Lot expansion delayed, but just a day

County claimed missing paperwork from township

Work on doubling the size of a parking lot at Plymouth Township Park is nearing completion, officials say, despite a stop-work order that briefly halted construction late last month.

The stop-work order was issued July 21 because the township did not have the proper soil-erosion sedimentation control permit in place, said Ryan Bridges, a spokesman for Wayne County's public services department.

"Activity was halted because the township started working prior to receiving the proper permit from the county," Bridges wrote in an email. The order was lifted the next day after the county had a chance to review the SESC plan and issue the permit, Bridges said.

Township Supervisor Shannon Price said there was a mix-up about whether the township had applied for the permit, which is required for a project of its size.

"I had to call the county, say we did apply for the permit," Price said Friday. The township had applied for the permit in late June, Price said, but the county hadn't cashed the fee check until July 13.

The parking lot, near the baseball fields and the parks new all-weather pavilion, is being expanded from about 100 parking spaces to 209 parking spaces at a cost of $712,000, according to township records. Officials say the expansion is needed by visitors to the park's ball fields, where games are often well-attended, and ex-

CHILDREN LINE UP FOR TOUCH A TRUCK PROGRAM

Ericka Thornton, a Canton mother of three, doesn't want her daughters to grow up fearing police officers and firefighters.

So she brought 5-year-old twins Brianna and Vivianna and youngest daughter Gabrielle, 4, to a place where they could get close to a police car and fire engine and see the first responders who drive them.

"I want my daughters not to be afraid of the people who are here in our community to help us," Thornton said.

She got her chance Wednesday as a fire engine, police car, backhoe, dump truck and sewer-cleaning Vactor rig were parked outside the Canton Public Library for a program called Touch a Truck.

"I like fire trucks," Vivianna said, smiling.

Not far away, children huddled around David Arnold, a Canton public works equipment operator, as he explained in simple terms how the Vactor truck, weighing 50,000 pounds when filled with water, can be used to unclog a sewer line.

"This is like a giant vacuum cleaner," he said.

Another equipment operator, Curt Foster, told how a huge Caterpillar backhoe is used to dig up dirt to repair water main breaks or unearth soil so new homes can be connected to the municipal water system.

Across the parking lot, a long line formed as Canton Police Officer Patty Esselink

Jackson Ryan finds a comfortable seat on a backhoe wheel.

Canton Lions corn roast expected to draw hundreds

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Canton, once dubbed the Sweet Corn Capital of Michigan during its more rural past, still enjoys a good corn roast.

Just ask Bill Van Winkle.

He said 700-800 corn lovers are expected when the Canton Lions Club hosts its annual corn roast to raise money to buy eyeglasses, hearing aids and other devices for hearing- and vision-impaired people who can't afford the price tag.

The corn roast happens 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 22, near the Cady-Boyer Barn in Preservation Park, off Ridge Road north of Cherry Hill on Canton's west side.

"It's a real community favorite," said Van Winkle, a longtime Lions Club volunteer. "It's quite an event."

For some, the corn roast stirs memories of a time when Canton had many more cornfields, before large subdivisions and shopping centers changed the landscape.

Local historians say Canton was once touted as the Sweet Corn Capital of Michigan. Dave Curtis, one of those historians, said the title was earned for the amount of corn grown and sold from about 1950-70.

"The soil was good for the sweet corn," Curtis said.

Moreover, he said, Canton was close to warehouses owned by the big grocery store chains - places where Canton's corn could be easily delivered and sold.

Van Winkle said Canton still has a hearty appetite for corn.

That said, the Canton Lions Club is charging no admission for its all-you-can-eat roasted corn, served along with hot dogs, baked beans, watermelon, ice cream, cotton candy, snow cones and beverages during the annual event.

The club does, however, ask for donations so it can support its charitable efforts. Gift baskets and a 50/50 raffle also are slated that day.

Among the highlights:

» The Canton Concert Band, the resident ensemble of the Village Theater at Cherry Hill, will perform.

» The Canton Historical Society will show what life was like in Canton's past.

» Canton-based Ear Center Audiology will offer hearing tests for those attending.

» Eversight, formerly the Michigan Eye Bank, is expect-

Young people get creative at PCAC camps

By Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

Young people are exploring their creative sides during the Plymouth Community Arts Council's summer arts camps.

The nonprofit at Sheldon and Junction in Plymouth is offering workshops in traditional forms such as drawing, painting and ceramics, as well as applying artistic concepts to the wider world, with classes in advertising art, construction and the use of everyday items and recycled products in artistic work. There are also theater classes, music lessons and fun workshops with Dr. Seuss- and Harry Potter-themed projects.

Arts campers, said Lisa Howard, the PCAC's executive director, have proven adept at opening their imaginations and taking their art beyond what they learn in school, which usually emphasizes technique over creativity.

"They always take it and they do things we don't even think of," Howard said. "They need to keep thinking outside the box."

Instructor Madhurima Ganguly agreed. She was teaching a class Thursday afternoon called Flower Power, which explores different ways of depicting flowers in different media. It's for 6- to

NEWS BRIEFS

Lilley/Mill reopened

Lilley Road between Main Street and Ann Arbor Road was reopened last week following the completion of a $1.55 million underground utilities project there.

A new water main was installed and repairs made to the sanitary sewer in the area, work that required a partial closure of the road earlier in the summer. Lilley, also called Mill Street in the city, is open for two-way traffic.

The utility work was completed ahead of a Wayne County road resurfacing project along the same strip. That project, at about $700,000, is supposed to begin later this summer.

Price at pavilion

Plymouth Township Supervisor Shannon Price will be showing off the new all-season pavilion at Plymouth Township Park during his next public office hours Monday, Aug. 17.

Price will be at the pavilion 5-7 p.m. to discuss issues with residents. No appointment is needed.

The pavilion, near the baseball fields, was recently finished at a cost of around $700,000. It is one of a number of improvements to the park and other township recreation facilities that have been undertaken in the last two years.

Cheers! Brewery, restaurant sought for Canton arts complex

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Efforts to create a new arts and entertainment complex in Cherry Hill Village have ramped up as project leaders begin actively seeking a brewery or pub for the site.

Tapping into Michigan's burgeoning craft beer industry, the Partnership for the Arts and Humanities has advertised in the latest edition of Michigan Beer Guide for a brewery or pub.

"It could be either, whatever works out," Jill Engel, the partnership's executive director, said Friday.

The latest move comes as a team led by Engel works to create the Village Arts Factory on property, near Cherry Hill and Ridge roads, once owned by auto magnate Henry Ford. World War II disabled veterans once worked and lived there.

A former warehouse - one of three buildings on the 14-acre site - offers 32,000 square feet of space that is intended to house a brewery or pub and a restaurant on one side and art studios, a gallery and a boutique on the other.

Jill Engel continues to roll out a vision for the former Henry Ford factory site in Canton.

BILL BRESLER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Canton historian Dave Curtis has lauded the idea of an arts complex that also would offer arts, education and healing programs for war veterans. Curtis has called it "a good vision" that preserves "some of Canton's important history."

Over the last two years, Engel said Village Arts Factory leaders have consistently heard that the community wants the project to include an entertainment sector such as a brewery and a restaurant, whether they are together or separate. It would include outdoor seating.

Those businesses, potentially through lease agreements, could generate revenue that the Partnership for the Arts and Humanities could use to offset expenses for artist studios and keep at a minimum the cost of veterans classes and programs.

Engel said she already has received two inquiries after the ad was placed in the July-August edition of Michigan Beer Guide.

Meanwhile, she said the project is moving ahead. She hopes the former Henry Ford dormitory could open as early as spring to house programs for veterans. It's likely the warehouse could open within three years with amenities such as the studio, brewery and restaurant, if all goes as planned.

The project could complement the Village Theater at Cherry Hill, a longtime gem of Canton's arts community.

Engel envisions a place where residents and visitors can bike, walk, or drive to enjoy the arts complex.

"We want it to be a gathering place," she said.

pected traffic to the new $700,000 pavilion. The pavilion is near the sledding hill and the township is outfitting it with a snow-making machine for winter weather.

"The parking lot's almost all in," said Treasurer Ron Edwards, who is overseeing the project. The lot expansion started before current parks director Mike Mitchell was hired. "It'll be in Monday," Edwards said.

Edwards said the lot is being paved in three stages with the last stage of concrete expected to be poured Monday. He said sidewalks and restoration work should be finished by next week.

The lot expansion, and the new pavilion, which cost around $700,000, are two of the major projects in a multi-year effort to improve the township's recreation facilities.

