Mary Breen, whose career in education in Wayne County spanned more than 50 years, is being remembered as a positive, outgoing woman who retained an air of authority befitting a public school principal.

Mrs. Breen, 82, a longtime Plymouth Township resident, died Dec. 27 after battling health problems for several

She had been a teacher, school administrator and a longtime Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees member, serving on the board from 1983 to 2011. She was family-oriented, loved to cook and travel and was proud of her Italian heritage, said a daughter, Moira Haas.

"She was just a very, very friendly, personable person," said her husband, Maurice Breen, a former Plymouth Township trustee and supervisor. "She just never got mad at anybody. She was a people person.'

The 34th annual Plymouth Ice Festival opened Friday afternoon as a slippery, sloppy mess.

With a persistent drizzle and a temperature near 40 degrees, sculptures in Kellogg Park were melting before they were finished. A high of 45 degrees was predicted for Saturday and a cooling trend, with a 33-degree high, for Sunday.

Carver Ditto — he goes by just one name — said he needed markedly colder weather.

LaJoy lauds staff for tornado response

Phil LaJoy is proud of Canton Township employees' reactions to the Dec. 23 tornado.

"There was no warning whatsoever," said LaJoy, township supervisor since 2008 and a former state representative. "The good news is no one was hurt."

About 24 Canton businesses suffered damage, he told members and guests of the Plymouth Rotary on Friday, Jan. 8. "We had people working on Christmas Eve," he said. "Our emergency management procedures went well. You always have to be ready.'

Mrs. Breen's career in education included stints in adult education in the Detroit Public Schools. five years with the Dearborn Public Schools, five years with the Wayne-Westland Community Schools and 18 years with the Livonia Public Schools, for which she taught at Riley, then a junior high school, and was principal at Frost, also a junior high, and an assistant principal at several schools, including Stevenson and Churchill high schools. She retired from the district in 1986.

Haas said she remembers accompanying her mother to work on occasion.

"It seemed like the students really liked her," she said. "They would tell me how much they loved my mom."

Mrs. Breen earned a master of arts in educational leadership from Eastern Michigan University in 1976.

Schoolcraft, Haas said, was her mother's passion.

said. Mrs. Breen kept up with developments at Schoolcraft even after she stepped down from the board, she added.

Conway Jeffress, Schoolcraft's president, said Mrs. Breen was very helpful to him and acted as the board's unofficial liaison with the larger community as well as an advocate for the college's teaching staff.

"She was fun, but at the same time she was a solid thinker. Straightforward," Jeffress said. She was on the board during a time when the college was undertaking a lot of building projects, he said.

While easy to talk to and equipped with a good sense of humor, Mrs.

Breen also had firm ideas and a certain way of presenting them, Jeffress added.

"She had a way of dealing with things like she was still in the principal's chair," he said.

Mrs. Breen obtained her real estate license in 1986 and worked in that field for many years. She had also been involved with homeowners groups in Plymouth Township and in many educational organizations. She had attended St. Kenneth and Our Lady of Good Counsel, both in the township, and most recently Brightmoor Christian Church in Novi.

In addition to her husband and daughter Moira and her husband, Thomas

Haas, Mrs. Breen is survived by another daughter, Melinda Hale of Farmington Hills; a son, Maurice Breen II of West Hollywood, Calif.; five grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews.

A memorial service, officiated by the Rev. Tim Gambino of Brightmoor Christian Church, is planned for 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 6, in the DiPonio Room at Schoolcraft's VisTaTech Center, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia. Flowers can be delivered there between 10:15 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. Feb 6.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions can be made to a scholarship fund, the Mary Breen Award of Excellence. Mail checks to: Schoolcraft College Foundation, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia, MI 48152, and note the Mary Breen Award of Excellence on the memo line.

Contributions can also be made online by going

Local artist Roko lends his talent to create Atwater Brewery identity

Plymouth-area artist Tony Roko has designed new, colorful labels - to be rolled out this month - for Detroit's Atwater Brewery.

The new marketing effort, brand identity and labeling, "Atwater Brewery. Born in Detroit. Raised Everywhere," features Roko's work with a personal style, using the commercial sensibility of Toulouse-Lautrec with a van-Gogh-esque pallet, a couple of Roko's favorite artists.

Roko's recent accomplishments include commissions for Lady Gaga, Jay Leno and Ford Motor Co.

The new branding is concurrent with the introduction of three new Atwater brews – Going Steady IPA, a grapefruit session ale that "rocks any situation while keeping you rock steady,' Corktown Rye IPA, a spicy, sweet, bitter aromatic rye malt with a caramel backbone, and Tunnel Ram, an imperial bock that Atwater calls "the big block of big "Craft brewing is becoming a big business, but it's a business about good times. Brewing it and coming up with these new flavors and personalities is part of the fun," Atwater Brewery owner Mark Rieth said. "We've been all about Detroit since we brewed our first German-styled lagers 18 years ago and said we wanted to 'bring Detroit everywhere.' We're now doing that with distribution in 27 states and Canada and still growing. Now we're focused on making sure people remember us and think about us first and that's what these new labels are intended to do." "Craft beer is an art movement in its own right," Roko said. "What started as a single painting for one label for just 40 cases of beer five months ago has turned into designing 26 labels for one of Michigan's most exciting breweries. It's the greatest gig ever drinking Atwater and telling their story. I feel like a young man let loose in a brewery!'

Roko uses an expressive style and tried to match Detroit's colorful characters with individual beer flavors. He plans to frame each final label painting with unique handmade frames made from base moldings reclaimed from abandoned Detroit homes, another of his pet interests.

"Our new brand theme lets consumers know that Atwater brews can be enjoyed anywhere, because they're just damn good beers," Rieth said. "We always say you can take the beer out of Detroit any time you want, but you can't take our Detroit pride out of the beer."

Driven Solutions, a communications and branding agency, worked with Atwater and Roko on the theme and its correlating packaging. "Each beer has its own unique personality and profile, so we proposed the idea of creating a character for each beer in the portfolio," said Brian Cusac, Driven's principal and chief creative officer. "The most important thing a craft brewer can offer a customer is authenticity. We feel that Atwater provides this in spades by staying true to the types of beers they like to make and by never forgetting their Detroit roots. This campaign is simply a reflection of this culture."

