 to 65 employees
- » Implement four consecutive budgets with salaries and wages frozen
- » Dramatically restructure all employee benefit programs
- » Create cooperative partnerships with neighboring communities
- » Increase fees and service charges, where it was reasonable
- » Renegotiate all contracts, securing reduced payments

At some point, though, things require additional support. We are now obligated to seek additional public safety funding in order to maintain the high levels of protection and security that our citizens expect. Over the past year, the commission has studied many possible ways of funding our growing public safety needs. The administration, led by Police Chief Al Cox, presented exhaustive research on the history of funding, the increased calls for service over the years and the city's current and future needs.

We held five meetings to get input from our residents and business owners. We applied for a federal grant, but were denied. We explored the possibility of assessing certain businesses – like bars and restaurants – to help fund public safety, but were told that is illegal. The commission had the option of imposing an administrative fee to fund public safety and decided not to do so without citizen input but, rather, to authorize a public safety millage vote to enable you, the voters, to decide if you agree with our assessment that we need more funds for this important function.

Unlike virtually all of our neighboring communities, the city of Plymouth has never sought or levied a public safety millage before. Citizens in Canton Township pay 9.5 mills for public safety. Citizens in Northville Township pay 6.25 mills, citizens in Plymouth Township pay 3 mills and citizens in Livonia pay 4.2 mills, all for public safety. Two major needs drive our appeal to the voters Feb. 24. First, we see the immediate need for two additional police officers for the reasons stated above. Second, we anticipate that we will need to replace the fire department's 1979 aerial ladder truck in the next couple of years. That truck could cost as much as $1 million and is necessary to adequately protect the community.

The millage would authorize the commission to collect "up to 1.5 mills" for the purpose of funding public safety. We actually expect to collect much less than 1.5 mills, almost certainly less than 1 mill in the first two years. For the average home in town, with a taxable value of $106,847 and an estimated sale price of at least $213,000, 1 mill would cost the homeowner $106.

The city commission voted unanimously to authorize this vote and each commissioner, on the public record, encouraged the voters to support the millage. Please be sure your vote counts Feb. 24.

Students: Don't stress over change to SAT

The Michigan Department of Education rang in the new year with an announcement that impacts many college-bound students. After nine years of offering the ACT as part of the Michigan Merit Exam, Michigan will require public high school juniors to take the SAT as part of the MME, starting in the 2015-16 school year.

While many school administrators are wondering what this means to their school's curriculum, many more 10th-graders are wondering what this means to their college plans, since standardized test scores can play a big role in a college application. As more information becomes available about this important change, here are some key ideas for students and parents to consider:

» Michigan colleges accept both SAT and ACT scores. Parents may remember a time when most Michigan colleges required all applicants to take the ACT. Those days are long gone; all Michigan colleges that require standardized testing for their admissions process, typically, are happy to accept either the SAT or the ACT.

» Both tests are also welcome at almost all colleges in the United States. It used to be that some colleges on the East and West coasts would only accept SAT scores, but this also isn't the case anymore. Every college in the United States that recruits nationally will take results from either test – and many no longer require any test scores at all.

» Students should take both the SAT and the ACT at least once by the end of junior year. Each test measures student knowledge differently, so it's important for students to make sure they're taking the test they are most comfortable with. The best way to do that is to take each test once and then take the test they're most comfortable with a second time. Ideally, this first round of testing should be done by the end of the junior year if applying to competitive colleges. Counselors have given this advice for years and it's still a good idea, even with the change in the MME.

» The best way to prepare for either test is by doing strong work in the classroom. Each test asks different questions, but the best way to be "test ready" is to do the reading, studying, questioning and thinking that leads to strong learning and good grades. This involves much more than just memorizing answers for a test and forgetting them once the exam is over. Good students are deep thinkers and take the time to understand the "why" behind the facts they're learning.

» Test prep resources for the SAT and ACT are readily available and often free. Students wanting to know what each test will look like can take advantage of free test prep materials available on the College Board and ACT websites. In addition, free test preparation and sample tests can be found on the Khan Academy website, as well as the Learning Express Hub of the Michigan eLibrary. Your school counselor knows of other test prep resources; be sure to ask about them.

» Your SAT scores on the MME aren't automatically sent to any college. All scores on the MME are sent to your high school, but the only way a college will see your scores is if you ask the College Board to send them. All Michigan colleges requiring test scores will give you the choice of sending only your best scores as part of your application. A few colleges outside of Michigan ask for all of your test scores, but they almost always consider only your best scores. It is important, therefore, to give the MME your best effort, but one shouldn't worry if the scores aren't everything you would hope they would be.

It's easy to be nervous about this change in the MME and it's understandable why students want to get strong test scores. Doing strong work in classes and working closely with your school counselor are the best ways to make sure you'll be test ready and prepared to make the most out of college.

Another no vote

No doubt about it – Michigan roads are bad! At first glance, an additional 1 percent to our sales tax seems like a fair way to include all who will benefit in various degrees.

However, a majority of our legislators passed the buck and passed the choice on to you and me. To help their deal smell a little better, the ballot proposal includes the elimination of the sales tax from gasoline sales, gives additional funds to local governments and promises $200 more per student in the K-12 school aid fund. Why all the smoke and mirrors?

What will not be showing on our ballots? How long will the new additional tax last? Who selects the construction companies that will do the work? Who will evaluate the quality and progress of construction?

In my opinion, to evaluate the process and progress, there should be a four-year life for the 1-percent increase. After three years, the state House and Senate should be required to vote to renew the tax for another time period and be prepared to give their reasons why. If they fail to act by a mandated deadline, the fourth year would end the tax.

The ballot proposal should maintain the present sales tax on gasoline since out-of-state drivers also make gasoline purchases. To increase revenue, the Legislature should step up and pass legislation for a state sales tax on Internet transactions, with all proceeds earmarked for road repair.