Local supermarkets aid Forgotten Harvest program

Two Plymouth Township supermarkets are teaming up this month with Forgotten Harvest to help bring food to needy people throughout the Detroit area.

The Busch's on Sheldon Road at Five Mile, along with Prairie Farms and the United Dairy Industry of Michigan, are sponsoring a milk drive beginning Monday to collect up to 5,000 gallons of milk for Forgotten Harvest. The drive will run through Sunday, Aug. 16, with an all-day event at the store planned for Saturday, Aug. 15.

In addition, the gas station at the Kroger Super Center at Ann Arbor Road and Sheldon is donating $3 to Forgotten Harvest for every platinum car wash purchased there this month.

With the Real Estate One Charitable Foundation making a $1.50 match per platinum wash, that means every platinum wash at the Super Center in August will translate into $4.50 for Forgotten Harvest, while each $4.50 donation can provide 22 meals through the Forgotten Harvest program.

The milk drive at Busch's asks customers to buy gallons of milk for the effort; each gallon donated will be matched by the store and the United Dairy Industry of Michigan, a producers organization, up to the goal of 5,000 gallons.

"Milk is one of the most-requested items at food banks, but is rarely donated," John Hunter, the director of marketing at Busch's Inc., said in a press release. "We at Busch's are ecstatic and grateful for every chance to support families and children in our own communities with the gift of milk."

The milk drive will wrap up Aug. 15 with an event at the store. Trucks from the Prairie Farms dairy and Forgotten Harvest will be outside to collect donations between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. and Busch's will be selling hot dogs and refreshments, with proceeds going toward milk donations. Busch's will also be serving ice cream samples.

ANGELA HOSPICE

More than $12,000 raised during last month's Camaro Superfest was donated Monday to Livonia's Angela Hospice at Lou LaRiche Chevrolet in Plymouth Township.

Angela Hospice gets $12K at local car dealer

The Eastern Michigan Camaro Club donated Monday more than $12,000 to Angela Hospice, a Livonia-based not-for-profit that cares for terminally ill people in their last days and provides support for their families.

The check presentation took place at Plymouth Township's Lou LaRiche Chevrolet. Vice president and executive manager Scott LaRiche is an EMCC sponsor and chose Angela as the charity.

The money was raised during last month's EMCC-sponsored 24th annual Camaro Superfest, the largest and longest-running all-Camaro event in the country. There were 50/50 drawings, live and silent auctions and donations made at the gate.

The Camaro Superfest was July 4-5 at Riverside Park in Ypsilanti. It included swap, sell and vendor areas and displays for visitors.

Last year's Superfest raised about $10,000 for the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Abstract flowers

"They took the shape of the flower and they expanded their imaginations," Ganguly said as she explained a mixed-media assignment that resulted in a lot of flowers – painted cutouts of paper plates – with abstract designs.

The creator of one of those pieces called it a "disco flower," Ganguly said, and that flower's center did resemble a mirrored disco ball.

Ganguly said she began that project by talking about shapes found in the everyday world and that campers quickly took to the topic. "They put themselves much more into the conversation," she said.

Thursday afternoon, campers were working on turning egg-carton dimples – the little insets where eggs are kept snug in the carton – into bouquets of flowers to be mounted on construction paper. Each student started with three dimples, roughly cut, trimmed them to their liking, then painted them and attached green pipe cleaners for stems and colored ribbons to complete the bouquets.

Camper Mary Koss said it was her favorite project so far. "You get to cut out the egg carton and you get to make it how you want," she said.

Mary Michalak's favorite was an earlier project: Cutting the sides of paper cups into petals and putting the resulting cup flowers onto wire stems. "We put ours in a vase," she said.

"Every day they are so excited to come back here," Ganguly said.

In the pottery studio nearby, Michaela Jajko was teaching an advanced pottery class of four girls. They had been sharing time on the pottery wheel all week.

"I'm really excited to, like, further my career in being a potter," Bella Breazeale, who is entering Salem High School in the fall, said after "throwing" a bowl on the wheel.

Teacher Michaela Jajko (right) talks with student Claire Bensen about her project.

Teacher Madhurima Ganguly talks about student work.

Ashley Parker works on her Slime Monster.

Bella Breazeale throws a bowl on a potter's wheel.

Claire Bensen used her fingernails to add texture to her ceramic piece. She feels that it's like using a physical part of her that becomes part of her art.

'Expand your mind'

Jajko, who is working toward a bachelor of fine arts in ceramics at Western Michigan University, said she likes to give campers a sense of independence with their art.

"She wants you to expand your mind," said camper Clair Bensen, who will be a ninth-grader at Canton High School.

Claire showed off a piece she called "Wild Mountain," which has a practical use as a piggy bank with two openings for coins. "I feel like that'd be a unique use," Claire said.

She had stomped on the clay, she said, rolled it, make it hollow and gave it an irregular shape, then repeatedly poked at it with her fingernails.

"It makes kind of a rugged, old look," Claire said. Glazes of brown, blue and bluish-green will finish that look, she said.

"Wild Mountain" was one of several ceramic pieces Clair had made last week.

"I'm excited because I've got presents figured out for Christmas already," she said.

Wildcats boosters, The VET collaborate on 'Warrior Obstacle Challenge'

By Joanne Maliszewski
Staff Writer

Organizers of the Wildcat Warrior Obstacle Challenge — a fundraiser for the Plymouth High School football team and military veterans — have rescheduled the event for Saturday, Sept. 12, at the high school.

That gives plenty of time to practice ready to test your mettle — and your muscles.

"I'm looking for a good turnout. It's helping both good causes," said Todd McCall, president of the Plymouth Wildcats Football Booster Club.

The challenge involves fun stuff: mud — lots of mud, obstacle courses, climbing hills, bales of hay and some sand. Expect to get a bit dirty, but it will be fun, McCall said.

A fundraising event, the obstacle challenge is also a collaboration with The VET — Veteran Education and Transitional — Program. "The football program is always fundraising," McCall said. "We try to tie the community back into these fundraisers."

You can bet making your way through an obstacle course in the mud will be good fun.

Coach Mike Sawchuck suggested teaming with The VET Program for the challenge. "As of recently, we've had a lot of groups fundraising with us," said Sara Fader, whose husband Scott began the nonprofit while he served in Afghanistan in 2012.

When Scott Fader returned home, the nonprofit took off in 2013 first as Suits for Soldiers. The Faders decided the organization needed a broader scope, now known as Rochester-based The VET Program, which includes education, providing business attire, help with resume, for example.

"We help veterans and their spouses and older veterans," Sara Fader said.

The boosters and The VET Program will split proceeds from the obstacle fundraiser. Booster parents plan to reach out to military recruitment offices for participants, as well.

"It is open to everybody," McCall said. "There is no age limit. We're letting anyone come through the obstacle course."

Veterans will be hand, some volunteering to organize the waves of participants who take turns on the course, as well as veterans giving the obstacles a try. "Everyone who participates will get a medal," McCall said.

Two or three days before the event, volunteers will be out with hoses and sand preparing the obstacle course at Plymouth High School.

The Sept. 12 event starts with check-in at 8 a.m., followed by the first wave of participants starting at 9:15 a.m. at the high school, 8400 Beck Road, Canton.

Meanwhile, the booster club is seeking sponsors for the event. Businesses or organizations that are interested may call McCall at 734-748-9649.

Participation costs include: $30 for adults; $20 for ages 13-19, $10 for ages 10-12 and kids 9 and younger are admitted free. Admission includes the course, a drawstring backpack, buff and finishers medal. Kids nine and younger will not receive a bag or medals.

Registration is ongoing and may be completed online at www.TheVETProgram.org (under events). Participants may also register and pick up information packets from noon to 4 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 5, at Plymouth High School.

Plymouth Rotary accepting Outbound applications

The Rotary Club of Plymouth is accepting applications for the Rotary Youth Exchange Program. It is open to current high school students and students graduating in 2016. The Youth Exchange Program is for the 2016-17 school year, with students leaving in August 2016.

"The Rotary Youth Exchange Program is one of the premier programs of Rotary International and it is supported by Rotary Clubs all around the world," Rotary Club President Russ Jones said.

Students who participate in the Rotary Youth Exchange Program will spend one year living abroad. Students will be sponsored by a local Rotary Club in the United States/Canada and in their new country, where they will attend high school.

The Rotary Youth Exchange Program provides students ages 16-18 the opportunity to live 11 months in another country learning the language and culture.

Outbound students and their parents are guided through months of orientation and information about the country of their exchange year. Outbound students typically stay with two or three Rotary-approved families and receive a monthly stipend for incidental expenses.