Atwater beers are available at craft brew retailers and at Atwater's two locations in the Detroit area – Atwater in the Park in Grosse Pointe Park and Atwater Biergarten and Tap House in Detroit. The brewery is set to open its second Atwater Biergarten and Tap House in

Heise honored by state bar association

Kurt Heise, the area's representative in the Michigan House of Representatives, was honored Thursday by the State Bar of Michigan's family law section as the family law legislator of the year.

Carol Breitmeyer. chairwoman of the family law section, and Kent Weichmann, the section's legislative chairman, hosted a luncheon in Heise's honor and cited the third-term legislator's focus on family law.

"Again and again, Kurt Heise has proven a thoughtful advocate for smart, compassionate legislation," Breitmeyer said in a press release. "From sponsoring legislation creating standards for parenting time coordinators to leading the enactment of the Uniform Child Abduction Prevention Act, Rep. Heise has put his legal and executive experience behind the passage of numerous family-focused legal reforms.'

Heise, a Republican and Plymouth Township resident, is term-limited in the House and has announced plans to run for Plymouth Township supervisor in this year's election. He said he was humbled by the recognition.

"I am grateful for this honor and to have been given the opportunity to enact meaningful changes on behalf of Michigan families," said Heise, chairman of the House criminal justice committee. "Safe, successful families are the foundation of good communities."

Heise's 20th District includes Plymouth and Plymouth and Northville townships, part of the city of Northville and part of Canton Township.

The volunteers and students had a great time interacting with each other and many unforgettable memories were made. At the end of the day, each student at Roberto Clemente was given a special toy as a present. These toys were graciously donated by members of National Honor Society

NHS continued a five-year partnership with Bridgepointe, a group dedicated to bridging the gap between Detroit and the suburbs. The event was planned and hosted by a group of National Honor Society members: Lisa Zhang, Nidhi Patel, Bri Griffin, Mitch Gonzalez and Dylan Dwyer, who chose to host several events throughout the year at the academy as their service project for this year. Last October, they hosted a Spanish Cultural Day and will be hosting a DIA trip in March.

This effort was supported, in part, by a generous grant from Community Financial Summer of Giving campaign.

Teen builds church meditation labyrinth to earn Eagle Scout rank

Darrell Clem Staff Writer

Down the hill from two churches, next to a wooded area, Canton teen Prescott J. Vayda led a team that built a meditation labyrinth where church-goers can find a peaceful place to pray.

"It's a tool for people to connect with God and it gives them a method of prayer that was not previously there for them," Vayda, 18, said. "The idea is that you kind of walk the trail and it's a peaceful place to go."

Vayda's efforts helped him

earn his Eagle Scout rank, culminating a journey that began when he was a first-grade Tiger Cub with Pack 440 at Bentley Elementary

"I'm very proud of him," his father, Alan Vayda, said. "As an Eagle Scout myself, I know how much it means, even as an adult looking back. It's great for him to accomplish this goal."

The younger Vayda, a 2015 graduate of Canton High School, wanted to help St. Aidan's Episcopal Church in Ann Arbor, where he is an active member, and another church, Northside Presbyterian, that shares the same

"I thought it would benefit the churches and be reasonable for an Eagle Scout project," he said.

Vayda enlisted his fellow scouts from Troop 735, based at St. Mary Catholic Church in Wayne, to help build a meditation labyrinth, built of stones and mulch, that is more than 20 feet wide. They finished the project in July, but Vayda's Eagle Court of Honor was set for this Sat-

An aspiring paleontologist,

Prescott J. Vayda earned his Eagle Scout rank with a project to build a church-based meditation labyrinth.

Vayda said he didn't realize how much his project meant to him until he arrived for his freshman year at Ohio State University, where he and a group of students introduced themselves and talked about their lives, including his Eagle Scout project.

"It really tells a lot about me, who I am and how large a part of my life that was," he Vayda has earned 38 merit badges — 17 more than the 21 required for Eagle Scout rank, said his father, who is Troop 735 scoutmaster. Vayda has served in leadership roles, including senior patrol leader and junior assistant scoutmaster. He served as crew leader during the troop's high-adventure backpacking trip in 2014 to Philmont Scout Ranch in Cimarron, N.M. He also is a brotherhood member of the Order of the Arrow.

Vayda also played tuba in the Plymouth-Canton Marching Band and served as section leader for two years. He played in concert band and achieved the highest rating in district and state solo and ensemble competitions. He was a National Merit commended scholar.

His family includes his father, mother Kim Zaugg and a brother Nelson, who is starting to think about his own Eagle service project.

Vayda, an assistant scoutmaster, led a team of 22 volunteers for his Eagle Scout project. The meditation labyrinth has only one path to the center and back out - intended to provide a peaceful, meditative and spiritual experience.

Vayda described himself as "greatly pleased" by the project. "It's pretty awesome."

The concert is set for 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 17, in the Chapel at St. John's, 44045 Five Mile Road, Plymouth.

Featured composer Christopher Cerrone will be visiting from New York for a performance of his piece Recovering. Cerrone has been hailed as "a rising star" by The New Yorker and is the winner of the 2015 Samuel Barber Rome Prize. Recovering features only three musicians technically performing "on stage," while the others will be spread throughout the hall creating a "delicate a haze of breath sounds" surrounding the audience for a unique aural and spatial experi-

U.N. intern credits P-CEP education, diversity in gaining global perspective

Julie Brown
Staff Writer

Patrick Slavens, 27, of Canton thinks his education has served him well.

"I think the Plymouth-Canton schools did a really good job with my writing skills," the 2007 Plymouth High School graduate said. He recently wrapped up an internship at the United Nations in New York City; he found attending the large Plymouth-Canton Educational Park prepared him to meet people from all over the world.

At the U.N., Slavens had co-workers from the Philippines, Greece, Japan and Israel. "You're getting completely different perspectives," he said of working on a common mission. "You all come together and get the work done."

Slavens graduated in 2011 from Albion College with a B.A. in international studies. He earned a master's degree in public policy from California's Pepperdine University, which required an internship.

He's worked three temporary stints at the U.N., this one from August to December 2015.

"I was with the News and Media Division," he said.

"We collect information for what's going on in the General Assembly, the Security Council."

Journalists worldwide

He and co-workers collected documents and statements for media, including foreign press such as the British Broadcasting Corp. and Al Jazeera.