The only thing of value in the May 5 ballot proposal is the admission that K-12 schools are underfunded and it is now OK to raise taxes to increase that budget item. In his State of the State address, our governor promises an additional $75 per student in the next state budget. The K-12 schools in Michigan have been so badly treated during the past few years that any increase "sounds" good. However, if you are a teacher in one of our public schools, this is how this additional funding could be spent per student in your classroom: If students are only in one classroom each day, each student 42 cents. If a student has five different classes each day, each of those classroom teachers could spend 9 cents per student and would be over budget. Hardly an increase that any teacher could say WOW about.

Big business government

Gov. Snyder recently said: "It is about recognizing that you are a human, you are a person and should be treated that way." He didn't think so four years ago? Just figured that out? When Republicans "streamline" government programs it will always mean cuts for the poor and middle class – unless they are streamlining for the benefit of the wealthy or corporations.

Get rid of dedicated career state food service workers in our prisons and "streamline" the system by hiring a for-profit company that serves maggot-infested food and hires employees that have sex with prisoners.

Watch for more slick presentations and a lot of backhanded changes that do no one, except the comfortable, much good! Government of big business, by big business, and for big business. The Republican Golden Rule – He who has the gold gets to make the rules!

Salem seniors going out on high note, winning games and having a blast

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

When you watch Salem's six senior girls basketball players joke, hang out and enjoy each other's company, it's hard to fathom what they've been through together just in the past 14 months. Last year was one of despair, dealing with the December 2013 death of their long-time coach, Fred Thomann — and then trying to get back on track with a different voice on the sidelines in Lindsay Klemmer.

"We were all really good friends before, but we turned from friends to family," post player Maranda Armstead said. "We all knew we had each other and that's all we could really depend on." Then the sun came up again. Yes, Thomann's untimely and tragic death did leave a huge void in the hearts of six junior players he'd led for several years — Armstead, Allison First, Katie Latack, Shara Long, Hayley Rogers and Jamyra Wilson. But this winter, those play-

D1 INDIVIDUAL DISTRICTS

Rocks send quintet to regional

Salem follows team district championship with strong effort

It was quite a good week for Salem's varsity wrestling team. After the Rocks won a Division 1 team district title Feb. 11 for the first time since 2002, several did well enough at Saturday's D1 individual district at Westland John Glenn to move on to the regional tournament.

Five Salem wrestlers all told finished in the top four in their respective weight class, the cut to earn spots at Saturday's D1 individual regional at Saline High School.

Also making the individual regional were six from Plymouth and two from Canton (Ty Jasman, second at 140; Grant Trotman, fourth at 152).

"We have put in so much work all last summer and all season, but it has been so frustrating with injuries and illness keeping our guys out a lot of the season," Salem co-coach Jeremy Henderson said. "The results really didn't show how good we actually were."

"However, (last) week they put it all together, winning team districts and getting five individuals to regionals."

Henderson said this year's contingent is the program's largest since seven Salem wrestlers moved on to the regional in 2005.

"I couldn't be more excited about where this team is going and how they have come together," he added.

Senior Caleb McCabe finished second at 152 for the team's top finisher.

Placing third were juniors Cam Shaughnessy (125) and Roy Foster (189), while sophomore Akash Rai finished fourth at 112.

Salem's fifth regional qualifier was senior Caleb McCabe, who lost by injury default to Foster in the 189-pound bout

ONTARIO HOCKEY LEAGUE

Whalers' offense goes cold on frigid night

Greyhounds put dent in Plymouth's quickly fading playoff hopes

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

At least the pregame ceremony honoring Plymouth Whalers billet families was nice.

As for the Ontario Hockey League game that followed Saturday, the 1,957 fans at Compuware Arena might have been better off staying home instead of braving the brutal cold — Sault Ste. Marie had little trouble knocking off the Whalers, 5-0.

It was another lost opportunity for Plymouth, also defeated Friday night at home against Barrie.

The Whalers (18-31-2-2, 40 points) remain in 10th place in the OHL Western Conference, nine points back of Saginaw (holder of the eighth and final playoff spot).

"They're really skilled so when you have a breakdown, they're going to take advantage of it," Plymouth head coach Don Elland said about the Greyhounds, who hold first place in the conference with a 41-11-0-2 record. "I thought we competed hard, I thought we played hard. The few mistakes we did make, they're a good team and it's going to end up in the back of your net."

Spearheading the Soo attack was forward Sergej Tolchinsky, with a goal and three assists. Netting a pair of goals was center Jared McCann.

Need to finish

Whenever Plymouth put some pressure on the Greyhounds' goal, goaltender Brandon Halverson was there to keep the Whalers off the board.

He made 33 saves, including a blocker stop on a shorthanded breakaway by Sonny Milano midway through the final period, after Plymouth was down 4-0.

"We can't feel sorry for ourselves," Elland said. "But the good thing is, we are getting chances. The bad thing is, we're not capitalizing on them."

Schoolcraft men win, yet coach spots trouble

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

On the surface, Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team is throttling all opponents — the latest example being Saturday's 85-60 victory over Henry Ford Community College.

What's not to like about a team that's ranked No. 3 in the National Junior College Athletic Association and is cruising toward a conference championship?

Or a team that broke out to an 11-0 lead against the Hawks and never trailed?

Believe it or not, Schoolcraft head coach Abe Mashhour wasn't all that impressed by his team's 12th consecutive win, which ups the Ocelots' record to 23-3 overall and 12-1 in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association.

"Unfortunately, we didn't play hard," Mashhour said after the Ocelots defeated his former team. "We didn't play like we've been playing and it's getting frustrating with some of the lack of effort.

"It's not good enough right now. Our record obviously is, in my opinion, a little misleading. We're not that good of a team right now. We need to clean up a lot of different areas."

With the team in prime position to go for the MCCA championship at the end of February and then move on to the NJCAA District 10 tournament, Mashhour wants to see bad habits immediately stopped.

For example, in the first half, Schoolcraft made 6-of-20 shots from behind the arc instead of possibly finding higher-percentage shots inside. For the game, the Ocelots connected on just 28.6 of their triple tries (8-of-28).

Mashhour also didn't see maximum effort for all 40 minutes.

"I told them I've had many teams that had worse records than this," Mashhour said. "But I was way more confident going into the postseason than I am with this group right now."

The victory wasn't all grim. All 11 players did record at least two points and Schoolcraft enjoyed a 53-34 edge in rebounding.