Rotary Youth Exchange outbound participants must have above average grades. Students will learn about other cultures, about other people and about themselves. Students and families who may be interested in the Rotary Youth Exchange experience should watch the following YouTube link at <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=pGdwpF2BBp8>.

Rotary Youth Exchange Applications are now available online at www.plymouthrotary.org.

Events celebrate 70th anniversary of end of WWII

The Yankee Air Museum is hosting a celebration in honor of the 70th anniversary of the victory in World War II. The celebration includes historical displays, Big Band music and swing dancing as well as a classic car show.

One important piece is missing: the generation of Americans who achieved that victory.

YAM is looking for all those who participated in the war effort — as a soldier or as someone who worked in a factory that supported the war — to come and be celebrated as guests of honor. Guests will get to swap stories with fellow veterans and pinpoint on a map where they served to show the far reaches of Michigan's service men and women.

This celebration is one of many events taking place during the Home Front Victory Celebration.

The celebration also includes:

gan Theater in Ann Arbor on Thursday, Aug. 13. The lecture will explore the real-life travails and triumphs of the women working for victory on the home front. Strong ties to Ypsilanti. Free small popcorn and soda is included.

» Ypsilanti Street Festival at Library Plaza in downtown Ypsilanti on Friday, Aug. 14. There will be live music, great food, giveaways and free vintage car parking.

ship Community Parade beginning at Holmes Elementary School on Saturday, Aug. 15. The also will be art, food, a raffle and vintage baseball » Home Front Victory Celebration at the Yankee Air Museum on Sunday, Aug. 16, will be the grand finale of the weekend.

This weekend will be more successful if those who lived and served during WWII can attend and share experiences not found in a textbook.

The Home Front Victory Celebration is a partnership of the Norwayne Community Citizens Council, Ann Arbor/ Ypsilanti Regional Chamber, Ann Arbor Area Convention and Visitors Bureau, Belleville Area Museum, City of Ypsilanti, Cruisin' on the Bayou, Growing Hope, Keep the Spirit of '45 Alive, Michigan Aerospace Foundation, Ypsilanti Area Convention and Visitors Bureau, Ypsilanti Township and Yankee Air Museum.

Yankee Air Museum is a nonprofit organization dedicated to "honoring aviation history and its participants through a living, flying museum."

Visitors can experience historical exhibits, participate in educational programs, and even take a ride in one of their restored "warbirds."

The museum is located at Willow Run Airport, 47884 D St., Belleville. For more information, call 734-483-4030.

Target manufacturer using right moves

By Mike Lammi
Michigan.com

Wayne McGregor believes his products are right on the mark when it comes to firearms training and saving lives.

The Livingston resident is CEO of Target Tracker, a company that is changing the way police, military, hunters and others hone their shooting skills.

Target Trackers are moving targets, allowing for more realism when shooters are training. The remote-controlled, four-wheel targets are made at Target Tracker's factory in Garden City and shipped to buyers across the country.

McGregor, 44, is an avid hunter and certified shooting instructor with a background in robotics. After being introduced to Target Tracker and seeing its potential several years ago, he assumed a leadership role in the company.

"The original Target Tracker just had a deer on it, no steering, no distance controls. You would set the wheels and it would go in circles by itself while people would shoot a bow and arrow at it," McGregor said. "I started with that, then basically reinvented the product. With my manufacturing and robotics

Wayne McGregor, owner of Target Tracker, demonstrates a video training application using a projected video that responds to a target being "hit" by a laser light from the training gun. The system helps develop instinctive tracking of a moving target, as does the company's motorized targets maneuvered by remote control.

background, I re-designed the whole thing."

At first, McGregor said, he was making the targets out of a garage. "I'd build 25 of them, then I'd go to shows or do demos and sell them all. Then I'd come back and make more of them," he said.

Now Target Trackers are made in a 120,000-square-foot facility in Garden City. The basic units sell for about $3,000 apiece. Some years have seen 300-plus orders, McGregor said.

Michigan hasn't been a major market, the state police and Kalamazoo

Police Department have trained with them. Business has been good. In Texas, he said, and Target Trackers have been shipped to military bases and police departments all over the country.

One of the major distributors of Target Trackers is Law Enforcement Targets Inc.

"There are competitor products out there," McGregor said. "Some out there are $2,000, some are $10,000, but none of them have the versatility that ours does."

The units can be remotely controlled from as far away as 500 meters and can traverse sandy and bumpy terrain. They travel up to 9 mph on their 24-volt rechargeable batteries.

"If you put a 120-pound target on it, you can run it for three or four hours non-stop," McGregor said. While Target Trackers were designed to hone shooting skills, they also can be outfitted with bins and used to carry cargo around the home.

McGregor puts the Target Trackers to use when training police agencies and others at his private tactical training range in the northern Lower Peninsula, on 64 acres near Hubbard Lake between Alpena and Oscoda. A training session could consist of as many as 20 moving targets representing numerous threats.

Target Trackers also are used in a video application in which trainees shoot guns that fire lasers at moving targets projected on the screen.

"One of the ways that we separate ourselves from 99.9 percent of every other firearms instructor in the world is that everyone else is using stationary targets," McGregor said.

To add realism to the training on the range, firecrackers may be tossed around and trainees may come under paintball fire.

"It's about bullet accountability under stress," McGregor said. "It's all about saving lives."

Antlerless deer license applications on sale through Aug. 15

The Department of Natural Resources is accepting applications for antlerless deer licenses through Aug. 15.

Hunters may apply for one license in any open Deer Management Unit statewide; a non-refundable $5 fee is charged at the time of application. Hunters may choose to apply for either one private-land or one public-land license online or where licenses are sold.

Young hunters, ages 9-16, can purchase one junior antlerless deer license over the counter until Aug. 15. No application is required. A 9-year-old must be 10 by Sept. 26 to purchase this license.

Any leftover antlerless deer licenses not issued in the drawing will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis beginning 10 a.m. Sept. 9, until license quotas are met. Antlerless deer license quotas for each DMU can be found at www.michigan.gov/deer. Drawing results and leftover license availability may be viewed at www.michigan.gov/hunt drawings beginning Sept. 2.

Hunters also are reminded that chronic wasting disease has been confirmed in a free-ranging deer in Michigan. CWD is a fatal neurological disease that affects white-tailed deer, mule deer, elk and moose.

A CWD Management Zone has been created for Clinton, Ingham and Shiawassee counties. DMU 333 was created for the Core CWD area and encompasses those townships (Lansing, Meridian, Williamstown, Delhi, Alaiedon and Wheatfield in Ingham County; DeWitt and Bath in Clinton County; and Woodhull in Shiawassee County) closest to where the CWD-positive deer was located.

In DMU 333, there is an unlimited antlerless deer license quota and the deer license or deer combo licenses may be used to harvest antlerless or antlered deer within DMU 333 during firearm and muzzleloading seasons. Additional deer-check stations, to be announced at a later date, will be available to hunters in the Core CWD Area and CWD Management Zone. To learn more about chronic wasting disease, go to www.michigan.gov/cwd.

PORT HURON-TO-MACKINAC RACE

Sailboat skipper wins trophy again

On a picture-perfect afternoon, the sailboat Shape and its crew get underway in the annual Port Huron-to-Mackinac race.

Plymouth's Chris Benedict and crew capture third straight victory in annual race on Lake Huron

Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

For a time early in the Bell's Beer Bayview Mackinac Race, it appeared Chris Benedict's incredible record of success was in jeopardy.

But the captain, a Plymouth resident, and veteran crew of the sailboat Shape managed to overcome a sizable deficit last month and win their class for the third consecutive year.

Benedict and boat co-owner Win Cooper III have led their team to victory in four of the last five Port Huron-to-Mackinac races on Lake Huron. They were runners-up in 2012.

"In the end, we did have a pretty good margin of victory, but it was not always that way," Benedict said. "We had a slow start and some poor wind, and it seemed to be getting the better of us than it did the rest of the fleet."

The Shape found itself six miles behind the leaders in the Shore Course Class N - Racing Class several hours into the annual event Saturday, July 18.

Winning the Blue Water Trophy has become an annual event for Plymouth's Chris Benedict.

Women post pair of aces

» After 30 years of playing golf, Dori Godin of Farmington Hills achieved her first hole-in-one in late May.

The 73-year-old Dorin used a hybrid 5-iron to ace the 97-yard 13th hole at Farmington Hills Golf Club.

» Sara Rudy of Ann Arbor used a sand wedge to ace the No. 5 hole July 29 at Farmington Hills GC.

It was the first hole-in-one for the 55-year-old Rudy, who has been a golfer for 35 years and shot 38 for the nine-hole round. Rudy hit the ball 81 yards from the women's tee.