Slavens noted older journalists would pick up printed material, while younger ones used email and especially Twitter "for certain documents. It would be for Security Council resolutions or any reports for agencies."

The U.N. has a number of agencies that issue reports, he explained, and those are often tweeted. "Members of the media could get them a lot easier," he said.

He agreed being young and growing up with social media helped in his work: "I was able to take hold of that, absolutely."

Of the General Assembly, often shown on television news broadcasts, "That was a really impressive place to see," he said.

He liked to eat lunch in the U.N. cafeteria, which handles dietary restrictions for people from around the globe. "You would see people literally from all over the world. So I really liked that," he said.

He would pick up documents from the General Assembly, where the 192 member states make resolutions. "I always felt that was an impressive room to go into," Slavens said.

He saw U.S. President Barack Obama, as well as the prince of Japan. Slavens also entered the Security Council for documents.

"I felt that was a very solemn place," he said. He heard of ISIS, as well as the crisis in Syria and other humanitarian crises. "I felt everyone was taking their job very seriously, which I respected," Slavens said. He had done Model

He had done Model United Nations work in high school and always had that great interest. His goal is a permanent position at the United Nations.

"We'll see what happens," he said, agreeing it's competitive. "You just have to really work at it"

A little sightseeing

In New York City, he was working six or seven days a week. "With News and Media, it never ends. I was able to go out a little bit. It was good food and good transportation," he said.

Housing is expensive in New York City and apartments go quickly, but Slavens managed, although not in palatial digs. "I'm still young," he said with a laugh on his living quarters in the Big Apple.

"A lot of times, they're difficult to achieve," he said of his goals, noting work is worth the effort. Slavens worked in providing documents, rather than as a media spokesman, so can't comment on if the journalism was fair and complete.

"It was interesting to see the results," he said of broadcasts and other journalism. "I was not anywhere near that," he added of media spokesmen and women.

Council, residents express concern over noise on I-275 after construction

David Veselenak Staff Writer

Some issues surrounding noise and I-275 became a sticking point for some Livonia City Council members and residents this past week.

The Michigan Department of Transportation went Monday before the council during its first study meeting of the year to request a waiver of the city's noise ordinance for the upcoming project, scheduled to begin later this spring, to allow for work to take place overnight.

The $80 million project, announced last fall, is expected to begin closing the southbound portion of the freeway sometime in mid- to late April, said Michael Budai, an engineer with MDOT, the agency hoping to award the contract in March and begin some preliminary work shortly after.

The project will see major work done along the freeway from Five Mile in Livonia north through Farmington Hills and ending at the I-96/I-696/M-5 interchange in Novi, as well as some patching along I-696 through Farmington Hills and Southfield.

While not a complete rebuild of the freeway like the I-96 project through Redford and Livonia was, it will consist of several rehabilitation measures such as replacing concrete and bridge improvements, among other fixes.

But many in attendance Monday said they were concerned still over noise with the freeway, even after it's constructed, and came to express frustration.

Councilwoman Maureen Miller Brosnan said she remembered when the freeway was last worked on in the '90s, which included an experimental surface material that many motorists complained about after. She said she wishes there would have been a look at possibly adding noise abatement efforts, such as walls, to the pro-

"This would have been the time to do it and it appears it's not being done now," she said. "I want the guarantee in writing for our residents that the noise is not going to increase as a result of this project and I want to go back and test after the project is in place to make sure that in fact they have lived up to that

"I'm not willing to give them anything until they agree to that. These people have been through too much for too long."

guarantee.

Budai said that experimental finish that was used then would not be used in the upcoming construction. He said the new surface is not expected to have any positive or negative effect on the noise levels from the freeway.

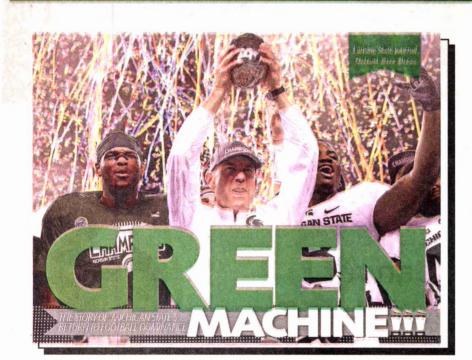

Brosnan offered a denying resolution for the noise ordinance waiver request, while Councilman Brian Meakin offered a resolution to send the issue to committee for further discussions.

The council will take up the action at its regular meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in city hall.

He touted residential and commercial growth in the past year, as well as Liberty Middle School, a Plymouth-Canton school, opening adjacent to the charter! school Canton Preparatory High School.

"We knew with two" schools next to each other we had to get it right," he said of traffic issues

He cited economic development, including new restaurants in Canton. "We've got some exciting things that are going to be happening on the economic development front," some of which he can't yet share, LaJoy said.

The Great Recession hit property values and LaJoy praised township unions and staffers who took pay and benefit cuts. "I can tell you they were incredible. Those steps assured we remain a vibrant com-munity," he said. "Can-ton Township financially and otherwise is in good shape."

Roads dominated the discussion, with one club member asking if a Warren Road or Cherry Hill exit from I-275 could be used to ease Ford Road congestion. LaJoy pointed to cost concerns.

He described his three trips to Washington, D.C., seeking federal funds for the Ford Road/I-275 exchange, an ongoing concern. "We're going to keep going after it," said LaJoy, who also touched on subdivision streets and work with homeowner associations.

LaJoy noted the township's 95,000 residents and those who worked with him and the Board of Trustees in focus groups on township needs. "I got overwhelming support," he said of those residents.

Said Rotarian Kurt Heise, who represents part of Canton in the state House of Representatives, "He was very informative. There are a lot of great things going on in Canton Township. I'm really going to miss Phil LaJoy," added Heise, noting he emulated LaJoy in Lansing.

"My work is an exploration of what is hidden and what is revealed — whether in a visual, emotional or historical sense. Working with layers, both physically and visually, allows me to explore this complexity," said Bushey, associate professor and chair of the Hillsdale College Art Department.

Moran, instructor at the Center for Creative

Studies in Detroit, said her goal as an artist is "to study and master the traditional techniques of dyeing and printing on fabric and adapt them to my own purposes. I find inspiration for my work in daily walks through the wooded places of southeast Michigan. These walks are a kind of meditation, allowing me the time to observe subtle, daily changes and appreciate the seasonal cycles of growth, decay and weather."