As usual, guard Ja-Christian Biles was a shooting standout with 25 points (including five treys in nine attempts).

During a one-minute stretch midway through the first half, Biles and Henry Ford's Daton Aaron (24 points) each drained a pair of 3-balls.

"One day one person may be on, another day it's somebody else," Biles said. "We have a lot of talent, we do have a lot of depth."

Muscling in for plenty of second-chance putbacks and rebounds was 6-7, 250-pound freshman forward Anthony Wartley-Fritz. He tallied 15 points along with eight rebounds.

"The team moved the ball around; I got some nice looks down there," Wartley-Fritz said. "Rebounded very well, boxed out very well."

Wartley-Fritz nodded when asked about the team's troubling tendency to let up after going full-throttle.

Saturday, for example, Schoolcraft enjoyed a 20-8 lead with 12:30 left following a trey by Biles.

But the Hawks (6-16, 1-11) closed the gap to 34-28 just five minutes later. It was a 48-31 lead for the Ocelots at half-time.

Chipping in 12 points was guard Lito Booth.

Also in double figures for Henry Ford were Lloyd Harris (18) and Daavi Bradley (11).

Brindza at NFL combine

Plymouth High School graduate Kyle Brindza, who was the Notre Dame starting punter and kicker for the past three seasons, is participating in this week's National Football League 2015 combine in Indianapolis. Brindza was a prep standout for the Wildcats. He helped lead Plymouth to the Division 1 state championship game in 2010. Also that season, he established a Michigan high school record with 19 field goals, including six of nine from 50 yards or more. The NFL combine began Tuesday and continues through Friday.

KLAA GIRLS BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

Long scores 24 to spark Salem win

KLAA opener sloppy affair for Rocks

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

For the first half Tuesday night, Salem's varsity girls basketball team played like the KLAA Central Division champion it is.

The Rocks went into halftime of the KLAA tournament opener enjoying a lopsided lead of 26-9 over Westland John Glenn.

Yet Salem wound up hanging on by a thread down the stretch as the Rockets outscored the Rocks 29-8 over the final 10 minutes before ultimately prevailing 40-38.

"We kind of got complacent," Salem head coach Lindsay Klemmer said. "And we can't get complacent against anybody.

"I'm a coach that preaches heart and hustle and I think we got outthusted in the second half. That disappoints me and it won't happen again."

Good thing for the Rocks (13-4) that senior post Shara Long could not be stopped. Long tallied a career-best 24 points, mostly around the rim, and grabbed 10 rebounds.

"I got a few offensive rebounds, good passes from my guards," Long said. "I had a mismatch, the girl was smaller than me, but I wouldn't have been as dominant as I was if I didn't get great passes."

Contributing nine points and a number of on-the-mark dishes to Long was senior point guard Jamyra Wilson. Junior guard Zoe Talley played well, scoring five points.

Going to work

"She had a great game; she was dominant," Klemmer said about Long. "I knew the biggest thing was to get her the ball inside, because they were undersized."

"She's just playing really well and her strength hurt them quite a bit. Our guards did a great job getting her the ball and, without a double-team, I tell her to go to work every day. That's what she did."

Leading John Glenn (7-11) with 11 points was junior forward Kimah

Stribling, who buried a pair of treys late in the third when the Rockets went on a 10-0 run to close out the quarter.

That closed Salem's once-comfortable lead to 32-19 entering the fourth.

John Glenn closed the gap to 40-38 with three seconds left, following a pair of free throws by junior forward Nadia Reed (eight points).

Then with 1.8 seconds left, Wilson missed a pair of free throws. But Salem senior wing Hayley Rogers pulled down the key offensive rebound to enable the Rocks to run out the clock.

Big run by Salem

Salem jumped out to a 10-4 lead in the first and held a 12-6 edge after the opening quarter.

A 3-ball by Stribling cut that to 12-9 early in the second, but the Rocks scored the final 14 points of the quarter.

Long registered four layups — one off a nifty dish inside from Talley — and Wilson helped the cause with a beautiful runner through the lane.

The second half opened with more of the same for Salem, as Long tallied a pair of field goals and junior guard Leah Moss chipped in a basket to open a 26-point advantage (32-9).

That's when the tables turned, beginning with Stribling's trey. Unfortunately for the Rockets, they fell into too deep of a hole to get out of.

According to Klemmer, whose team will host South Lyon East at 7 p.m. Thursday in a second-round game, some areas need to be cleaned up before then.

"We just let them get off a bunch of open shots and layups and we weren't playing team defense the way we normally do," she said. "I wasn't happy with it. I'm glad we came away with the win, but we need to be able to step up to the next level in order to get through this tournament."

PLYMOUTH 47, NOVI 21: Kendall Rose scored 12 points Tuesday night to pace the visiting Wildcats.

Adding 11 points each for Plymouth (15-2) were Paige Slominski and Courtney LaVallee, while Cassidy Lewis tallied seven.

A big 14-4 second quarter gave Plymouth a 30-10 halftime lead en route to the triumph, which set up Thursday's second-round game against Livonia Churchill (at Plymouth).

"We were looking forward to getting a win here," Plymouth head coach Nick Brandon said. "It's been a long time since our program got a win at Novi, so it was a good victory for us."

The KLAA South Division champions took control of the quarterfinal game from the start by opening up a 16-6 first-quarter advantage while shooting 7-of-12 from the floor.

"I really liked that we were active in our press," Brandon said. "It showed me that we had energy tonight."

"My biggest concern coming into this game was that we weren't going to play with maximum effort because I knew Novi would... I really wanted us to match their intensity and was really glad we did."

S.L. EAST 40, CANTON 27: The visiting Chiefs could not get open shots to fall Tuesday and it cost them.

Scoring 10 points for Canton was Erin Hult, with Madison Archibald and Brianna Finn tallying six and five points, respectively.

Gabbi Bird led East with 20 points. "We played hard, we executed, we just did not make shots tonight," Canton head coach Kevin Palmer said. "Layups weren't falling. Open jumpers weren't falling and, in the game of basketball, you got to be able to make plays."