Old-style game

The 13th annual World Tournament of Historic Base Ball continues Sunday, Aug. 9, at Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

The Lah-De-Dahs and the Nationals of Greenfield Village will take on vintage clubs from Michigan, Indiana, New York and Ohio.

Games are played according to 1867 rules. Gloves are optional, no overhand pitching is allowed, gentlemanly play is always expected and spitting is highly discouraged.

The event is free with membership or admission to Greenfield Village. Ticket prices range from $18.75 to $25 depending on age. Children 4 and under are admitted free. Call 313-982-6001 or go to thehenryford.org.

Preps to start

The first practices of the 2015-16 school year provide an opportunity for reminders on the importance of athletes remaining refreshed during the hottest days of training.

Practices begin for approximately 110,000 student-athletes taking part in eight sports in which the MHSAA sponsors postseason tournaments this week.

Football practice can begin Monday, followed by all other fall sports Wednesday.

The MHSAA helps member schools prepare for hot weather practice and game conditions.

Those resources are available on the MHSAA.com Health & Safety web page at www.mhsaa.com.

This will be the second season for football practice changes to promote heat acclimatization and limit helmet-to-helmet contact.

"There's been a lot of attention focused on football regarding head safety, but the fact is all school sports need attention to the safety of student-athletes," MHSAA Executive Director Jack Roberts said. "We're addressing all sports at all levels. We're trying to communicate to the public that school sports really are safer than ever."

Lions treat area crowd to fun-filled night

Team's practice draws huge turnout at Novi High; crowd estimated at 7,500

By Brad Emons

For many, it was the closest glimpse they'll ever get watching their beloved Detroit Lions.

Novi Wildcat Stadium was the happening place Wednesday night as more than 7,500 fans screamed for their favorite Lions players as they went through their normal training camp practice paces, which included one-on-one drills, individual drills, seven-on-seven, 11-on-11 and special teams work.

Lions head coach Jim Caldwell addressed the crowd prior to the start of the 7:30 p.m. practice, which was open to the public, by saying, "Thanks for allowing the Lions to invade Wildcat Country."

Caldwell then cut practice short just after 9 p.m. on a very pleasant evening.

"It was a great atmosphere, obviously the fans were tremendous, outstanding turnout and great facilities," he said afterward. "We got in every single rep that we intended to give. It moved at a real good pace and did a nice job."

Caldwell also addressed the Novi football squad in the high school field house prior to the start of practice.

"He talked about staying humble and making sure you take care of your academics and studying," Novi varsity coach Jeff Burnside said. "He talked to the kids about when you get to the pro level, you get a book this thick every week that you've got to know inside-and-out and you guys need to get used to that stuff now."

"He talked about having motivation, the intrinsic motivation to do your stuff every single day. And finally, play with a lot of passion. Play this game with passion. It was good and he did a really nice job tying some things together."

Former area preps

The Novi training camp practice was also a homecoming of sorts for two rookie free agents with local ties - kicker/punter Kyle Brindza via Plymouth High School and Notre Dame and running back Desmond Martin, who starred at Redford Thurston High and Wayne State.

Brindza brings versatility to camp.

Known for having a big leg, the 6-foot, 239-pound Brindza punted, kicked field goals and handled kickoff duties for Notre Dame the last two seasons. Last season, he was 20-of-24 kicking field goals and averaged 41.5 yards per punt.

"They're looking at me for all three," Brindza said. "It's going very well. It's a great experience for me. Transition was pretty easy for me from Notre Dame to here just because of the maturity and the professional atmosphere. And it was great to be able to make my dreams come true."

Brindza hopeful

Although it may be tough to unseat veteran kicker Matt Prater, a nine-year vet and Pro Bowl player who in the off-season signed a three-year, $9 million contract, along with third-year punter Sam Martin, Brindza hopes to make other NFL teams take notice.

"It's just being consistent and understanding it's a business, because any day you can be cut," Brindza said. "Just keep doing what you're doing and being consistent with it."

In 2010, when Plymouth made its run to the MHSAA Division 1 state championship game at Ford Field, Brindza remembers when his team edged host Novi, 25-22, on a last-second field goal during a regular-season game.

"I played here once when I was a senior when we went to the state championship," Brindza said. "I actually had a 37-yarder, right hash (mark). I remember it vividly for a game-winner."

One of eight backs

The 6-0, 221-pound Martin is also a longshot among eight running backs in camp. Second-round pick Ameer Abdullah (Nebraska) got the lion's share of the carries Wednesday night.

During his senior year at Wayne State, Martin rushed for a team-best 1,640 yards (143.5 per game) on 287 carries.

He scored 16 touchdowns and averaged 5.7 per carry, second in school history behind Lions running back Joique Bell, another Wayne State product who is currently on the PUP (physically unable to perform) list.

During his WSU career, Martin rushed for 1,853 yards and 32 touchdowns.

Martin has picked Bell's brain more than a few times during the early stages of training camp.

"Coming in, he told me, 'You're going to go through some things, especially because you're undrafted,'" Martin said of Bell. "It's about fighting through that, your attitude and your work ethic and just how you go about your business."

"That's mainly what he told me because he said, 'Everything you're going through, I went through my rookie year. Don't get discouraged because if you do those first two things, the other things will come around for you.'"

Game gets faster

The free agent running back has had to adapt quickly. There was one big eye-opener for Martin, who was born in Portsmouth, Va., before moving to Buffalo and eventually to Detroit as a 16-year-old.

"It's the speed of the game, really. Everything picks up from college," Martin said. "The athletes are better, bigger, faster, stronger. And with that being said, you got to see things faster, you got to move a lot faster."

"Other than that, it's the learning curve, learning the plays and the terminology. But other than that, it's still football."

The size of the training camp practice crowd

The crowd watches Lions players stretch before practice.

Lions players take the field, welcomed by the Bobcats.

at Novi was also an eye-opener.

"It's something definitely I'm not used to," he said. "The last time I saw this big a crowd was the (NCAA Division II) championship game in 2011."

"It's kind of exciting seeing a lot of the fans and seeing first-hand how many people root for the city. And actually being in a position where they're rooting for you, is pretty impressive."

Lions engage fans

After Caldwell blew his whistle to signal the end of practice, Lions players grouped at midfield and then dispersed around the Novi Stadium field to sign autographs.

Naturally, players like Calvin Johnson, Matthew Stafford and Golden Tate III got the most attention.

Even though the Lions don't play their first regular season game until Sunday, Sept. 13 in San Diego, everybody was a winner Wednesday night in Novi.

"This was awesome," Lions tight end Jordan Thompson said. "To see the stands full, to have all the people engaged. They were energetic, they were loud. Great atmosphere for a practice in the evening."

Whether the Lions can duplicate or even surpass last year's 11-5 season and playoff berth is anybody's guess. But Thompson likes the direction the team is headed so far.

"Training camp is good," the second-year tight end from Ohio University said. "We're so far ahead of where we were last year. Second year in the system, the comfort level in the offense and comfort level with my teammates. We're jelling right now and it's a lot of fun to see."

"By mid-afternoon, a few boats began to do a horizon job on us," Benedict said, adding he and his team were starting to lose sight of the front-runners. "You wonder, 'Geez, how are we ever going to catch them? We're so far behind.'"

"They had sailed around the curve of the Earth. We just didn't get to the breeze enough. They shot up the lake and got a substantial lead."

They own the night

Only a veteran group of sailors could overcome that, and the Shape's crew did. It was still a long way to Mackinac Island, so Benedict's team put its experience to work.

Shape had made some gains by late afternoon, but much of the catching up was done that night because of the crew's ability to sail well in the dark.

"Historically, we have put in a strong effort of night sailing," Benedict said. "We're always working hard, but we know it's more of a challenge for everybody at night."

"If we sail our best during the night, we know the chance of gaining is better, because some people don't sail well at night. The one thing that keeps us on our toes and going fast is being able to see the competition and react to them."

"At night, it's easy to lose track of people and not sail your best speeds. We put a lot of effort into making the night a good sail."

Shape takes lead

By mid-day Sunday, Shape had closed the gap and caught the other boats in its class. The race was on now.

It was a huge mental victory, according to Benedict, since every sailor with a cellphone was following the race on the Yellow Brick website.

"They were able to see we were catching up," he said. "When you do catch up, I think it has to be a little demoralizing for them that we came from so far behind to catch them." Shape had opened a lead by the time it reached Alpena, but the second-place boat had pulled alongside Sunday evening. It was a dogfight to finish, according to Benedict.