Eimers Foundation benefit aims to help feed homeless

Brad Kadrich Staff Writer

Four years ago, Robby Eimers accompanied his grandmother and a friend on a trip to provide blankets to the homeless in downtown Detroit.

As a 9-year-old boy, Robby had no idea of the scope of a problem as vast as "homelessness." He knew there were such people, but at 9 had no clue how widespread it

He does now — and he's doing something about it.

Robby has founded The Eimers Foundation, a charitable organization dedicated to easing the problem for the homeless. It started small, by doing what he calls "sharing" and going down to feed homeless people and give them anything he can - hats, coats, gloves, socks and the like — to make their lives a little

For more than four years now, he and his sister Emma (now 10) have gone down to the shelter in downtown Detroit to feed the people. And later this month, he's hoping a fundraiser will help him achieve his goal — getting an actual food truck so he can expand his reach.

'When I went down there (the first time) there were, like, 30 homeless people," Robby said. "Going down and seeing so many made a big impact on me. I just felt like I had to do something.

The folks at Andiamo's restaurant took Robby under their collective wing, helping with a food truck and teaching him how to run one. Now Robby wants to buy his own food truck (his uncle would drive it) so he can help even more people (the homeless

The event will feature food and wine tasting tables from some 20 organizations — among them Schoolcraft College's culinary arts program, Ironwood Grill, Treat Dreams, Scotty O'Hotty and others along with a silent auction, raffle and entertainment from the band Power Play Detroit.

It doesn't happen often, but once in a while Erin Hult, clanks a free throw.

Or she throws an errant pass to a Canton teammate.

Inevitably, especially when the Chiefs varsity girls basketball team is playing at home, all the 16-year-old junior has to do is glance over toward the sidelines to get the pick-me-up she needs in those situations.
There she'll see her top fan

Davis, Woody combine for 44 of 'Cats' 58 points

Tim Smith Staff Writer

The bitter taste from Tuesday's 55-32 loss to campus rival Salem still lingered Friday before Brent Davis and his Plymouth teammates faced Wayne Memorial.

So all Davis did was score early and often against the visiting Zebras, draining a trey from the right flank to put the Wildcats up 3-1.

Moments later, he wowed the spectators with a behindthe-back dribble drive en route to a layup.

Davis — with ample support from sophomore forward Tariq Woody — cut the Zebras to the quick with a 26-point effort as Plymouth rolled to a 58-38 win.

"I think really what fueled us tonight was that loss (to Salem)," Davis said. "After losing that game, it made us realize what our potential is.

"We watched the things we did wrong on film and we just wanted to get better. We never wanted to have that feeling again."

Shorthanded Salem bests Northville behind big game by junior forward

> Brad Emons Staff Writer

Salem got the most out of its thin lineup Thursday night, skating to a 5-1 Kensington Conference crossover victory over penalty-plagued North-ville at Novi Ice Arena.

The Rocks, who won their fifth straight while improving to 7-4-1 overall and 4-1-1 in the KLAA's South Division, had only eight available forwards and five defensemen for the game.

"We're a little short-handed and have some fairly significant injuries," Salem coach Ryan Ossenmacher said. "Last night (6-2 win vs. South Lyon Unified) we had nine and five. One of our guys went down in the first two minutes, so he was out tonight. No excuses, you play who is here and sometimes it's actually easier because guys got to know you got to go and find their legs. We've won five in a row, so we're moving pretty good."

One player who was moving really well all three periods was junior forward Jake Saunders, who figured in four of Salem's five talies with two reals and two explains.

goals and two assists.

"I think he's just kind of figuring it all out," Ossenmacher said. "He's big body and skates well for a big body. He's probably the strongest physically on our team. He's just adjusting to this level and I think the sky is the limit for him. He's bigger and stronger than most of the guys he's playing against."

Northville (5-3-2, 2-1 KLAA

Central), however, struck first on Kyle Dann's fourth goal of the season off an assist from Jimmy Dales at 4:24 of the first period.

But Salem's Zach Goleniak answered on a power-play goal from Saunders at 11:18 of the same period to knot the game at 1-1.

Northville, which took five penalties in the first period, was whistled for eight more in the second and Salem responded with two more goals as Saunders scored the first of his two at 1:53 on a power play off assists from Marty Mills and Matt Schaumburger.

"We started out well,"
Northville coach Jon Gates

BACK-TO-BACK CHAMPIONS

Salem sweeps way to another tourney championship in Traverse City

> Tim Smith Staff Writer

When Salem's varsity boys hockey team convenes for preseason camp, uniforms are distributed and players get out their December calendars.

They then circle the week after Christmas, in anticipation of another junket to the Scott Miller Memorial Holiday Tournament in Traverse City.

Not only does the annual trip foster team camaraderie — 250-mile bus rides have a tendency to do that — it continues to be a catalyst in helping the Rocks jell as a hockey team.

"When you are riding on a bus for 10 hours, you eventually run out of small talk and really get to know your team-mates," Salem head coach Ryan Ossenmacher wrote in an email to the Observer. "This bond is incredibly important in the strength of any

"I think this aspect of the trip is every bit as important as the games. We traditionally make great strides as a team in the second half our seasons - and this trip is a big part of that.'

Such was the case again Dec. 28-30, when Salem won three games in a row at Centre Ice Arena to win the Miller tourney for the second consecutive season.

After winning 8-2 Dec. 28 against the Bay Area Reps, the Rocks went out Dec. 29 and pinned a 3-2 defeat on . Saginaw Heritage.

That was the first loss for the Hawks all season.

Wrapping up the successful tourney Dec. 30 was Salem's 5-1 triumph over Midland, to win the trophy.

Big line shines

Spearheading the Salem attack all three games was the forward line of Evan Newel, Matt Schaumburger and Colin Goleniak. They accounted for 11 of the team's 16

Sharing time in the net were goalies Tristan Rehling and Austin Goleniak, each "strong" between the pipes.

"It was the best stretch of hockey we have played all season," Ossenmacher wrote. "All three lines contributed and our defensive unit was very solid even being shorthanded with only four (defensemen) for the semifinal and final games.'