The Chiefs were hampered by an injury sustained recently by senior Aiana Brown, who is out for about two weeks, Palmer said.

He added that further compounding matters was the fact Brown's replacement, Bre Donehue, also got injured.

Canton will face Westland John Glenn in the tourney's second round Thursday.

Bland spices up Schoolcraft attack

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

The last time Henry Ford Community College's women's basketball team faced Schoolcraft, the Lady Ocelots could not contain Hawks guard Kenya Austin.

Austin scored 30-plus points in that first game, but that was not the case Saturday in Livonia as Schoolcraft threw a defensive blanket over her en route to a 78-40 victory.

Conversely, Schoolcraft guard and Wayne Memorial product Ashley Bland had a big game, scoring 27 points and hauling down 10 rebounds to lead the Lady Ocelots (16-8 overall, 10-3 in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association).

"We did everything we needed to do right today," Schoolcraft head coach Kara Kinzer said. "We rebounded the ball well, we used the shot clock, we played great defense, we played team defense."

"Last time, No. 5 on Henry Ford's team (Austin) scored 30-some it had against the Hawks.

"You got to stay focused, take smart shots, look for the open player, go up strong," Bland said. "You got to pass with a purpose. Everything has to have a purpose to it."

Schoolcraft rolled to a 44-21 halftime advantage and coasted from there against Henry Ford (8-14, 3-9). A huge edge in rebounding (63-35) helped the home team's cause.

In addition to Bland, the Lady Ocelots were paced by solid offensive games from Birmingham Seaholm alum Elise Tolbert (15 points, eight boards), T'era Nesbitt (12 points, nine rebounds) and Breiana Allen (10 points).

Tallying 21 points for Henry Ford was Taylor Works.

The Lady Ocelots now are in the running for third place in the MCCA Eastern Conference and Kinzer is confident the team will remain in sync right up into the NJCAA districts in early March.

Battling in their 135-pound bout at the Division 1 team district Feb. 11 are Plymouth's Dylan Dwyer (top) and Salem's Charlie Woody. Dwyer qualified for the individual regional.

D1 INDIVIDUAL DISTRICTS

Plymouth matmen await regional challenge

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

One challenge succeeds another this time of season for high school wrestlers and such is the case for six Plymouth Wildcats.

After finishing in the top four in their respective weight class at Saturday's Division 1 individual district, that sextet now gears up for the next step — this weekend's D1 individual regional at Saline.

Saturday's regional, which begins at 9 a.m., is all that stands between Isiah Berry, Dylan Dwyer, Brandon Harris, Michael Jordan, Sterling Schiffrar and Hussein Youssef and a trip to the state finals at The Palace of Auburn Hills.

Just like districts, the top four wrestlers per weight class will move on.

"We're in a tough part of the state for wrestling," Plymouth head coach Quinn Guernsey said. "I think all the guys have a shot. There's not any weight that is so stacked that I don't think we have a chance to get out.

"We're just going to have to wrestle well again. They're all going to have to wrestle to their abilities or maybe a little bit above, but they all have a chance to qualify for states."

Highlights for the Wildcats at the Westland John Glenn-hosted district were championships at 119 by senior Harris and 135 by junior Dwyer.

"Dylan looked good, like he always does," Guernsey said. "I think he only spent two-and-a-half minutes all day on the mat. That was pretty impressive. Really, all the guys wrestled tough."

Harris earned a 10-9 decision over Dearborn's Hassan Makled, while Dwyer pinned Novi-Detroit Catholic Central's Aidan Wagh in 47 seconds.

Placing second at 189 was senior Youssef, who lost via fall in 2:19 to CC's Nick Giese. Youssef earlier prevailed in a hard-fought semifinal against Salem's Mitchell Gross (who still qualified for the regional).

Junior Jordan came in third at heavyweight, having defeated Livonia Churchill's Jake Mericiaca by an 8-3 count.

Also taking third was freshman Berry, who knocked off Livonia Franklin's Antonio

Herrera, 2-1.

"Isiah had to wrestle a kid from Franklin twice, who he'd already wrestled twice this year and had lost the last (time)," Guernsey said. "We were a little concerned about that one going in. We knew it was going to be a good match. ... He looked really good all day."

Plymouth's sixth regional qualifier was Schiffrar, finishing fourth at 140.

With only two seniors among this year's group of qualifiers, Guernsey said this week should be a worthwhile learning experience for the four underclassmen.

"This is a great week for them," he noted. "When you're training for regionals, the focus in the room gets to change a little bit, it becomes a lot more about making them individually better, not having to worry so much about the team.

"So it's a great experience for the guys, because they get to get a lot better in a short amount of time."

ROCKING THE BRESLIN CENTER

Clean sweep for Canton pom squads

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

When it comes to nailing competitive pom routines, nobody in Michigan is doing it better than Canton High School.

That's because the Chieftettes varsity and junior varsity pom squads came away with state championships in their respective division at the Mid American Pompon State Championship, held Feb. 8 at the Breslin Center in East Lansing.

For the Canton varsity team, guided by head coach Jenny Kesler and assistant coach Gabby Cayao, the title was the program's third overall and first since 1993.

The JV Chieftettes, led by head coach Brandee Amick and assistant coach Nikki Battaglia, won their second state championship. The JV previously won in 2009.

Both teams capped off an undefeated season.

They placed first in November at the High Kick Competition; the varsity squad also walked away from camp last summer with a "Grand Champs" title.

"The girls are very honored to be the 2015 state champs in extremely competitive divisions," Kesler wrote in an email to the Canton Observer. "For teams who qualify at the regional level, moving on to the state championship is a chance to win the crown jewel of the season.

"Teams as young as middle school compete, all the way up to the collegiate level."

Canton's varsity squad topped the field, with Saginaw Heritage second and Plymouth third.

In the JV competition, the Chieftettes were followed by runners-up Northville and third-place Plymouth.

Capturing the middle school division was Livonia, with Garden City in second place.