"We went to work from 8 p.m. to midnight and had a real good shift," he said. "We were able to establish a two-mile lead and hold it for the next four hours - and all was well."

Riding the waves

In addition to harnessing the wind and maintaining boat speed, another important factor is handling waves properly since they can stall a boat, Benedict said.

"If you're crashing into them head-on, it's like a brick wall," he said. "You have to feather your way over them. Cutting them at an angle prevents you from losing a lot of boat speed. "Some have a tendency to trim the sails too hard. In rough conditions, if you ease the sail just a bit, it puts more horsepower into the sail and helps you pound through the waves better."

"We must have been doing that better than other teams. We pulled away pretty quickly. When the wind went light, it wasn't such a concern, because (the closest boat) was two miles behind us now."

"When the wind re-established itself from a different direction, we were able to get the spinaker (main sail) up and it was a fast ride to the finish, about 30 miles."

In Class N - Racing Class, all the boats are similar in design and have the same performance handicap, making the competition a true test of sailing.

Benedict's boat finished in 39 hours, 46 minutes, 25 seconds. It reached Mackinac Island at just past 4:17 a.m. Monday, nearly 51 minutes ahead of the next boat.

Experienced sailors

In addition to Shape's co-owners, the crew included Benedict's son Cameron, Cooper's father Win Cooper Sr., Ed Ely, Northville's Rick Birdsall, Steve Bradley and Dale McNabb.

The team has been together since 2010, and most of the men have sailed an average of 25 Mackinac races. This was the elder Benedict's 29th; his son started in 2005 at the age of 12.

The crew works in four-man, four-hour shifts. A lot more goes into a successful race than just sailing the boat, however.

"We're super-disciplined in terms of sleeping when we're off shift," Benedict said. "We're eating frequently and hydrating all the time. If you don't have those three elements, you're going to run into trouble, even in calm conditions."

"A lot of crews get very excited and motivated on Saturday, so they stay up and don't sleep. They're out in the sun the whole time and not hydrating. By the second night, they're toast."

"We consume tons of calories because your core is always balancing you and eating up calories, and you don't even know it. We continue to feed and hydrate ourselves, and those are huge details for success."

When it comes to operating the boat and doing all the right things, every man knows his role and responsibilities, too.

"A whole lot of things get done without even saying a word," Benedict said. "We do communicate a lot, but you don't have to say a lot for things to get done. Experience is a valuable characteristic for doing well."

Fine time on lake

Except for a brief squall the first afternoon, the weather was good and the experience enjoyable, other than some anxious moments early in the race.

"It was almost boring, strategically," Benedict said. "There was a great deal of consistency."

"We ended up sailing the rhumb line - the shortest distance from Port Huron, hugging the shore at Alpena and around the top of the mitten."

"There was nothing real significant. On the last night, we had some wave action we had to bust through, but they were only a couple feet tall. Just enough to be a nuisance."

"The nights were beautiful with clear skies. As you can imagine, it's very dark out there. There were all kinds of shooting stars. It was just fantastic to see."

'Still a great run'

Overall, this was Benedict's 11th Mackinac victory in class. Shape also finished first in the entire Division II Shore Course last year. It was 15th this year.

"If we didn't have the light wind at the start, we probably would have been close to the top again," Benedict said. "With that said, we still had a great run and were in the hunt again for the overall thing."

If the winds had been more favorable early in the race, Shape might have led from start to finish and won by 10 miles, he added.

"I'd like to put myself in that position next time, so I can relax a little more and enjoy the sail to the finish," Benedict said.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Harrison hoops star chooses SIU Salukis

By Dan O'Meara Staff Writer

From the time Kristen Nelson entered Harrison High School as a heralded freshman basketball player, everyone knew she would eventually play at the next level.

Nelson made it known Wednesday exactly where that will be, announcing her decision to accept a scholarship offer from Southern Illinois University.

The 5-foot-9 point guard has been one of the top players in Oakland County for three seasons and a perennial selection to the all-Observer girls team.

Nelson chose Southern Illinois, an NCAA Division I institution in Carbondale, Ill., over Eastern Michigan, Detroit Mercy and Illinois-Chicago.

"I got to spend time with the team and hang out with them on my official visit," Nelson said. "That sealed the deal for me, because I got to know the players I'll be playing with and got to talk with some seniors from this year."

"They gave me a lot of comments about SIU and the coaching staff and how much of a family-oriented university Southern Illinois is."

Coaching staff

One of the coaches who recruited Nelson is associate head coach Andrea Gorski, the former coach at Livonia Ladywood High School and Concordia University in Ann Arbor.

SIU head coach Cindy Stein's personality played a major role in winning Nelson over to the Salukis, too.

"She's a very fiery coach, but she also allows the team to joke around and be themselves," Nelson said. "She got on the players when she needed to and also found time to have fun with them, too."

Nelson has pondered the question of which school to choose for quite some time. She described the recruiting and decision-making process as grueling.

"I had a good relationship with all the schools and coaching staffs," she said. "Just choosing one school and losing out on aspects of other schools made it a bit tougher."

"I had a lot of fun during the process and built a lot of relationships, but I can say I'm happy it's over."

"It's a big relief. Now, I can focus on my senior year and finishing out my education at Harrison."

Unanimous choice

Nelson has enjoyed strong support from her parents, Shaun and Kimberly Nelson, throughout her basketball career and the task of choosing a college. All agreed SIU was a good place for her.

"They've been recruiting me for a while," Nelson said of the Salukis.

"My parents and I decided SIU would be OK for them, because it's such a great program. They trust the coaching staff and it's a safe environment."

"My dad has had conversations with the coaches. 'Would they be willing to play some games closer?' They said it's definitely a possibility, and they're looking into scheduling games with teams in the (Mid-American Conference)."

The Salukis are members of the Missouri Valley Conference, which has an outstanding reputation for the quality of basketball it plays.

"They're a run-and-gun type team," Nelson said. "They like to get up and down the court as quickly as possible. I think I'll do really well in that system, and that's a system I enjoy, too."

A talented player

Though she's a point guard, Nelson does much more than just distribute the ball. Because of her height and all-round ability, she can do it all on the court.

She averaged 14.4 points, five assists, four rebounds, three steals and two blocks per game as a junior last season.

Nelson led the Hawks in total points, free throws made, free-throw percentage, assists, steals and blocks. She was second in rebounds.

She also has the school record for career assists and is second in career steals. She ranks seventh in career points and fourth in career blocks.

"Coach Stein told me they definitely want me to be a point guard, but they also want me to play some two guard and play off the ball sometimes," Nelson said. "She told me they like my ability to shoot and get to the rim and also my court vision."

SIU's current point guard, Rishonda Napier, has two seasons of eligibility remaining. The Salukis list no other point guards on their 2015-16 roster.

"Coach Stein told me I'm a program changer, the type of player she's looking to build the program around," Nelson said.

"She said she has no problem with playing freshmen. Basically, I should be looking to play a lot if I work hard and be aggressive."

Blues end successful season on high note

The South Farmington Blues enjoyed another successful season on the travel baseball circuit, winning a pair of Kensington Valley Baseball & Softball Association championships and numerous tournaments.

In their inaugural season, the 9U Blues won the KVBSA Community Division with a 19-1 record and finished 31-4-1 overall.

They won the FAAST Early Bird Tournament at Eastern Michigan University in April and the New Lothrop Diamond Days Tournament in July.

Another champion

The 13U Blues won their fourth consecutive championship in the KVBSA Advanced West Division with an 18-2 record. Overall, they were 29-9.

Their season featured a first-place finish in the Blues USSSA Invitational in June and a runner-up finish in the USSSA Spring Warm-Up in April.

The 13U Blues also were semifinalists in the USSSA Global Sports Baseball World Series in Rockford.

Near-miss for 11U

The 11U Blues missed winning their third straight title in the KVBSA Open Division by a half-game, finishing with a 12-6 record.

The Blues did win championships in June at the Hoosier Baseball Classic in Fort Wayne, Ind., and the Blues USSA Invitational at Founders Sports Park.

Despite a rocky 6-10 start, the 12U Blues turned their season around and finished with a 24-15 record.

Along the way, the 12U Blues won three tournaments - Slug It Out of the Yard in Waterford, Southfield May Showdown and Wolves Summer Blast in Farmington Hills.

The 12U Blues also competed last week in the nationally recognized Cooperstown Dreamspark Tournament in New York.

Other highlights

The 10U Blues won their age group in the Slug It Out of the Yard tourney in March and were runners-up in the mid-May Rebels Spring Warm-Up in Rockford.

In June tournament play, the 15U Blues finished second in the Ta-was Sunrise Summer Slam and won the Cavalier Diamond Classic.