As much as Ossenmacher underscores the importance of team bonding, he pointed to the "one and done" format of the Miller tournament as having great benefits to the team (5-4-1) during state tournament time.

"Each team is guaranteed three games, but you need to win all three to win the championship," Ossenmacher added. "This format gives our players a look at how the state tournament is run and helps

» On Dec. 29, Colin Goleniak scored on the power play with 42 seconds left in the opening period, from Schaumburger and Driscoll, and Salem never trailed against Saginaw Heritage.

Driscoll set up Schaumburger for another power-play goal in the middle period, to give the Rocks a 2-0 edge.

In the third, the Hawks got on the scoreboard with 11:15 left in regulation. But Salem restored its two-goal lead less than two minutes later.

Once again, it was the big line doing the damage. Goleniak took a feed from Schaumburger and ripped home the puck.

That helped offset a late goal by Saginaw Heritage.

Closing out the scoring in the third was Newel (one goal, four assists), with assists going to Schaumburger (three goals, one assist) and Goleniak (three assists).

six minutes in that second period down five-onthree. And that just can't happen.'

Saunders' second of the night came from Joey Driscoll and Nick Callegari with 44.4 seconds remaining in the second to make it 3-1.

With 5:30 left in the second period and Northville killing off a pair of five-on-threes, Salem goaltender Tristan Rehling (21 saves) robbed Riley Brass from pointblank range on a breakaway effort to maintain its one-goal lead.

"After the game in the locker room, I said that was the key save right there because at that that opportunity, that's momentum. That's a big save because we come down and score after that. That was the turning point in the game for Salem added two more goals in the final period to put the game out of reach, with Driscoll scoring from Sean McCormack and Saunders at 1:05 followed by Mills' unassisted goal off a shot from just inside the blue line only 1:21

"We didn't score on a five-on-three and, typically, when you don't score on a five-on-three, you're in trouble," Os-senmacher said. "Not only we didn't score on one, but we didn't score on two. So from that standpoint, I thought we got a little bit lucky.'

At one point during the second period, Northville had a total of five players sitting in the penalty box together, putting immense pressure on junior goaltender Brett Miller, who finished with 21 saves.

The proof is in the score sheet ... 16 penalties," Gates said. "That's unacceptable. They (Salem) are a good team. They had a short bench, but sometimes it's addition by subtraction. They played well last night and we knew it was going to be a good game. We came out strong and got a goal right away, controlled the play and then kept going to the box. One thing led to another. It's the players' choice ... they can be as good as they want to be. We can get them to the water, but we can't make them drink it. And it's up to them if they want to be a good team. They have the potential." Saunders, meanwhile, is making the most of his first varsity season for the Rocks after playing for the Prep team.

"It's just not a big body, he's got skills and you saw that tonight with a couple of his goals, Ossenmacher said. "He probably could have had another one, but the goalie (Miller) had a nice save on him. He's been asked to go, especially the last two nights a lot with really only two centers in the lineup and he's handled it really well. Tonight he was dynamite on face-offs, which is another key to our game. He was probably our best forward tonight."

Novi bounces back to finish off Salem

Wildcats' big third-quarter surge sinks Rocks, 39-31

Brad Emons

It couldn't have started out any worse for the Novi girls basketball team during Friday's Central Division opener against host Salem.

The Wildcats found themselves down 2-0 before the opening tip-off when they were assessed a technical foul by one of the game officials for a failure to designate their five starters in the official score book within 10 minutes of game time.

And to make matters worse, Novi shot only 4-of-33 from the field during the first half, yet trailed by only four, 12-8, at intermission.

But despite things going a little haywire, the Wildcats regrouped to outscore defending KLAA Association champion Salem 31-19 in the second half en route to a 39-31 triumph.

"I think we were a little nervous from the beginning of the game and at halftime we just talked about getting ourselves together and really playing as a team," said Novi sophomore guard Ellie Mackay, who finished with a team-high 13 points. "And I feel in the second half, we really got things going and started playing as a team."

Novi, which improved to 6-0 overall, outscored Salem 15-5 in the third quarter to take command, getting six free throws from junior guard Cara Ninkovich, who finished with 10 points.

"I think we maybe went through three different offenses and didn't get anything going," Novi coach Bill Kelp said. 'We were just out of sync and maybe that technical played a little part into it, but I don't know.'

Kelp also made a slight adjustment to start the third quarter at the guard position.

"I think putting Cara at the point and playing Ellie over on the wing ... and, of course, them getting in a little bit of foul trouble helped out," Kelp said. "I think one of the things I thought is that we got into the paint a little bit more in the second half than the first

Allie Lipson, a senior forward, added five of her seven points to start the fourth quarter as Novi built a 10-point lead that eventually grew to 12 with 4:45 left on a basket by Mackay. Lipson also had a team-high nine rebounds.

Salem (5-2, 0-1) was unable to get any closer than seven the rest of the way as a full-court drive by Mackay with 1:57 remaining put Novi up nine and sealed the victory.

"It was the tale of two halves," Salem coach Lindsay Klemmer said. "Not being able to score in the first half was OK because we played some defense. But we couldn't score in the second half and we couldn't stop anybody. Thirty-one points in the second half is not OK. We're trying to keep people under 30 for an entire game.'

The Rocks shot only 8-of-32 from the field (25 percent)

"(Novi) locked down one our best players, but our execution and our discipline was not good and they know that,' Klemmer said. "I told them, 'We got a target on our back' and they need to understand that every single team in the division is coming after us." Lasha Petree, a sophomore forward, paced Salem's scoring attack with 14 points, including the two technical free throws to start the game.

Novi shot 14-of-59 from the field (23.7 percent) and 10-of-17 from the foul line, while committing 16 turnovers.

Salem, which also got eight points from sophomore Jala Petree, connected on 13-of-22 free throws (59 percent). The Rocks committed a total of 22 turnovers.

"We didn't take advantage of what we had in the first half and our game plan definitely went to crap the second half," Klemmer said. of basketball, too.

For Hult, a Plymouth resident whose parents are Paul and Renee Hult, basketball is a game that she excels at and could perhaps play well enough to earn a college scholarship in. For Haley, it is a game she just can't get enough of.

Haley will be getting a varsity jacket from Plymouth High School and could also get one from Canton.