Members of the Canton varsity are: Grace Brekke, Maigan Byars, Emily Cesario, Abby Crippes, Morgan Filmore, Aleigh Gorham, Alicyn Mabry, Clara Mason, Sophia Mekled, Stacey Partain, Ayden Peters, Shelby Petersen, Tara Quigley, Madison Santori, Brenna Shaw, Emma Stephens, Micala Tafelski, Mia Tavian, Katie Valchine and Gabby Watts.

Whalers goalie Alex Nedeljkovic played well at the other end, but he was victimized for five goals among the 41 Soo shots directed his way.

"We just gave them too much respect at times during the game," Nedeljkovic said. "In the second period, we kind of sat back and let them do whatever they wanted to.

"They're that skilled where if you give them time and space, they'll make plays."

Nedeljkovic stoned the Greyhounds during a power play early in the first period, stopping Nick Ritchie's one-timer.

But Sault Ste. Marie opened up the scoring at 6:49, when Tolchinsky slammed home McCann's centering pass.

Before the end of the period,

Michael Bunting scored a power-play goal to make it 2-0. Tolchinsky's shot was stopped by Nedeljkovic, but the Carolina Hurricanes prospect got caught on one side of the net, leaving Bunting wide open.

McCann then doubled the advantage to 4-0, with goals at 4:55 and 11:19 of the second period (the latter on the power play).

No puck luck

In the third, the snake-bit Whalers came to life on a power-play chance, putting plenty of heat on the Soo goalie.

Blue line blasts by defensemen Gianluca Curcuruto and Mitch Jones were turned aside by Halverson.

On another play, a snap shot from the top of the left circle by defenseman Lefebvre Henderson hit the left side of the goal and the Whalers tried to bank the rebound in off Halverson, who managed to keep the puck from crossing the line.

Capping the scoring at 14:04 of the third was Gabe Guertler, who drove a shot from the right circle past Nedeljkovic. Setting up the tally was forward Jack Kopacka.

Thanking the billets

Perhaps the evening's highlight was the pregame ceremony honoring Whalers' billets — families that house players during the season.

All of the billets were introduced and walked out onto the ice, drawing heartfelt applause.

"It's always nice to show them support and appreciation," said Nedeljkovic, who doesn't live with a billet because his actual family resides in the area. "They do a lot, letting us move in with them.

"It's always nice to show them the respect and appreciation they deserve."

PREP BOYS HOCKEY

Salem icers come up big

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

With the Division 1 boys hockey state tournament just a couple of weeks away, the Salem Rocks are getting sharper at precisely the right time of the year.

Salem outplayed and out-scored Muskegon Mona Shores — a perennial state title contender — 5-2 Saturday night at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

That victory nudged the Rocks closer to the top 10. They are ranked 11th in D1 with a 9-9-3 record and are better than the record indicates due to playing a number of strong opponents in non-league match-ups.

"It was one of our better overall games in a while," Salem head coach Ryan Ossebmacher said. "We continue to work on our special teams. They will need to improve for us to find any sustained success."

To that end, Mona Shores netted both goals on the power play, while the Rocks went 0-of-5 with the extra man.

But Saturday's game was encouraging on several fronts.

Senior forward Liam Walker returned to the lineup after missing three weeks due to an injury. He sparked the Salem attack, registering two goals and an assist.

Stellar in goal was senior Dillon Phillips, who stopped 21 shots, including "a few timely saves."

According to Ossebmacher, sophomore Joey Driscoll "was one of our better forwards. He played with tremendous energy and was rewarded with his first goal of the season."

Also scoring for Salem were forwards Evan Newel (one goal, one assist) and Zach Goleniak, while winger Noah Willer tallied two assists.

Other Salem players to get on the score sheet were forward Matt Schaumberger and defenseman Noah Saad, with one assist each.

The Rocks, who led Mona Shores 30-23 in shots, were up 2-1 after the opening period and padded that lead to 4-1 after two.

Next up for Salem is another very competitive opponent in Howell. The KLAA cross-over tilt is slated for 7:30 p.m. at PCC.

UD-JESUIT 3, PLYMOUTH 1: The Wildcats dropped a non-conference game Saturday at University of Detroit-Jesuit.

Scoring for Plymouth (13-7-1) was Ricky Covault, with assists by Andrew Jossey and Josh Smith.

FOREST HILLS 4, PLYMOUTH 1: Despite the ninth goal of the season by Josh Smith (assisted by Andrew Jossey), the Wildcats fell short in this road contest Friday against Forest Hills Central.

SPECIAL YEAR FOR COACH, TOO

Seniors like family to Salem's Klemmer

Rocks girls basketball coach draws parallel to her own career

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Once in a while, Lindsay Klemmer remembers what it was like to play for the Salem varsity girls basketball team. Klemmer was a standout among standouts for the Rocks — the team went 18-2 her senior year — before graduating in 2000. She then got sidetracked by an injury before enjoying a successful college career at Madonna University. And that Salem team, coached by Fred Thomann, featured a nucleus of four players that had been together for eons. That was a similar situation to this season, with six senior friends and long-time teammates on a team that won the KLAA Central Division.

Seeing that group of players through to the finish line is why Klemmer wanted to continue coaching the Rocks following an emotional 2013-14, when she took over the team after Thomann's December 2013 death.

"I know there was a group of four of us when I was a senior (at Salem), but it's like your own little family," Klemmer said. "They have each other's back. They're so different in so many ways, on the court and off the court. But they have each other's backs and they're nothing but best friends, both on the court and off the court.

"They're a blast, they're a lot of fun and they're one of the main reasons I came back here. I wanted to make sure these seniors went out on a high note, especially after everything that we went through together last year."

This season has been a big success for seniors Maranda Armstead, Allison First, Katie Latack, Shara Long, Hayley Rogers and Jamyra Wilson. But Klemmer knows those girls are nearing the end of their Salem careers.

"I have a hard time thinking about that," Klemmer said. "I just feel ... I love these kids like they're my own. I treat them like they're my own. I've been so blessed to have them here for my first full year."

"I just want to make sure I bring out the most potential in them that they have, so that they leave here with no regrets and they say, 'Hey, I gave everything I absolutely could and I had the best experience that I could have.'"

It has been an emotional year for Klemmer, too. Not only did she lose Thomann, her high school coach and mentor, she lost her "Uncle Buck" Craig Buchanan last summer.