Expert on walking brings health message to Plymouth

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Robert Sweetgall has walked across the United States seven times.

The former chemical engineer hiked all 50 states in less than a year during the mid-1980s, ran marathons and logged thousands of miles on foot following the country's perimeter.

"Back in the day, running marathons was punishment and I needed days of rest. When I did the walks across America I was in my 30s. I'm older and wiser," said Sweetgall, 67, who leads wellness programs through his company, Creative Walking, Inc. "I do some type of physical activity every day. I don't take days off. I don't do things that punish the body.

SUBMITTED
Robert Sweetgall will talk about walking Aug. 19 in Plymouth.

"You don't have to get extreme with this stuff. Just moving adds lots of benefit."

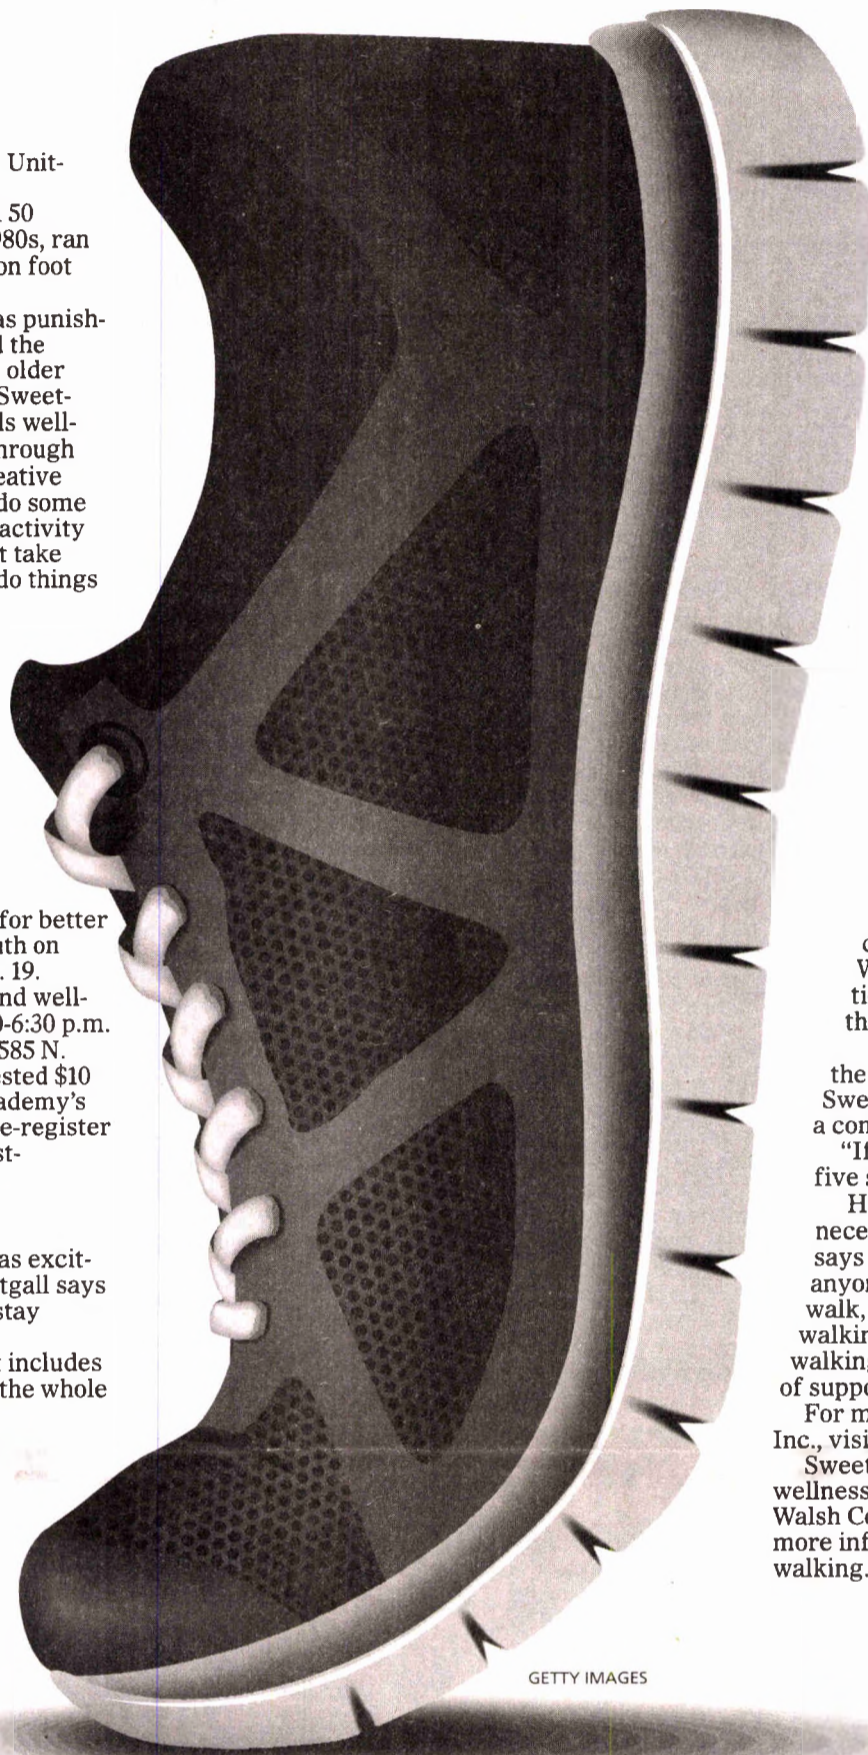

The Idaho-based walking guru will bring his prescription for better health to Plymouth on Wednesday, Aug. 19.

Sweetgall, author of 19 books on walking and wellness, will present Motivation to Move, 4:30-6:30 p.m. at Metropolitan Adventist Jr. Academy, 15585 N. Haggerty, Plymouth. Admission is a suggested $10 donation, with proceeds benefiting the Academy's community health and wellness events. Pre-register by calling 248-446-9176 or email holidaytasting@gmail.com.

Disease prevention

A walk around the block may not seem as exciting as a hike from coast to coast, but Sweetgall says it's exactly what most Americans need to stay healthy.

"We need to get people moving and that includes children, teachers, adults, senior citizens, the whole country," he said. "We have a big problem in this country with health. We think we can solve it with health care reform. You have health insurance so you don't go medically bankrupt. But you'll die from cancer treatment. In every other country, they put the emphasis on prevention, not on managing disease. America is best on managing disease.

"What we really need is health style reform. The single most important intervention would be for every American to start the day with a simple 10-minute walk."

Sweetgall said that habit should start in classrooms, with teachers modeling the behavior. At home, walking can become a family activity.

"A lot of parents complain about not getting quality communication time with kids. You're not going to get that in the pool or on a bicycle. Doing Zumba isn't exactly oral communication time," he said. "But with walking, you can walk side by side."

Use a pedometer

Sweetgall said Americans simply need a little motivation to make walking a daily habit. He'll offer tips during the workshop that are easy to incorporate into even the busiest schedule. Keeping track of steps starts with a good pedometer.

"You don't have to buy one of those $200 sophisticated Fitbit things. But you shouldn't use a $1 hand-out from a health fair, either." He said research shows pedometers encourage most individuals to take an additional 2,000 steps per day.

"It's about adding a little activity day by day to keep yourself energized and healthy. We tend to spout these unrealistic expectations, like 10,000 steps a day and we turn off the people who need this the most."

Another simple technique is to write down the steps or minutes involved in a daily walk. Sweetgall suggests using a log book rather than a computer, which can be more time-consuming. "If you write in a log book, it takes a whole five seconds."

He recommends buying supportive — not necessarily the most expensive — shoes and says Nordic walking poles are important for anyone interested in taking a more intensive walk, similar to cross country skiing. Nordic walking poles also are useful for individuals with walking challenges because they offer four points of support.

Sweetgall will present information on work site wellness programs from 8:30-11:30 a.m. Aug. 19 at Walsh College in Troy. Call or email Sweetgall for more information at 888-421-9255, robert@creativewalking.com.

On air with know-how to spare: Radio show a lesson in life

Most of you know about my involvement in radio but you probably haven't heard my ant farm guy story. Or about the woman with her hand in the garbage disposal.

Some 20 years ago when I ventured onto the airwaves of WJR, I was doing my regular Saturday morning show with a longtime engineer at the controls. He is the guy who pushes all the buttons and makes sure that everything is done on a schedule. I had a caller who informed me that he had purchased an ant farm and he kept it in the refrigerator. His problem was that the ants had all frozen because the refrigerator had malfunctioned. I didn't have a clue what an ant farm was but I thought I might be able to help him fix the refrigerator.