At least, Hult has discussed that with Chiefs new varsity girls basketball coach Rob Heit-

'It's cool, because she is getting her varsity jacket and she tells me every day how excited she is to get it," Hult said. 'But Rob and I were talking about how we should give her a Canton one, so she can get 'basketball' on the back. But that's just an idea.'

Friends for life

After all, if Hult wasn't a basketball player - let alone one with a knack for draining shots from all over the floor there is a very good possibility the two teens wouldn't have met.

"Our friendship would have never happened without basketball," Hult said. "So it's honestly crazy that we became such close friends, because I would have never met her if I hadn't been playing for Canton.'

The games will come and go. But how basketball launched a perfect jumper of a friendship will not.

"Is she a lifelong friend?" Hult asked, repeating a question. "I think so. For sure."

'We needed to find a second consistent scorer and, hopefully, Tariq can provide those inside points," said Plymouth head coach Mike Soukup, whose team improved to 3-4 overall and 1-0 in the division. "It was a good bounceback team win tonight against a very talented Wayne team.

Throwing in some elbow grease and knee burns, as usual, was senior Pete Carravallah. He was in the middle of things with a teamleading nine rebounds, along with five points.

"If there's a scuffle going on, he's probably not to far away from it." Soukup said about Carravallah. "He battled their best player and really played him tough.

Wildcats garner victories over both Knights, Highlanders

Plymouth's varsity wrestling team took care of two KLAA opponents Wednesday night in a strong start to the dual meet season.

The Wildcats routed Walled Lake Northern, 54-22, and followed up with a gritty 35-29 victory over Howell to go to 2-0 on the young season.

In the Plymouth-Northern matchup, 130pounder Justin Cancelosa earned a void while Josh Banks dropped a tough bout at 135.

But the Wildcats took off from there, going up 30-4 thanks to subsequent pins by Lucas Harden and Jake Griffith and voids by Darwin Filey and Dylan Dwyer.

The teams would trade wins through the upper weights," said Plymouth head coach Quinn Guernsey, noting that his team took a 39-16 edge into the premier matchups at 103 and 112.

In the former, Tyler Campbell pinned his opponent with only six seconds to go while Isiah Berry won 4-0 at 112.

Team still can compete for titles despite forfeiting six wins due to 'clerical error'

> Tim Smith Staff Writer

Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team continues to feel the sting of getting slapped with forfeiting six November and December victories, stemming from a clerical error involving a player who had transferred from an out-of-state col-

With every victory from this point of the season on, that pain will subside — possibly with the Ocelots being able to successfully defend their state championship.

"We can still win our conference, we can still compete for a state championship and we can still go to nationals and compete for a national title," Schoolcraft head coach Abe Mashhour said, adding that the silver lining in the ordeal is that the miscue was uncovered before January, when Michigan Community College Athletic Association games begin.

"Absolutely, it was great that it happened when it did," Mashhour

A first-year Schoolcraft player (Mashhour requested his name not be disclosed) had transferred before 2015-16 from an out-of-state col-

Schoolcraft then was subjected to an eligibility audit by the NJCAA, which audits 5 percent of member colleges each year.

NJCAA ruling a disappointment

In the process, it was discovered that the player's Transfer Waiver Form was signed prior to the season, but the other necessary paperwork — the Transfer Tracking Form — was not. The latter was signed Dec. 10; the player in question had played in six Schoolcraft games prior to that date.

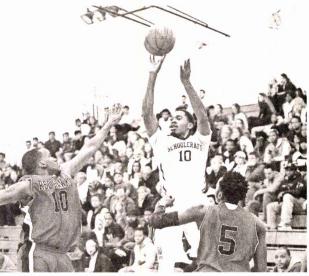

The forfeited games include: Nov. 4 vs. Jackson College, Nov. 7 vs. Grand Rapids Community College, Nov. 8 vs. Lorain (Ohio) County Community College, Nov. 11 vs. Lake Michigan College, Nov. 14 vs. Cuyahoga (Ohio) Community College and Dec. 5 vs. Owens (Ohio) Community College.

"He didn't do anything wrong," Mashhour said, referring to his player. "He transferred from one school to another and we got the transfer waiver, which is the more critical of the two documents. And we didn't then get the transfer tracking form.

"It's really kind of silly, it's a new rule that you need both. Because the transfer waiver really gives you all the information you need."

According to a statement from Schoolcraft athletic director Sid Fox, the ruling was a disappointment, but one the college will abide and learn from moving forward.

"I was deeply disappointed at the decision reached by the NJCAA to have the Schoolcraft College men's basketball team forfeit six games for not having a Transfer Tracking Form completed by another college in a timely manner," Fox said. Essentially, we were at the mercy of another institution filling out this acknowledgment form of one of our student-athlete's participation there last year required by NJCAA by-laws, in spite of all eligibility documentation being presented as part of the audit response which has been optimistic that 2015-16

"It was a very competitive meet," Canton head coach Dave Le said. "All three schools swam well. The Canton boys have been working very hard in practice and it was nice to see that hard work

"We still have a long way to go as we work toward swimming fast at the end of the season. But this was a nice way to start."

Concurring was Plymouth head coach Kenn Forbes, who said it was the close and competitive race he knew it would be.

"We had some good swims throughout the night earning seven MIS-CA cuts and 16 Wayne County cuts," Forbes said. "We were just a few tenths or even hundredths off of a few more MISCA cuts.

"We've been putting a lot of work in every practice, but there is still a lot more we can work on. Minor things that add up to bigger issues. It was a good chance for us to see some different depth spots for some races."

To the wire

Evidence of just how competitive the tri-meet was came in the very first event. Canton's 200-yard medley relay team of Kyle Amick, Gerard Niermann, Tristen Shao and Daniel Mullen prevailed in 1:44.92, good for an MISCA cut

But also earning MIS-CA cuts were runner-up Plymouth (Garrett Beauprez, Bronson Knowles, Aniketh Visai and Mike Wischer finished in 1:45.41) and third-place Salem (Eugene Li, Nick Landon, Nathan Budnick and Phillip Collingwood finished in 1:45.44).

"Salem had some good swims as well," Forbes said. "I think with a few more bodies and some more time with their new coach (Eric Lynn, he) will have a really decent squad to work with."

Forbes said the Chiefs had "some better swims across the board," with strong depth making the difference.