Buchanan coached at Northern Michigan University and Marquette High School over the years and he was going to help Klemmer out with the Rocks when he died.

"This whole season for me has been dedicated to two of the most inspirational men in my life that I've lost," she said.

Klemmer said coaching the six seniors was the primary reason for continuing with Salem.

But now she intends to keep going, especially with some promising young players such as freshman sisters Jala and Lasha Petree on board.

"I believe that this (division crown) is the start of something great," Klemmer said. "I'm ready to bring back the tradition that Fred imbedded in me when I was here, which is the blue-collar work ethic, the hard work, the hustle, all those little things he made sure I did as a player. I'm ready to get that out of them. I'm ready to lay a foundation here and build from that."

ers now are in their final season at Salem. They and their coach are motivated to help them finish what they started back in 2009-10, when they first became teammates with the AAU Western Wayne Wolfpack developmental program.

Dream season

With Thomann's memory always in their thoughts, the Rocks have enjoyed a season to cherish.

Salem captured the KLAA Central Division with a perfect 10-0 record and the team (13-4 overall) now is intent on winning the conference tournament, which began Tuesday with a win over Westland John Glenn.

From there, the Rocks look to keep rolling right on to the Breslin Center, where the Class A final four will be played in March.

"It's awesome. I know this has been our dream probably since freshman year," said Rogers, who plays wing. "And it's really great to finally see it happening. We were so excited Friday (Feb. 6) when we clinched it, we were all just jumping around, screaming."

Rogers said she still wears the royal blue wristband with Thomann's initials "FJT" that each Rocks player was given Jan. 14, 2014, the night the coaching legend was honored at Salem.

"I think he always knew we had the potential," she said. "I think he'd be really proud of us to see that we're living up to what he always thought we could be."

Although point guard Wilson laughed when she described the team as being "a big, crazy, dysfunctional family," it can get down to business, too.

"I knew that we could always do it," Wilson said. "I always wanted to have our year up there on the boards since the day I came in here and I knew one year we were going to do it. I was hoping for all my four years, but I knew that wasn't realistic. But since it's my senior year and we actually did it, it feels amazing."

Giving credit

All six players — friends and teammates since middle school — give a big assist to Klemmer, a former Salem standout player who joined Thomann's coaching staff at the beginning of the 2013-14 season.

"Lindsay's great. She really pushes us and motivates us to play every game like it's our last," post player Long said. "Since we are seniors, we have to play each game like it's our last."

"You never know, a bad injury, a missed game in districts, anything can happen."

Yet they often think about Thomann.

"Obviously, losing Fred was a really big impact on our team," Long added. "And last year, it was hard to come back (after the death). But we bounced back and I think this year it really showed our potential."

Long added that Thomann "inspired me a lot to be the player I am today and I'm sure it's true for the rest of our seniors."

First, a wing player, credited both Thomann and Klemmer for helping the team go from untapped potential to one with aspirations for a lengthy post-season run.

"He really pushed us to become better players," First said. "And Lindsay just taught us to communicate more and we've all really grown as a team."

Support system

According to Latack, a guard who joined the Salem varsity in her freshman year (the others came on board as sophomores), their prep careers have been like being on a roller-coaster.

Last year was the obvious low point, but now things are on the upswing.

"It has had its ups and down," Latack said. "But I think it's made us stronger as a team, because we knew we could rely on each other."

"And then we just helped each other through everything (Thomann's death and the aftermath). I think it brought us closer in the end."

Even when this season started with the Rocks losing the first four games, the tight-knit group didn't waver about getting it together for one glorious swan song.

"We just figured this is our last year and we wanted to just go all-out, not hold anything back," Wilson said, remembering the impact Thomann made on their work ethic and resolve, going back to their years with the Wolfpack. "(Thomann) would push us to definitely move forward and push us as hard as we can, no excuses."

Time to reboot

Yet Rogers said the team realized it wasn't that far off the mark after those early losses, all against top-notch opponents such as Plymouth (in the season opener), Farmington Hills Mercy and Dearborn Divine Child.

"After the horrible start against Plymouth, we said, 'That wasn't us, we're putting that game aside,'" Rogers said. "And we started working harder, focusing more on technical, really worked on our defense."

"And then for the next three games, we were really close, we really beat Mercy. We were really close to Divine Child, close to Brighton. And then after that, we're like, 'OK, this is ridiculous, we got to get going.' And then we turned the corner. Everything started clicking."

Having a chance to laugh and blow off steam didn't hurt as the Rocks turned the calendar to January. That's where the "fun" in dysfunctional took over.

"For New Year's Eve, we all got together at Katie's house and watched High School Musical 3, (about) a high school musical senior year," Rogers said. "We started crying, because it was after midnight, we're like, 'Oh my gosh, this is us!' It's just the small stuff like that. We're crazy, I guess."

Armstead said they get together at different players' homes for pasta parties.

"One of the things we do is play (the video game) Just Dance and we sing a lot," Armstead said. "That really just lightens the mood and makes us realize how much we actually are a family."

Charting course

Of course, it's not just about having great times away from the basketball court. The girls still knew they had to produce in their games.

Thanks to Klemmer's encouragement, the seniors spearheaded creation of a so-called "vision board" that is taped to a wall near Klemmer's office.

It actually is a construction paper sign, with keywords (focus, consistency, family, intensity, heart), symbols and drawings that help the Rocks visualize going up the tournament mountain to Breslin.

The first step was the KLAA Central title, Salem's first in six years. Next on the agenda is the conference tourney.

Before games and at half-time, players tap the light brown sign for extra motivation — as if they needed it.

"Yeah, we've had these (goals) in our mind the whole year," Klemmer said. "But a couple weeks ago, we just decided that we wanted to put it in front of us, so that every time we came in to the locker room, prior to the game, prior to practice, every time we walked out on the court, we saw what we're reaching for."

"It's kind of a mountain we're trying to climb, but you have to knock off certain things to get to the ultimate goal."

Long said the sign definitely is making a positive difference.