Joe Gagnon
APPLIANCE
DOCTOR

Before I could go any further, the caller made some very rude remark about African Americans and hung up. I sat behind the microphone with a blank look and asked the engineer if that conversation had gone over the air and he replied that it had. He said that he had not pushed the time-delay button and was amazed that someone could be so rude and say such a thing. It was just before the noon broadcast of news so I had a six-minute break during which time the program director called me and told me not to respond to this caller when I came back on the air. Six minutes later, I came back on the air and invited the caller to meet in the lobby of the Fisher Building at 1 p.m. I wanted to discuss his problem in person but he never did show up.

The lady doing the news broadcast that day came rushing into the studio during break and was worried that he might be carrying a weapon and was concerned for me. Needless to say, I'm still here and I never did get a chance to fill in the caller. The result of all this was that the engineer was let go and I have felt guilt all these years. It is the rule in radio that the delay button should always be on as it provides a way out for the engineer to react when something is said that is unforgiving. The very reason that callers are always told to shut off their radios while they are on hold.

Disposal danger

Then there was the lady who called to tell me her garbage disposer wasn't operating. She was sitting on the kitchen counter and had her hand inside trying to get it to turn but all it did was make a humming sound. I screamed at her to get her hand out of the disposer as it could start running at any moment and would surely take off a few fingers. That is the reason why most disposers come with an Allen wrench that fits into a slot on the very bottom of the disposer. Should it jam up, that's where a homeowner can start with repairs.

Back to the subject of the U.S. Department of Energy in Washington, which is going a little too far with energy guidelines. This time, it's the dishwasher's water consumption. They want to reduce the typical six gallons per load to 3.1 gallons per load and the manufacturers are objecting quite vehemently. General Electric and Whirlpool are stating that consumers will have to put the dishwasher through two or three cycles to get the same results as today and that is not going to reduce water consumption and costs. The energy department is allowing more time to pass so further discussion can occur. As far as I am concerned you can talk until you are blue in the face, but it does no good.

The department has made many decisions on appliances that are not enhancing to energy savings. Some women, for example, have told me that they have to fill their new washers with a hose hooked up to a faucet at the laundry room sink. It's all to get hot water, hot enough to kill bacteria into the washing machine.

It won't be long before we revert to an aluminum tub and a scrub board.

Joe Gagnon can be heard at 8 a.m. Saturdays on WAAM 1600. You can email your questions to appldr@twmi.rr.com.

LYME DISEASE

Summer. Now is the time for walking in the woods and overnight camping; people bring themselves and their children close to nature. A physician might suggest get near to nature but not too close. Remember that summer in the woods brings the risk of Lyme Disease.

Lyme Disease is an infection carried by a tick. The tick has an intricate life cycle in wooded areas that depends on the tick feeding off the blood of a deer. Dropping on and feeding off of a human is a chance event but happens often enough to cause 35,000 cases a year in the U.S., with 170 cases reported in Michigan.

The infection starts with a rash at the site of the tick bite and progresses into a fever of 101 degrees or more for 2-3 days. Then the person feels achy and ill like the flu, but that clears. However, headache and neck ache appear and loss of facial symmetry as happens in a stroke may occur. These changes are the result of the Lyme infection.

Six or seven weeks after the tick bite, the person may find themselves tiring easily and short of breath. A heart examination at that time will show the heart is beating too slowly and irregularly. The Lyme infection is the cause of this change in the heart's conduction system. Still later the person will feel aching in the muscles accompanied by knee pain and swelling because of fluid in the knee.

This combination of nerve involvement, heart disturbance and arthritis defines Lyme Disease and leads the doctor to order tests that confirm the diagnosis and to antibiotic treatment that resolves the disease.

Chronic Lyme Disease does not exist.

Start planning now for a secure retirement

It was the end of the day when I pulled in the local pharmacy to pick up a prescription.

Eager to get home after a long tiring day, I hurried into the store and headed straight for the pick-up counter. When I turned the corner of the aisle, I stopped short. The line was five-deep ... and growing. What was the hold up? I took my place in line as fidgeting customers ahead of me grumbled impatiently. What was taking so long?

As I stood there, my eyes focused on the small figure at the counter, an elderly woman stooped over the counter speaking quietly with the clerk.

Although low, her unsteady voice could be heard

Paula Swain
GUEST COLUMNIST

faintly over the growing crowd as she looked up with imploring eyes.

"What am I going to do?" she asked. "I need to have those ... is there any way I could just buy enough to get me through until I see my doctor again?"

The clerk picked up a calculator and began working some figures.

The line grew quiet as it became clear that this woman did not have enough money to pay for her prescription. Even worse, it appeared it was medication that she desperately needed.

I stood staring at the reality of the situation overcame me. The realization hit me that this woman was not alone. I was certain that there were many like her, unable to pay for the basics to survive.

The pharmacy scene stayed with me throughout the evening, replaying endlessly in my head. And over the years it has played again and again — a solid reminder of the reason that I changed the course of my life and began a career as a financial consultant.

Retirement planning now

As owner and president of Swain Financial LLC, my goal is to provide solutions to individuals, professionals and business owners to help maximize their wealth. My focus is set on helping clients preserve their capital and increase their income, while maintaining their independence in retirement.

After 15 years of helping clients throughout the metro Detroit area, it is clear to me that most people are adept at managing their careers and families and much more, but many are not prepared to manage their own financial future.

Focusing on the here and now; putting out the daily fires in our professional and personal lives leaves little extra time to plan for the future. But, lack of time does not diminish the importance of learning how to manage your money so that you can potentially retire in comfort.

The key is to start planning now. Learn how to set solid goals and understand how you can improve your financial habits. Good financial planning, decisions and habits build to work towards financial success over time.

My message in life and through this column is aimed directly at you. I am dedicated to walking you through the steps that you need to take control of your financial future and prepare you for retirement.

Farmington Hills hair salon beauty day supports ChildSafe

The Studio for Hair in Farmington Hills recently raised $6,300 for ChildSafe Michigan. That brings the Studio's total to over $70,000 in the seven years that they have been holding the day-long Beauty for a Benefit where all of the hair stylists, manicurists and massage therapists donate their time and talents to raising money for ChildSafe.

ChildSafe Michigan, located in Royal Oak, provides adoption and foster care services in southeastern Michigan. It is dedicated primarily to youth in foster care ages 7-23.

"We feel it is so important to help the kids in our community," said Studio co-owner Tasha Schurgin, a Huntington Woods resident.

Graduate of City College NYC, University of Wisconsin, and Wayne State University. Honored psychologist, psychiatrist, professor, researcher, leader for more than 50 years. Gifted amateur violinist who played once at Carnegie Hall NYC, also played clarinet and saxophone in swing bands in 1940s NYC. Explored all kinds of hobbies, traveled widely. Laid to rest at Adat Shalom Memorial Park.

LESTER, JANICE RUTH

61 years old, died in the early hours of Sunday, August 2nd, 2015, in Farmington Hills, Michigan, after a long journey with early onset Alzheimer's disease. In the afternoon and evening preceding her death, she was surrounded with family and friends she loved and who loved her right back. Jan was born on March 20th, 1954, to the late Edward and Virginia Lester. She was the middle sister of three girls, Denise, and the late Cheryl. After graduating from Wayne Memorial High School in 1972, she eventually made her way through LPN and Registered Nurse's training, spending most of her long career as a pediatric and mother-baby nurse at Annapolis Hospital. She truly loved her coworkers, as well as her calling as a nurse, and frequently went far beyond the job requirements to make life better for one and all. Jan was well known for her sense of humor and love of laughter. She had an infectious smile, and the biggest, kindest heart to match. She knew that love and humor worked hand in hand with medicine to heal, and she was endlessly generous in dispensing both of them. Jan was also the consummate Nana and Aunt, dotting on the children she felt blessed to have in her life. There was never a moment that they didn't believe they were the ones who were blessed. Jan also loved to travel, and spent many fun vacations with family members in West Virginia, visiting her big Sister in northern California, and taking an especially memorable cruise through Alaska. Her favorite vacations in Michigan were always up north to Ludington, on Lake Michigan during the autumn colors. Early on, after her diagnosis, she requested that she eventually be taken to that beautiful place, following her cremation. Her surviving family members include: Sister: Denise (Diane Nolan), Son: James (Tiffany) Grandchildren: Quinn and Jamie, Niece and Nephew: Julia and Ian, Aunt: Janice (Dick Copus), Cousins: Debbie Copus Puckett (Craig), Charles Copus Jr. (Dorthea), and Marcie Copus Wright (Brant). Jan had many friends whose lives she touched with her joy, kindness and humor. Carol and Dave Balge of Westland, Michigan were especially steadfast at seeing Jan through her illness. On a beautiful autumn day in early October, Jan's ashes will be taken to Ludington, where we will say our final goodbyes and remember her life. She would have loved knowing that her ever present attributes of kindness and friendship might remind each of us to share those special gifts with others in our daily life.