"We are certainly learning from our mistakes and already preparing for more good match ups with our division (and pool) rivals," Forbes said. "It's always exciting to see these schools go head to head."

Plymouth's Matt Weiner and Canton's Derek Goderis had a stellar battle in the 200 freestyle. Weiner nipped Goderis, 1:57.25 to 1:57.25 (both Wayne County

Canton wins in open events were notched by Niermann (50 free, 22.82), Shao (100 butterfly, 56.20) and Mullen (100 free, 49.41).

The Chiefs also took the top spot in the other two relays.

In the 200 free relay, the quartet of Niermann, Goderis, Caleb Styles and Ethan Shimones prevailed with a time of 1:36 36

Canton won the 400 free relay in 3:22.76. On that team were Niermann, Shao, Goderis and Mullen.

Plymouth's Beauprez scored the top spot in two individual races (200 IM, 2:03.97; 500 free, 5:05.85).

Prevailing in diving was the Wildcats' Jordan Groves, with 193.75 points, while Visai won the 100 breaststroke (1:07.97).

Salem's lone victor was Li, with a time of 56.26 in the 100 back-stroke.

Meadow Brook Hall in Rochester has 39 chimneys, 110 rms and is modeled on the grand mansions of England. It was completed in 1929.

Check out these five Michigan castles

In the early years of the 20th century, James Oliver Curwood of Owosso got rich writing books, short stories and movie scripts.

So he did what anybody with money to burn might do: built himself a castle.

The pint-sized French chateau now belongs to the city of Owosso and draws visitors throughout the year.

"It's one of the most iconic buildings in Owosso," said Robert Doran, executive director of Owosso's historical commission. That's saying a lot in a city full of classic homes and buildings.

Curwood Castle, which the writer used as a studio, may be the smallest public castle in Michigan.

Meadow Brook Hall is undoubtedly the largest. The English-style mansion on the campus of Oakland University in Rochester has 110 rooms, 39 chimneys and a vast and stunning ballroom that calls to mind a castle's great hall. It was completed in 1929 and has been open to the public since 1971.

The estate hosts 50 to 60 weddings a year and about 50 corporate meetings and community programs.

History: Meadow Brook Hall was built between 1926 and 1929 by Matilda Dodge Wilson, widow of early auto magnate John Dodge, and her second husband, lumber baron Alfred Wilson. The 110-room home features carved wood and stone details and plaster ceilings and is modeled after the great country estates of England, which they toured on their honeymoon. During construction of the home in 1927, they went on a second architectural tour of England with their architect in tow. The house cost $4 million to build (more than $54 million in today's dollars), and the Wilsons hosted a gala housewarming party for 850 people in November Matilda died in 1967, bequeathing the estate and $2 million in seed money to create Oakland University. The house opened to the public in 1971.

Power into new year with breakfast, exercise and protein

If the idea of diving into a new year has you feeling more exhausted than invigorated, it may be time to introduce some new strategies to help keep busy days from feeling overwhelming. Proper exercise, balanced nutrition and quality rest can make it easier to adapt when life demands you give a little bit more.

Everyone's life demands are different. Some may be looking to push through a late-night worbut or make it to the office for a early meeting, while othes are looking to enjoy an outig to the park with their kidst the end of the day. Thee tips will help fuel, inspir and accomplish whatever you personal "one more" is.

you personal "one more" is.

Begin with a bang. With a bus day ahead, it can be tenpting to rush out the door andskip breakfast. However, countless studies have shown this first meal of the day is extremely important. Skipping out on a balanced breakfast can drag you down all day, both mentally and physically. Being hungry later in the day may also make you more likely to overeat or nibble on high-calorie snacks. For those mornings when you're crunched for time, grab a protein-rich ready-to-drink shake or sandwich with egg, cheese and lean meat to give yourself sustained energy for the rest of the day.

» Work in a workout. In addition to helping ward off disease and manage your weight, regular exercise helps lift your mood by stimulating feel-good chemicals in the brain and boosts energy by helping your body work more efficiently. A combination of aerobic or cardio activity (walking, jogging or running) and muscle-strengthening activity (lifting weights, resistance training or yoga) is the winning formula, according to the most recent Physical Activity Guidelines for Americans. After your workout, refuel with a rich and creamy Premier Protein Shake, available in Chocolate, Vanilla and Strawberries and Cream, with 30 grams of protein, only 160 calories and just 1 gram of sugar.

Josh Fenn lost 135 pounds by changing his diet and working out at Anytime Fitness.

New Hudson resident Josh Fenn didn't like stepping on scales, because he realized he had gained weight. He didn't want to know the embarrassing numbers.

"I've been overweight my whole life — even in elementary school as a kid," said Fenn, 25.

In spring 2011, he was in a Chicago hotel room, he saw a scale and he decided to face facts. He stepped on and the numbers climbed to 315 pounds.

"When you're overweight you don't want to weigh yourself," he said. "Seeing I weighed more than 300 was it for me, and I realized I had to make changes."

Big changes

He started fine-tuning his diet and he began exercising at Anytime Fitness in Howell. After moving to New Hudson in 2013, he started going to the South Lyon

There was a lot of trial and error during his weightloss journey. There were times his exercise consisted of only walking and other times he was going to the gym five or six times weekly.

While exercise is great, Fenn said, diet is essential to lose weight.

"You can't outrun a bad diet," he said. "A lot of it was focused on diet. Now that I lost the fat, I'm working on muscle, and that's where the gym comes in."

Fenn's weight loss experience caught the attention of Anytime Fitness corporate personnel. The company sponsors a monthly campaign, My Anytime Story, featuring members who have compelling accounts about how exercising affected their lives.

Big winner

Fenn won for November and received a Fitbit Flex, water bottle and drawstring backpack.

"I decided to join Anytime Fitness during my weight loss journey," Josh wrote in his Anytime Fitness Story. "I didn't only want to lose weight, I wanted a happier, healthier life. I wanted to become more fit and work on my strength and replacing some of that fat with mus-

f you're one of the millions of people whose New Year's resolution list includes getting a new job, the first step is sprucing up that old résumé. Here are some key considerations to ensure that your résumé is up to date in 2016.

Mobile compatibility

Much of a job seeker's searching and applying can now be done with mobile technology, and much of the employer's side of the process has gone mobile as well. Luckily, the systems and tools employers use will often take care of adjusting your document to fit a smaller screen.