"It was our coach's idea and, one day before practice, we all just worked on it," Long said. "We all contributed, we all wrote our (uniform) numbers, we wrote 'Salem Rocks.' It's a mountain we climb; each step is a new goal."

"Once we got division, now we're going up for KLAA and then districts and regionals, keep climbing up our mountain."

First concurred that while the sign gave the Rocks an extra boost, "I think we had it in us (to win the division). That just gave us the push to really see it and know what we're going for."

Sounds pretty logical for such a "crazy, dysfunctional" team.

They're crazy about, actually. Fred Thomann would approve.

COLLEGE BOWLING

Schoolcraft women top field at invite

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Merri-Bowl Lanes in Livonia might be turning into a house of horrors for opponents of Schoolcraft College's bowling teams.

On Friday, Feb. 13, luck might have been in the mix somewhere. But it was mostly pure talent at work as the Lady Ocelots captured the women's side of the Schoolcraft College Bowling Invitational, while their male counterparts came up just short after a furious rally.

"We've been playing pretty good and we had this date circled on our calendar since the start of the year," Schoolcraft bowling head coach Pat Yelsik said. "It was our home invitational, our home turf. We wanted to perform well in front of family and friends and we felt we did that."

"We feel we have some good momentum going into the state championship in two weeks and nationals in three weeks."

In the women's team standings, Schoolcraft tallied a 3,633 score, well ahead of Muskegon (3,560) and Kirtland/Wayne (2,804).

Schoolcraft's men's team trailed Muskegon 4,010-3,864 entering the fourth and final Baker game and the Ocelots — outscoring the Jayhawks by a 446-318 count — came within a frame or so of pulling off the comeback. Muskegon edged Schoolcraft by a 4,328-4,310 total.

"It was a real valiant effort by the guys, coming back the way they did," Yelsik said. "Real proud of them."

Team success wasn't the only plus coming out of the invite.

Sophomore Angela Rodriguez, a returning National Junior College Athletic Association All-American, won an individual award for throwing the top game (213). She also finished with a 556-pin series, trailing only Muskegon's Candace Sutton (560).

"(Rodriguez) had the second highest series in the tournament," Yelsik said. "Right behind her was Ella Kearney (Farmington) and also Bianca Greco was in there as well; they played great yesterday."

Greco and Kearney chipped in with 478 and 446 scores, respectively.

Not to be overlooked was Westland John Glenn product Yvette Ayers. The sophomore finished third overall with a 506 series.

Canton alum Ammera Sirhan (375) and Huron Valley Lutheran grad Bethany McCormick (301) also helped the Schoolcraft cause.

On the men's side of the ledger, Livonia Clarenceville product Ricky Rutenbar "performed very well" with a second-place finish both in high game (226) and series (595). Only Muskegon's Noah Carter fared better, with a 231 top game and 647 series.

In sixth overall was Schoolcraft's Leon Hutchcraft (576), while Josh Coffee rolled a 554 series, good for eighth.

Other Ocelots contributing were Sam Berger (12th, 533), Ben Jakes (13th, 533), Northville product Colton Ma-Wu (17th, 504) and Livonia Clarenceville alum Kaylup Richards (23rd, 472).

"Leon Hutchcraft, who has been our most consistent performer, he was one of the top performers as well," Yelsik said. "And Josh Coffee, who had struggled a little bit in the first couple tournaments, he really came on and did some nice things for us."

"Colton played good. He had a rough couple first games, then came out of nowhere and had a 216 in his third game."

Lawyers: Have real estate documents reviewed right from start, avoid headaches

By Julie Brown
Staff Writer

Having a lawyer review your paperwork when buying a home is smart.

"That's the key is having a lawyer review everything before you sign a purchase agreement," said Steve Bernstein, a lawyer with more than 40 years of practice based in Farmington Hills. "I don't think most people realize that."

Keego Harbor resident Bernstein gets calls from people who've already signed a purchase agreement and have experienced difficulties. "That's the point when I can give them the most help," he said of clients before they sign the purchase agreement.

The purchase agreement is a binding contract, Bernstein explained, and particularly crucial for a large transaction like buying a home. He noted those buying a business for comparable money would likely hire a lawyer.

It's prudent to ask a lawyer about his or her credentials and experience, he said, and if they handle real estate transactions. "I never mind that question, as a matter of fact I welcome it," he said. "It's really just like going to the doctor. You don't want a foot doctor working on your heart."

Bernstein worked part time for a title company while still in law school. He noted problems that can arise if no lawyer has reviewed the purchase agreement, such as with the condition of the house, title issues or others.

"We could have saved the time and expense of clearing these things up" earlier, Bernstein said. "You're spending a very significant amount of money."

Livonia-based attorney Sue Carlson, in practice 35 years, agreed that having an attorney review real estate transactions is wise.

"It's a major contract you're entering," said Canton resident Carlson. "There are ramifications for saying 'I'm backing out of this deal.'"

She noted real estate agents often fill out forms; an attorney can provide for contingencies, which Carlson said are especially key for buyers and in some cases sellers.

"There are all kinds of possibilities," she said. "It should be reviewed." An attorney can draft an addendum as needed "and be aware of any problems that will come up before the closing."

Carlson often attends closings to represent her client. "Every time I go to the closing, there's at least one new form," she said. She too welcomes general questions from prospective clients on her background.

"Every case is different," said Carlson of real estate purchases. "It's a lot of money."

She said with homes selling more rapidly now an attorney can help with negotiating. She finds cold feet at the closing the big problem. "That's when everything hits the fan," she said.

Common-area gun ban raises constitutional issues

Q: We are talking about banning guns in common areas of the condominium. Do you think that is a good idea?

A: That is a loaded question, no pun intended. Obviously, people need to be able to protect themselves on the common areas, but you also do not want vigilantes policing the common areas with guns. Then there becomes the question of the right to bear arms and how it is to be interpreted as it relates to a condominium association.

There is no clear cut answer at this point in time, but it is the kind of discussion that the Board of Directors and its legal counsel should have to determine whether a specific policy is necessary or whether the existing documents in any way cover the issue.

Q: I am trying to sell my property for about $250,000 and have a prospective purchaser, but he only wants to put $5,000 down with various contingencies. What do you think?