Play it smart: Manage your AFib risk for better health

Approximately 1.5 million American women live with atrial fibrillation, a heart disorder commonly known as "AFib" that can lead to deadly or life-impairing stroke. For an undiagnosed woman living with AFib, knowing symptoms and risk factors can help mitigate this serious health threat. Women living with AFib can also take steps to manage this condition and their risk for stroke.

AFib is a heart rhythm disorder in which the atria — the two upper chambers of the heart — beat rapidly and irregularly. Women with AFib are more likely than men with AFib to have a stroke. And, after the age of 75, an overwhelming majority of people with AFib — 60 percent — are women.

Diagnosing the condition

Up to a third of women with AFib don't feel symptoms. Others feel tired and experience heart palpitations, which may feel like a fluttering or flopping sensation in the chest or the feeling that the heart is beating too quickly. A woman experiencing AFib may also feel dizzy or short of breath. Some feel chest pain or feel faint.

Certain health and lifestyle risk factors make women more susceptible to AFib. Along with age and an existing heart condition, high blood pressure and obesity are major risk factors. Women who drink more than 10 ounces of alcohol a day are also at risk. Other risk factors include diabetes, overactive thyroid, high blood pressure, sleep apnea, lung disease, smoking, caffeine and stress. With or without elevated risk factors, a woman experiencing symptoms should schedule a consultation with a doctor to determine if these symptoms are caused by AFib.

Living with AFib

Women living with AFib can manage their condition and associated risk for stroke by adopting healthy lifestyle behaviors. Increasing physical activity, adopting a diet that is low in fat, sodium and cholesterol, avoiding alcohol, and moderating stress and blood pressure levels are all necessary to manage AFib and avoid more serious health problems. AFib patients should choose caffeine-free coffee and herbal tea over caffeinated drinks. Moderate exercise, such as walking, biking, swimming, yoga and strength training, combined with good hydration, can significantly improve AFib symptoms and reduce stroke risk.

Isolation is a common feeling for women living with AFib. Resources such as WomenHeart's new Virtual Support Network can help address the need for education and emotional and psychosocial support for women living with AFib. The Network is free and open to all women living with AFib and their caregivers.

What to know about video conference calls

BY SUSAN RICKER CAREERBUILDER

Today's technological advances have given us the ability to talk to and see anybody around the world. It has drastically changed how we do business. But with the capabilities of video conference calls come the common questions about how to best host a video meeting.

Roy Cohen, career coach and author of "The Wall Street Professional's Survival Guide," says, "Remember that the purpose of a video meeting is to achieve efficiencies in productivity, to minimize logistical challenges and to bring together a group of people who may not, under any other circumstances, have the opportunity to assemble. It is an amazing resource. That is why everyone should remove any potential for distraction."

Here's what you should know about video conference calls — including proper etiquette and how to determine whether it's the right meeting format.

Don't multitask during meetings

When your schedule starts filling up with meetings, it can be tempting to bring your laptop or phone to check work or finish a small task while you're sitting on the conference call. This is especially true when everybody else seems to be on their devices.

"With a video conference call, it is easier to multitask and to not devote your full attention to the meeting's agenda," Cohen says. "With access to (phones and mobile devices), the potential exists to 'sneak' other work. Not good or fair to your employer and colleagues who get your partial attention."

Remember, too, that since you're on video, those on the other end of the line can potentially see that you're doing other work. Beyond making you look unprofessional, it can appear as though you're not interested in what they have to say.

Be considerate about scheduling

If you're the one responsible for scheduling the video conference call, keep the participants' schedules in mind when choosing start and end times. The common reason why you would choose a video conference call is because you're meeting with people who live in different geographical areas, so you have to be cognizant of how the timing of your meeting may impact their day.

Cohen says, "Video conference calls are amazing in that they offer the opportunity to bring together people globally. The challenge is to accommodate time differences so that participation is not a burden. Typically, calls should be scheduled for end of day or at the very beginning."

Hosting in person vs. on video

How should you choose whether to host a video conference call versus an in-person interaction? Look to what you're trying to achieve. A video conference call might be a better option than a regular meeting or conference call because, as Cohen says, "There is a sense of urgency and a need to take action immediately. Video allows you to assemble resources and people fast. They also allow for more junior people to participate — those folks who for budgetary reasons are not necessarily included in in-person meetings."

However, sometimes in-person interactions are necessary to get a business objective accomplished. In these cases, video conference calls may not be the best choice. Cohen says such instances might include "when the meeting is scheduled to address a problem and/or accountability; video allows for a more forceful message to be delivered. Also, when the purpose of assembly is to facilitate team and organizational bonding, that can rarely happen virtually."

A video conference call is an efficient way to gather people together from different locations, saving time and money. Just make sure to cover all of your bases when organizing and conducting the meeting and you'll ensure your next video conference call is a success.

Scion Embarks on Upswing with Two New Models, More Practical Focus

By Dale Buss

The Scion auto brand has been in turmoil nearly since Toyota introduced it in 2003 as an off-beat line of small vehicles aimed at Generation X and the young "tuner" crowd that "Toyota Classic" wasn't reaching with its own nameplates. Experimentation was designed into the DNA of Scion. While Scion has its moments, it also has been on a sales roller coaster in recent years, including a 19-percent drop just this year in the midst of Scion's transition to new vehicles, and as it battles headwinds such as the plateauing of gasoline prices and its lack of any crossover-utility model. It may sell only about 50,000 units this year. So give Toyota group vice president Doug Murtha the benefit of the doubt when he displays some optimism about where the brand goes from here. Among other things, Scion is introducing two new models this year: iA, Scion's first sedan, and the iM hatchback — which will replace some retiring nameplates. Murtha also promises another all-new vehicle within two years. In order to reposition Scion in consumers' minds, Toyota is refreshing its brand identity. Today's twenty-somethings and thirty-somethings, the millennial generation, are more pragmatic than Gen X, research shows, and thus more interested in vehicles that are well-designed but also practical. And by and large they aren't as interested in customization as the Scion buyer of a decade ago. "We're having to shift to the evolved priorities and realities of today's market," Murtha told me. Here's what else he has to say about the outlook for the rebooted Scion: Q: It's been tough sledding for you since you took the helm of Scion, hasn't it? Doug Murtha: My previous position was in product planning for Toyota, Lexus and Scion, and I came into [the top Scion job] nearly three years ago. I knew we were in for a spell without any new products and with the difficulties of the parent company. We lost out on some timing of new models as Toyota reallocated engineering resources to quality assurance, which everyone supported. So we had to maintain relevance to consumers and dealers anyway. And with the new products coming now and within two years, this is what we asked them to hold out for. Q: And how about your dealers, whose patience you've sought as they've waited for you to fill out the product lineup with worthy new vehicles again? Murtha: In 2013 we told them we'd understand if they needed to back away from their support of the brand because of lack of product. We were starting to hear from some of them that they hadn't really bought into our lineup or brand but they were sticking with it just to stay in the good graces of Toyota. So we wanted to make sure that this wasn't the reason for any of them to continue to participate in Scion. At a dealer meeting we basically said, "If you don't think it makes sense for you, don't feel obligated to stay in." We did lose a few after that, but we also gained a number of new stores, and

The 2016 Scion iA

net-net our dealer count has changed by only two dealers in that time, and so we still have just over 1,000 dealers. They understand that there will be some rough going ahead. But we're getting there. Q: Who is Scion's target customer now? Murtha: The mindset of that target has evolved to the more conventional and more mainstream. We're appealing to the consumer who doesn't have a ton of disposable income, so there is enough of a market to go after even though we're all passenger cars in a market where light trucks are the hottest thing. Q: So what kind of vehicles are millennials interested in? Murtha: Our research tells us there isn't a strong interest in vehicles that are shocking and off the radar. But when they look at the Toyota Corolla, these young consumers say it's a nice car, but because we sell so many of them, they're not much interested in that. They want to drive something out of the norm and that is their expression of individuality. They want a dose of something polarizing in all of our vehicles — and that has been part of our brand from the start — but there aren't large amounts of interest (by consumers) in going to the end of the quirky-spectrum anymore.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