There is a chance that your résumé will be read on a smartphone or tablet, so be sure to take that into consideration, especially in terms of layout and style. Above all, make sure you're using Web-safe fonts to help ensure that the content is correctly transferred.

Cross-channel consistency

One thing that always stands out to an employer on a résumé is a URL to a job seeker's professional webpage or online profile. You already know that recruiters and employers are likely to look at your Web presence. Providing the relevant links simply makes it easier for them and demonstrates that you have nothing to hide.

However, keep in mind that any page you link to effectively becomes a part of your resume. That doesn't mean you need to maintain a stilted, professional tone across all platforms, but there should be a clear, consistent undertone of respect and professionalism.

Customization

This isn't exactly a new trend, but it remains one of the most important. Just as you can probably spot a cookie-cutter job posting or email, employers can tell if they're reading a generalized version of your résumé.

A good strategy for easy customization is to create a master résumé, which includes every single piece of information any employer might want to know about you. Then, for each new job application, copy and paste the portions that relate to the specific opportunity. After fine-tuning some phrasing to tie your content back to the position, you'll have a freshly tailored résumé.

Executive summaries

Whether to include an objective statement on a résumé is a question that has plagued job seekers for years. While there's no universal answer, there are alternatives. One that is increasing in popularity is the executive summary.

The executive summary is a brief overview of your skills and noteworthy accomplishments, all of which are supported by the information in the rest of your resume. Essentially, it is your elevator pitch in print. One of the chief benefits is that an executive summary focuses on what you offer the employer, as opposed to an objective statement that emphasizes your personal goals.

Minimalism

In the early stages of the hiring process, recruiters and employers typically don't spend much time on individual résumés. Only after the initial quick pass will they really delve into the details.

With this in mind, keep your résumé simple. Providing too much detail at the point when an employer is looking only for broad strokes can actually have an adverse effect, making it harder for them to find the information they want. Include the most relevant content on your official resume, and reserve the rest for your professional website. This way, your résumé doesn't get bogged down with too much text.

There are rarely sudden, sweeping changes to the characteristics that make an ideal résumé. Nor are there hard-and-fast style guidelines that get thrown out and rewritten each year. However, making these small adjustments to keep your résumé up to date is still an effective way to increase the likelihood that you'll land a great new job in 2016.

Car Report

Detroit, Flyover Country Should Grab Prominent Roles in Self-Driving Era

reported alliance between Ford and Google on self-driving cars is good news for a traditional automotive industry that is solidly based in Flyover

Country and doesn't want to be cut out of the next era of locomotion as it arises to the west.

But as a region, the current locus of U.S. auto development and production will have to fight hard in order to avoid seeing Silicon Valley eventually become a new Detroit of the Autonomous Driving Age

The International Consumer Electronics Show in Las Vegas this week is serving as another flashing reminder of the vulnerability of every existing automaker to the ultimate designs on their business by Google, Apple, Uber and other digital-tech giants that are muscling into the trade on the backs of their mighty algorithms.

Besides the formal announcement of some kind of Ford-Google partnership, CES was expected to include many other demonstrations by both car and tech companies that self-driving has become the main event in the auto industry these days, far outstripping even automakers' ongoing struggles to meet tightening emissions regulations in a U.S. market that is increasingly besotted by cheap gasoline.

In fact, some estimates were for 25-percent growth in floor space at CES for autos just compared with last year, with more than 100 automotive tech companies showing their autonomous-driving

And there are more troubling signs for the Detroit Three automakers as well as for Japanese, German and Korean competitors that have all bet their futures in the American market, to one degree or another, on operations in the Midwest and South. Even more to the point, these are troubling signs for Detroit and the rest of Flyover Country as it seeks to maintain its relevance in its most important homegrown industry against an increasingly encroaching West Coast juggernaut.

Tesla CEO Elon Musk, for example, reportedly was flooded with responses a few weeks ago after he put out a call on Twitter for "hard-core software engineers" to work on the company's self-driving push at its headquarters in Palo Alto, Calif.

Meanwhile, even Ford is complicit in this shift to Silicon Valley not just by throwing in with Google; like other automakers, Ford also is adding quickly to the ranks of software creators at its own Silicon Valley outpost.

And when Ford's philanthropic wing, the Ford Motor Company Fund, recently announced it's backing an effort to encourage young women to consider tech careers and help them flourish in STEM studies, it was to say that it is partnering with Girls Who Code in Silicon Valley, not girls who code in Dearborn or Ann Arbor.

Such developments promise to offset much of the regional momentum gained by Flyover Country during the last several years as automakers kept adding new assembly capacity in the nation's mid-section as well as increasing concentrations of mechanical, electrical and even electronic engineers to make cars

Even sales and marketing functions increasingly have been migrating to the Midwest and South, and from the coasts, as Toyota's U.S. headquarters packs up and departs for Texas from California; Honda moves more American-headquarters operations from the West Coast to Ohio; and Mercedes-Benz moves its American headquarters to Georgia — which shares Heartland sensibilities from New Jersey

But even amid an inevitable shift in the intellectual center of the future auto industry toward Silicon Valley and away from Detroit (and away from Frankfurt, and Tokyo, and Seoul), there are things that American Flyover Country can do to enhance the region's importance to the new era of driving even as vehicles become little more than slaves to Google Maps

One of them would be to attempt to take the lead in providing the "smart," sensor-and-chip-laden traffic-system infrastructure of the future that will be just as vital to the success of autonomous driving as the vehicles themselves. Even the best self-driving cars will have to rely on pathways, nudges and tweaks provided telematically by the streets, highways, bridges and traffic lights along the way -- and there's no reason Flyover Country couldn't show they way in that

Already, the earliest exercises in "vehicle-to-vehicle communications" - another crucial part of the self-driving era featuring extensive involvement of traffic infrastructure, were conducted in Michigan several vears ago.

And it's a great development for the region that the University of Michigan already has built and has begun operating what is arguably the most extensive testing ground for automated-driving features in the world, called the Mobility Transformation Center, or "Mcity."

But that's only a starting point. Silicon Valley surely won't relent in its efforts to take over the nerve center of the American auto business even if Flyover Country keeps making most of the vehicles But automakers shouldn't give up easily