A: I think that that is not a good deal for you because if the buyer defaults, the $5,000 does not inflict sufficient financial pain on the purchaser if he really wants to opt out of the deal for no legal or reasonable reason. I would try to get at least 15 to 20 percent down in a given situation to make any purchaser think twice before they walk away from a deal irrespective of what the contingencies are.

Level: Beginner

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Freezer Jam will heat up the auditorium at Stevenson High School this weekend in Livonia.

Drums, fifes, pipes and color guards will take the stage Saturday, Feb. 21, for this 20th annual concert and conference that draws together fife and drum corps from throughout the Midwest. They'll gather for classes during the day and will perform both individually and in an all-group jam session during the evening concert.

Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps presents the event, which kicks off the group's performance season.

"I hope the audience will come away with a little bit of the history that we are trying to continue. And that they'll come away with an appreciation for what young kids are doing today," said Jim Predhomme, Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps musical director. "During a parade, you get to hear one song as a group marches by. Here, each will get eight to 10 minutes on stage. The audience will get to hear a lot of music. They'll see different styles of corps, of music.

"One thing that's fun that will happen at freezer jam is that whenever you get fife and drum corps together, usually there is an impromptu jam session. Someone starts a song and everyone joins in."

The concert is from 3-6 p.m. and will include the United States Army Old Guard Fife and Drum Corps along with visiting corps, and the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps. Tickets are $15 each, available at freezerjam.org. Stevenson High School is at 33500 Six Mile.

Emily Markey, a fifer who will serve as the Plymouth Corps' drum major this year, said fife and drum corps differ in dress, and performance style. At least one of the visiting groups includes bagpipers.

"Before each corps goes on stage a brief bio is read, explaining what their uniform represents and who they represent from the past and what area they're from," said Markey, a high school senior in her last year with the Plymouth group.

The Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, open to ages 12-18, represents George Washington's personal guard. Its 45 musicians wear replicas of guard uniforms when they perform at parades, festivals or on the concert stage.

"That's 10 pounds of wool. Exact replicas," Markey said. "You get used to it. My first year was bad, now it's nothing to me to be in uniform in hot weather. We drink a lot of water."

Learning the fife

Markey played tuba and violin in middle school, and added fife to her musical resume after the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps visited her school.

the group, performing extensively throughout the summer and meeting new people.

"It's much different than what I played in band and orchestra," she said. "It's more difficult music, at more of a collegiate level. And we memorize all of our music. We learn five to six songs every year. You learn to read notes faster."

Most beginning fifers learn to play the instrument after they join the group. They practice weekly and take lessons from one of the Corps' five instructors from October through January, in preparation for the annual Freezer Jam in February.

"The fife's not in any school band. And even if they've played music for a few years, they are starting over on a new instrument," said Predhomme, who played drums when he joined the group as a student in 1978. He later taught drums before becoming the Corps musical director. "That's a unique challenge. It's not something that mom or dad just has around the house that the kids can pick up."

New fingering, handling

Although the fife may sound similar to a flute or piccolo, its finger pattern is similar to that of an alto saxophone.

Percussionists also learn to make adjustments when they play snare drum in the group. They handle their sticks with a "traditional left hand grip," holding the left hand in a "side-ways" position.

"Our drums are not modern drums with high tension. It's all rope tension. You don't get the same bounce that you would off a modern drum. It takes a lot more work."

Predhomme described the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps' repertoire as historical, with a contemporary flair.

"The musical arrangements we play are not entirely period accurate of the music of 200 years ago. They do have some modern elements. We play Yankee Doodle but we might play it different in some ways.

"There are two schools in the fife and drum community. Some focus on reproducing the music exactly of the day and the others add a modern spirit to it. We blend the old with the modern and focus more on entertaining than re-enacting."

Pearled Sorghum
Tangy Pear Salad

ENJOY GLUTEN-FREE SORGHUM IN BAKED GOODS, SALADS

An ancient grain with roots that trace back as far as 8,000 B.C., sorghum is experiencing a resurgence as demand for non-GMO and gluten-free food grows.

Sorghum is an excellent substitute for those with Celiac disease or gluten intolerance, and can be used to make both leavened and unleavened breads, various fermented and unfermented beverages and can be steamed, popped, flaked or consumed as a whole grain or syrup.

"Sorghum is light in color, has a pleasing texture and tastes similar to wheat, which makes it perfect for use in gluten-free baking," said Carol Fenster, gluten-free expert and cookbook author.

Sorghum also provides iron, calcium, potassium, as well as polyphenols, which research has shown to lower serum cholesterol and may improve heart health.

Contrary to the perception that some grains lead to a spike in blood sugar, research has indicated that sorghum offers slow digestibility and a lower glycemic index. Foods with a lower glycemic index are believed to increase satiety, which means people feel fuller longer, aiding with weight management.

White, food grade sorghum can be milled directly into whole grain flour to produce foods such as cookies, cakes, breads, pizza dough, pastas, cereals and more. Whole grain sorghum is also a healthy addition to salads. Sorghum's natural attributes make it possible to enjoy deliciously healthful and gluten-free versions of some of America's favorite foods.

PEARLED SORGHUM TANGY PEAR SALAD

Contributed by Nu Life Market

Salad:
½ cup cooked pearled sorghum grain
8 cups prepared mixed baby greens
1 small red onion, halved and thinly sliced
½ cup dried cranberries
Toppings:
2 red Anjou pears, halved vertically and thinly sliced
Dressing:
Favorite dressing or balsamic vinaigrette

To cook sorghum, a ratio of one part sorghum to four parts water should be used. In appropriate size saucepan, add water and heat until boiling. Add sorghum and allow to simmer on medium heat, stirring occasionally, for approximately 45 minutes or until desired tenderness. Once cooked, drain water from pan and rinse cooked grain. Allow cooked sorghum to cool completely before adding to salad, to avoid wilted lettuce. Toss together cooked sorghum, baby mixed greens, onion and dried cranberries in large bowl. To serve, place desired amount of tossed lettuce mixture onto salad plate, adorn with 5 pear slices and drizzle with desired amount of dressing.
